Mrs. Davis' gift of $100,000.00 in 1962 made possible the early construction of the library. The Board also approved and adopted the new "Alma Mater" which the student body had previously approved and recommended to the Board for adoption.

Upon recommendation of the faculty the Board authorized the granting of degrees to 72 students at graduation on April 24, conditioned upon the satisfactory completion of the current semester's work, and the meeting of all other requirements.

Robert Milner, executive director of the Fayetteville College Foundation and The Reverend James Auman, director of the Association of Methodist Colleges of the North Carolina Conference of The Methodist Church, each gave reports to the Board on the progress and projections in their areas of responsibility.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

John E. Murray, a public speaker for the North Carolina fund, told a Methodist College special problems sociology class on Wednesday, May 17, that 37 percent of all North Carolina families live under the minimum level for poverty and that 43 percent of all houses in the state are substandard.

In the United States, approximately 20 percent of the total population is under the poverty level.

Murray said that laziness has little to do with poverty. He said that poverty is influenced by several major factors. Among these he listed the number of available opportunities and social and ethnic backgrounds.

Three features of North Carolina, he said, make poverty greater in the state. The first of these features is too high of an under- and unemployment rate. Figures given out by the State Employment Commission are often as much as half of what the actual figure of enemployment is, he said.

The second feature discussed was the low wages paid to employees. North Carolina ties with Mississippi for the lowest average industrial wages in the nation. The average North Carolina industrial wage is $1.80 per hour compared to a national average of $2.60.

The third feature listed was the lack of education in North Carolina. The average adult education in the state is only nine years, compared to 11 for the nation. He said that "we are wasting tax money if no better than a fifth grade education can be given to the citizens of the state. There is no place in our technological society for a functional illiterate."

He recommended extending technical training into the high schools.

Since February of 1966, Mr. Murray has been on a speaking tour of North Carolina for the North Carolina fund, a private anti-poverty corporation begun in 1963 and operating from grants from the Ford, Babcock and Reynolds foundations.

A native of Roanoke Rapids, N. C., he is a former Presbyterian minister. A graduate from Davidson College, he earned his Bachelor of Divinity degree from Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, and his Master of Theology from Princeton Seminary, Princeton, N. J.

Fayetteville, N. C. -- Sixty-eight seniors received diplomas during the Fourth Annual Commencement Exercises at Methodist College on Monday, May 29.

Dr. Felix Robb, Director of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, delivered the Commencement Address.

Speaking on the general subject of "Power", Dr. Robb stated that education is the key to power and there is nothing more powerful than an idea whose time has come.

He commented on the tremendous progress of the South within the past one hundred years and stated, "the next hundred years can belong to the South if we successfully work out the human relations problem."

He congratulated the graduates but also warned them, "with success you have also acquired responsibilities. You will either help solve the problems of society or you will become one of the problems."

The May meeting of the Methodist College Woman's Club was held in the home of Mrs. Samuel J. Womack, 217 Vivian Drive in Kinwood. Co-hostesses for the occasion were Miss Diane Cawman, Mrs. B. L. Crisp and Mrs. William Cooper.

The main item of business was the election of officers for the 1967-68 academic year. They are: Mrs. Samuel J. Womack, president; Mrs. Lorenzo Plyler, vice-president; Mrs. B. L. Crisp, treasurer; Mrs. Rodney Hill, secretary, and Mrs. P. J. Crutchfield, historian.

As a project for the year, the club voted to make a contribution to the college to help defray the expenses of the recently purchased Lafayette Collection which will be housed in the college library.

In making this contribution the club felt that their gift would not only benefit the college but will also benefit the entire community since the information in this collection will be available to anyone in the community.

Plans for the annual summer family picnic scheduled for June 20 were discussed, and after the close of the business session, members of the club enjoyed a showing of movies taken at the club's Christmas dinner-party.
