THE VOGUES COMING TO METHODIST MARCH 21

FAYETTEVILLE - Coming to the Methodist College campus Friday, March 21, will be The Vogues, recording artists for Reprise Records.

The Vogues, a bright young quartet from Turtle Creek, Pa., started their recording career at Reprise with "Turn Around, Look At Me," which rose to the number two spot in the country, and followed with "My Special Angel" which climbed to number five on the charts.

All in their mid-20's, The Vogues grew up together in Turtle Creek and have been working as a group for the past eight years. They are Bill Burkette, lead baritone; Don Miller, baritone; Hugh Geyer, first tenor; and Chuck Blasko, second tenor. The group's manager, Elmer Willett, has been with them since they first sang together.

The singers, known almost as much for their club and college concerts as their recordings, sing both hard rock and standards, and perform two distinctly different acts.

Additional releases with which The Vogues have made the charts are: "Five O'Clock World," "Magic Town," and "You're The One." Their albums include "You're The One," "Five O'Clock World," "The Vogues Greatest Hits" and "Turn Around, Look At Me." Current album release on Reprise is "Till."

The Vogues, with their ten-piece orchestra, will appear in concert, 8 p.m., Reeves Auditorium, Methodist College campus, March 21. For ticket information call Methodist College 488-7110, ext 246 (day) or 488-9962 (evening) or write Tickets, Box 33, Methodist College (28301).

FAYETTEVILLE'S METHODIST COLLEGE EXPANDS TOTAL PROGRAM

FAYETTEVILLE - Growth describes nearly every facet of the collegiate picture at Methodist College today.

Opened in 1960, the young college now offers its students complete campus facilities, a dedicated faculty, and a well-rounded curriculum.

As campus doors swung open to nearly 1,000 students in September, spacious new facilities greeted them. Students found a new Fine Arts Building, complete with drama workshops and dressing rooms, art studios, vocal and instrumental practice areas and a 1,200 seat auditorium.

Also completed was a 15,000 square foot expansion of the Student Union which added a larger snack bar, student store, post office and individual dining rooms.

In addition, the administrative staff moved into the new Horner Administration Building.

And construction still continues at Methodist as the college comes nearer to its original proposal of 21 buildings. With 17 structures completed, work on the Hensdale Chapel is now underway. Future buildings include the permanent gymnasium, a maintenance and repair building and the field house.

Also beautifying the campus and enriching the extracurricular program will be the Michael Terrence O'Hanlon Memorial Amphitheatre, the first half of which will be completed by spring 1969. Built along the shores of a sylvan-set mini-lake, the amphitheatre will be used for outdoor religious services and dramatic productions.

MORE

In addition to new buildings, the college also took strides in its academic program adding a sociology major, an art minor and new courses in other areas. Methodist now offers 13 majors, 17 minors and nearly 300 courses.

During summer session 1969 the education curriculum will add an audio-visual aids course, an outgrowth of the fast-growing Audio-Visual Aids Center.

To enable the expansion of the academic program and maintain a 16-1 student-faculty ratio, Methodist also increased its faculty to 66.

In extracurricular activities the new Fine Arts Building enabled the college to broaden its concert-lecture series, its drama productions and art exhibits. Some of the 1968-69 offerings are the North Carolina Symphony Orchestra, Jose Greco and Company (dance troupe), and Tennessee William's drama, "The Glass Menagerie."

In addition, spring 1969 finds Methodist entering a varsity baseball team in the Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference after capturing the conference crown for the basketball season. Baseball brings Methodist's total of DIAC sports to eight.

SCIENTIST-PHILOSOPHER TO APPEAR AT METHODIST

FAYETTEVILLE - Methodist College will soon present on its campus a man who has combined the two fields of science and religion.

Dr. George K. Schweitzer, who holds the Ph.D. in inorganic chemistry (University of Illinois), a second Ph.D. in philosophy of religion (New York University), and an Sc.D. for work in history of science (Central College), will speak Wednesday, March 26, 8 p.m., Reeves Auditorium.

Dr. Schweitzer will lecture on the topic, "Philosophy: A Bridge Between Religion and Science." The event is part of the college Concert-Lecture Series.

Presently professor of chemistry at the University of Tennessee (Knoxville), Dr. Schweitzer's duties include teaching and directing research in the fields of inorganic and nuclear chemistry both on the main campus and at the Oak Ridge division of the university.

The professor also holds a B.A. in chemistry from Central College, an M.S. in geochemistry from the University of Illinois and an M.A. in religion from Columbia University and Union Theological Seminary.

Dr. Schweitzer is the author of over 80 papers in inorganic and nuclear chemistry, a textbook on radioactivity, a book on the doctorate, numerous papers in the intersecting spheres of science, philosophy, and religion, and numerous essays.

MORE

ADD ONE-Methodist College speaker

The scientist-philosopher holds membership in Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi, The American Chemical Society, The American Philosophical Association, and The History of Science Society. He has acted as scientific consultant for the Atomic Energy Commission, Monsanto, Proctor and Gamble, American Cyanamid, and the Army Radiological Defense Laboratories.

Campus speaking engagements have taken Dr. Schweitzer to over 100 colleges and universities where he has lectured on science, philosophy and religion. He has led numerous religious convocations and religion-in-life weeks, held over 20 endowed lectureships, and conducted spiritual emphasis meetings in many churches of differing denominations.

Dr. Schweitzer's lecture is open to the public at no charge.

