As National Library Week focuses attention on the various library facilities of the Fayetteville community one cannot help but reflect upon one of the newest facilities in the community--the Davis Memorial Library at Methodist College.

Small Beginning

When the college opened for the first academic year in September of 1960, the library was located in two adjoining rooms of the Classroom Building. But, from the very early stages of development of the college, the library was considered to be one of the most important facilities to be provided. Annual increase in enrollment and a $100,000 gift from Mrs. Geraldine Tyson Davis of Midland, Texas, and a native of Cumberland County stimulated an effort which resulted in the early construction of the permanent library building.

On November 1, 1967, the library was dedicated in memory of Mrs. Davis who died on September 23, 1966.

Modern Facility

The present building, occupied in November, 1964, is modern in every way and is one of the most imposing buildings on campus.

The fully air-conditioned, three-floor building provides seating for over 300 students with areas for casual reading, open shelves on the mezzanine floor for browsing, a music and speech listening room, and private study carrels, all in a general academic atmosphere of comfort and quiet.

Rapid Growth

The library's growth in terms of resources has been steady from 1,250 volumes on the shelves when the college opened in September, 1960 to over 35,000 volumes today. The periodical section has grown from 56 subscriptions to 380 with over 3,000 bound periodicals.

Approximately 16 newspapers are available, including international, national, regional and local papers. The audio-visual section includes over 1,000 scores, 1,000 phonograph records, 300 slides and 500 microfilm reels of books, newspapers and manuscripts.

Most important has been the tremendous increase in circulation with an average of 200 books per month checked out in 1960 as compared with the current circulation of approximately 3,000 per month.

The library is an institutional member of the American Library Association and the Association of Eastern North Carolina Colleges' Commission on Library Affairs.

The excellent status of the library has qualified the college for various federal grants for library development. More than $10,000 has been received during the current academic year. Included in these funds is a grant for a Materiel Center. The functions of this center are to be: (1) to provide laboratory facilities in audio-visuals which will provide equipment comparable to that which the prospective teacher will find in actual teaching situations;

- (2) to provide these audio-visual facilities and services to the entire campus;
- (3) to develop a children's literature collection, the nucleus of which now exists in the Curriculum Laboratory.

Faculty-Student Staff

Philip C. Smith, Jr., librarian, operates the library with a staff of 6 persons plus 19 student assistants.

A significant and maybe unique aspect of the college's library operation is the five-member Student Library Committee. This committee is an adjunct of the Student Government Association. According to Mr. Smith, the function of this committee is to bridge the communication gap between the library and the student body. The committee is constantly directing its efforts toward facilitating a more effective and expeditious use of the library by the student body.

Smith feels that such a committee can help to insure a better understanding of library operations among the student body.

Academic Mission

The mission of the college library is to provide the students and faculty with a live and growing book collection and other learning facilities in support of the academic curricula. Also involved in this mission is the effort to stimulate students to read widely and deeply.

The second part of the mission is to make these facilities available to the Fayetteville community.

Future Plans

The college and the library staff is dedicated to the task of strengthening the book and non-book holdings and to adding materials in support of new educational programs which the college will add in the years ahead.

The establishments of the Materiel Center, combining the facilities of the Curriculum Laboratory with audio-visual services to improve teaching methods courses for prospective teachers, will continue to be an effort of great concern in the immediate future.

Future plans will also take into account the development of a depository in the library for special collections of books and materials such as the General Lafayette Collection purchased by the college last summer.

And so, in addition to providing an academic focal point at Methodist College, The Davis Memorial Library provides additional facilities and services in the area of informational resources for the Fayetteville community.

RELEASE: IMMEDIATE

FAYETTEVILLE - Methodist College students vote Wednesday, April 24, in Choice 68, the first National Collegiate Presidential Primary (NCP) to be held on campuses across the nation.

The primary, in which some two million college students are expected to vote, is co-sponsored by Time Magazine and the Univac Division of Sperry Rand Corporation. Students will vote on a computer card, six million of which have been distributed to participating universities, colleges, and junior colleges.

NCP will show the opinions, on presidential candidates and important national issues, of students from nearly 1,500 colleges representing more than 75 per cent of the nation's total college enrollment.

Methodist College, along with other participating institutions, will receive during the first week of May the results of balloting on its campus.

The basic data on the ballot shows the voter's party and age (over 70 per cent of students voting are expected to be under 21); whether he is a foreign student; his first, second, and third choices for president among 12 listed candidates plus write-ins; the course of action which he believes the U.S. should pursue in regard to her military forces in Vietnam; the course of action which she should pursue regarding the bombing of North Vietnam; and the area of government spending which should receive highest priority to meet the urban crisis. See actual ballot choices under The Ballot.

Tabulations will show percentages of the first, second, and third choice votes received by each candidate as well as percentages of students favoring each course of action. Comparisons will also be made of the first choice voting for candidates with the voting on each course of action, showing, for instance, how many students indicating Senator Eugene McCarthy as their first choice also favor immediate withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. Further analyzation will be made of the voting by age groups, party, region, and type of school.

Univac headquarters states there are 1,872 possible combinations of first, second, and third choices and that the exact number of votes for each of these combinations will be tabulated.

THE BALLOT

Choices on the ballot will supply seven types of information. The seven areas are:

Age: 18 or under, 19, 20, 21, 22 or over

Party preference: Democrat, Republican, Independent, Other Party

Whether the voter is a foreign student

First, second, and third choices for President. Appearing on the ballot are Fred Halstead (Socialist Worker), Mark Hatfield (Rep), Lyndon Johnson (Dem), Robert Kennedy (Dem), John Lindsay (Rep), Eugene McCarthy (Dem), Richard Nixon (Rep), Harold Stassen (Rep), and George Wallace (Amer Ind), Students can also write in, as their first choice, a candidate not appearing on the ballot.

What course of military action the U.S. should pursue in Vietnam: immediate withdrawal of forces, phased reduction of forces, maintain current level of military activity, increase the level of activity, or all out military effort.

What course of action the U.S. should pursue in regards to the bombing of North Vietnam: permanent cessation of bombing, temporary suspension of bombing, maintain current level of bombing, intensify bombing or use nuclear weapons.

In confronting the urban crisis, which area should receive the highest priority of government spending: education, housing, income subsidy, job training and employment opportunities, or riot control and law enforcement. .
