DIAC PICKS CLAYTON FOR COACH OF YEAR

FAYETTEVILLE - Gene Clayton of Methodist College has won Coach of the Year honors for the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (DIAC), according to conference president Bill Shellenberger.

Clayton, athletic director and basketball coach at Methodist, coached the Monarchs to a 13-4 conference record and their first DIAC championship this year. The Monarchs finished regular season play with a 13-9 overall record.

With a career record at Methodist of 34 wins-30 losses, Clayton usually placed the Monarchs in the top three or four DIAC teams each year.

A native of Albemarle, N.C., Clayton came to Methodist as an instructor of physical education in 1963 and was assistant basketball coach, cross country coach and intramural director. In 1966 he became athletic director and head basketball coach. He is now assistant professor of physical education.

Clayton holds the M.Ed. degree from U.N.C. at Chapel Hill and the A.B. degree from Catawba College, Salisbury.

LOCAL ARTIST EXHIBITS AT METHODIST COLLEGE

FAYETTEVILLE - Jack Mitchell, local artist, will exhibit a collection of his work (sculpture and painting) March 1 - 29 at the Methodist College Fine Arts Building.

A native of Fayetteville, Mitchell is an instructor in art at Alexander Graham Junior High School.

The artist holds the B.A. degree from the University of North Carolina and studied painting with Theodorus Stamos at the Art Student's League, N.Y.C. He also studied sculpture with Seymour Lipton at the New School for Social Research, N.Y.C.

Mitchell describes his sculpture as "geometric and organic in form" with inspiration coming from "old tools and certain shapes in nature that hold an attraction for me." He does not abstract these objects but includes them in a language of form through which he expresses his "feelings about man and nature."

Other showings of the artist's work include: a one man show at the Westerly Gallery, N.Y.C., 1965; Columbia Museum of Art, Columbia, S.C.; Ackland Art Center, Chapel Hill; Fredericksburg Museum of Contemporary Art, Fredericksburg, Va.; and the Winston-Salem Gallery of Fine Arts, Winston-Salem.

He also has exhibited at the N.C. Museum of Art (Raleigh) in the 29th Annual N.C. Artists' Exhibition; the 29th Annual N.C. Artists' Exhibition Winners' Show; and the 31st Annual N.C. Artists' Exhibition.

Mitchell's sculpture, "Cherokee King," was presented to the Cumberland County Public Library after purchase by the N.C. State Art Society.

The State Student Legislature of North Carolina exists to answer a need among college students today. At present over twenty colleges and universities across North Carolina affiliate each year. Each selects and sends delegations to the annual sessions, held in either late fall or early spring. An interim council, composed of representatives of each institution, formulates SSL policy regarding administration and preparation for assemblies, meeting at the discretion of an elected president.

The convention itself consists of two joint sessions, the first presenting general information to delegates, and the second, to vote on conference committee decisions and to elect officers. Between the two are legislative sessions in the respective houses, in which each college is provided with the opportunity to present at least one bill or resolution, approved by the Interim Council before presentation. A banquet is also included in the three-day affair.

As in any other organization, State Student Legislature is not without faults. But it is sincere, if at times it appears idealistic. The individual student does believe that he is right in approving or rejecting a bill or resolution.

SSL does not maintain that freedom of speech does not entail responsibility, but it does maintain that such freedom of speech continues to exist. Nor does SSL maintain that its delegates are representing the mass of students, but it does maintain that in the majority of cases the student body of a given institution is presented with the opportunity to compete for selection of delegates, and it does maintain that a student representing only his own viewpoint can become familiar with legislative processes and can derive benefits for himself and his school.

SSL needs the support of students, faculties, government officials, and the press. It needs the right to use government facilities; it needs adequate press coverage. It needs full student and faculty approval in each and every college in North Carolina.

the state student legislature of north carolina

This is to be returned to Natalie Schwoyer!!!

The Capitol Square saw a new legislative body meet on November 12, 1937. Second only to Kansas in formation, the then-called Student Legislative Assembly met, debated, and argued under the sponsorship of the State College forensic teams. Professor Edwin H. Paget was the founder, originator, and sponsor. Governor Hoey addressed the conclave in '37, and Secretary of State Thad Eure served as parliamentarian, and before the first day was over the Assembly rejected a resolution urging Roosevelt to a third term, 23-24.

In 1938 the Assembly returned, as it was to do for the next 26 years, with the exception of 1947. Party affiliation was of significance at the time, the News and Observer reporting that the Assembly "convened on a note of harmony that resulted partly from the fact that only three Republicans were in the crowd." A resolution which has become familiar to recent legislatures, that of abolishment of the House un-American Activities Committee, was first introduced in '38. The group declared by a vote of 49-38 that a particular committee investigating un-American activities was "detrimental to our democratic government."

In 1941 the Assembly, in contrast to current opinion, was declared more conservative than the regular General Assembly; and in 1943 Thad Eure stated that the Legislature was "a valuable, a worthwhile organization."

Praises continued for the next several years from such notables as Governor Cherry; and the Legislature granted awards to its founder, Paget, and to Eure.

1945 became the year of controversy for the State Student Legislature. A plan introduced by a University of North Carolina student to invite Negro colleges was passed by a vote of 110-48, but from across the state criticism poured in. Many, including Dr. Frank Graham, President of the Consolidated University, supported the students; and in reply to a statement that the students did not realize what they were doing, one student delegate replied that "a lot of us are veterans, we do not need to be told what we fought for."

The decision stood, but in the next session, many college representatives were absent. The Assembly was cancelled in 1947, the race question being a primary reason. The Assembly was revived in 1948.

The organization, now officially State Student Legislature of North Carolina, operated somewhat smoothly from 1948 until 1957, when in its 21st session both the House and the Senate passed a resolution concerning inter-racial marriages. The Council of State, headed by Governor Hodges, acted to restrict the Legislature, but its annual session was not discontinued.

The period of 1939, 1940, and 1941 was a time in which such student legislative assemblies flourished across the nation, in no small part due to the success of the first two. World War II and other factors forced many to discontinue, so that now the State Student Legislature of North Carolina stands as the oldest continuous assembly of its sort in the nation.

The very existence of SSL—and the fact that without permanent and continuous sponsorship it has continued to exist—reflects upon the nature of the students who with foresight for its future perpetuated its growth. It exists because in the very being of the student is the need and the desire to question and discuss, to reason and deduct, to conclude or to find no answer. The student searches more deeply and with more perseverance and earnestness to the questions of why than any other human being. And with the enthusiasm characteristic of the student he forms a forum in which he among many alike and unlike, from varied experiences and environments, may meet, and with perception and intellect, may form opinions based on fact, or may present such knowledge already formed, may convince the assembly, or may not, and may accept the rule of the majority. In the very being of this Legislature is the being of the student, before whom is presented a place for continuing the search for truth.

This search for truth, this desire to reason and question, is not limited to one area of study. In the Capitol chambers during its sessions State Student Legislature does more than discuss the moral obligation to racial equality; it questions the right to existence of the un-American activities committee, the abortion laws, or the governor's lack of veto. It discusses national as well as state issues, and confronts problems faced only by one or a group of member colleges. And throughout debate, SSL becomes a self-made instructor in parliamentary procedure, and a natural and unparalleled opportunity to serve as an experiment in legislative processes. The politics of campaigning is not avoided, nor is the social opportunity for relations of college to college, individual to individual, and race to race passed by. This is State Student Legislature: a practical experience in practical politics, yet bound inseparably with the questioning of what is right and what is ideal.