METHODIST GETS AAUW APPROVAL

FAYETTEVILLE - Methodist College women graduates will now be eligible to join the American Association of University Women (AAUW), L. Stacy Weaver, president, has announced.

Eligibility was granted when Methodist College was placed on the AAUW list of recognized universities and colleges, Dr. Weaver said.

Women holding the baccalaureate or a higher degree from recognized colleges and universities (over 975 nationwide) are eligible to join the AAUW. Recognition of Methodist College is retroactive to the first graduating class (1964) making all M.C. women graduates eligible.

AAUW, headquartered in Washington, D.C., numbers more than 175,000 nationwide with over 1,625 branches in the 50 states, the District of Columbia and Guam.

The organization, which had its beginning in 1882, offers a "program to enable college women to continue their own intellectual growth, to further the advancement of women, and to discharge the special responsibilities to society of those who have enjoyed the advantage of higher education."

Each year AAUW awards approximately $350,000 through its fellowship program to about 100 women scholars for study leading to the doctorate.

On the worldwide level, AAUW holds membership in the International Federation of University Women which has units associated in 52 lands.

Locally, a branch of the national group received certification in January of this year. Miss Carolyn Graves serves as president of the local branch which meets on the last Tuesday of each month. For additional information those interested may call Mrs. Raymond Luper, membership chairman, at 484-2518.

What is it like to be a working college student? Does working hinder studying? Do grades consequently suffer?

For two Fayetteville coeds, squeezing hours of campus employment between classes and studies presents special problems, but offers definite rewards.

To Patsy Hall and Karen Job, both students at Methodist College, earning a college degree will be the key to opening a career in teaching.

Now in her second semester of college, Patsy Hall manages to work about 10 hours each week in the Office of Admissions and the Registrar where she performs secretarial duties.

A Dean's List student (3.0 or better), Patsy remarks that working "helps you learn to budget your time."

Karen Job, now in her junior year, is also a Dean's List student. More experienced at managing the work-study schedule, Karen works upwards of 15 hours each week as a part-time secretary in the Department of Development.

"When I'm not working or attending class, I'm studying," Karen explains. "You do, however, have to sacrifice some outside activities when you work. There are some campus clubs that I would like to be more active in but simply don't have the time."

Karen also agrees that working teaches a student to budget his time better.

MORE

ADD ONE--working coeds

Both coeds are "day" students at Methodist, living off campus and commuting to and from classes each day.

Patsy, who is a native of Fayetteville, lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall, and one sister, Bonnie, on a small farm about 21 miles from campus.

"I have no trouble studying at home," Patsy finds. She attributes this to the "quiet" atmosphere found in her home.

Karen, the daughter of Lt. Col. Ret. and Mrs. Jesse C. Job, also lives at home a few miles from campus. Two younger brothers and a sister do not keep her from studies either as "they usually have homework also."

A transfer student, Karen has lived in a girls' dormitory and remarks that "there are just as many diversions to keep you from studying in a dorm as there are at home.

"It was difficult to find a quiet place ^{in the dorm} at times, but I enjoy a challenge," she adds.

As both coeds work as secretarial assistants in administrative offices, they must put in their hours of work between 8 and 5.

Both agree that this makes a very tight schedule during the daytime, but point out that evenings are then left free for studies.

Students who work at jobs in the evenings have a different scheduling problem, but doing it successfully "is all a matter of learning to budget your time."

Karen does feel fortunate in finding work as a secretary and explains how she happened to be prepared for the position:

"I was undecided about the future when I finished high school, so I went to secretarial school first. Now I'm finding that year spend gaining secretarial know-how is an asset when seeking campus and summer employment."

MORE

ADD TWO--working coeds

Scholarships also help to pay college expenses for the two. Patsy holds a Methodist College Merit Scholarship and the Fayetteville Business and Professional Women's Scholarship.

Karen holds the Karl H. Berns Scholarship (from the Ernestine Matthews Trust) and has also received a North Carolina State Teachers Scholarship.

Academically, literature holds the interest of both Karen and Patsy although their approach to a career is different.

Karen aspires to teach eventually on the college level. But, just as she first went to secretarial school before entering college, so she has selected a practical means of reaching for an advanced degree. With the Bachelor's degree, she plans to teach on the elementary level while working toward the higher degrees.

Patsy plans to teach on the secondary level. "I love to read and to write, and I hope that I can instill this same feeling in my students," she says.

V. C. CHORUS PRESENTS SPRING CONCERT SATURDAY

FAYETTEVILLE - The Methodist College Chorus will lead off its schedule of spring performances Saturday, March 29, 8 p.m., with its annual spring concert at Reeves Auditorium on campus.

Twenty-seven voices strong, the chorus is under the direction of Alan M. Porter, assistant professor of voice now in his sixth year at Methodist. Porter also serves as choir director at the Hay Street United Methodist Church.

According to Porter, students achieve chorus membership through audition and come from all academic areas with about one-third of the group being music majors.

In addition to performances in the Fayetteville area, the chorus has toured throughout the Southeastern United States and recently returned from a concert tour which took them through South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Saturday's concert will begin with sacred music of differing styles and will close with secular selections such as "Love is Blue," "High Hopes," "All Through the Night," and "Cindy."

Among the great composers whose works will be performed are Hassler, Handel, Brahms, Tschernokoff and Cherubini. The group will also present in the original Latin Te Deum Laudamus by Franz Joseph Haydn and two movements from the folk mass Rejoice by Herbert G. Draesel, Jr.

The concert is open to the public at no admission charge.
