STUDENT LEADERS MEET TONIGHT AT METHODIST

FAYETTEVILLE - Area colleges open tonight at Methodist College a two-day workshop on student government.

"Student Government In Crisis" will bring together students from seven area colleges for an exchange of ideas and opinions about the relevancy of student governments.

Workshop coordinators Bill Blalock and Ronnie Russell, M. C. seniors, state that the aim of the meeting is "to iron out problems by giving alternative plans for student, faculty, and administrative action instead of student riots."

Sponsored by the Methodist College Student Government Association, the workshop also includes representatives from Fayetteville State College, Fayetteville Technical Institute, Worth College, Pembroke State College, St. Andrews College and Campbell College.

Speaking during the workshop will be Rep. Charles Taylor, minority leader of the N. C. State Legislature and William J. Briggs, dean of students at Pfeiffer College.

Other speakers include Mrs. Grace Overholser, assistant dean of students at St. Andrews College; H. L. Martin, director of auxiliary services of Samford University (Birmingham, Ala.); and Dr. L. Stacy Weaver, president of Methodist College.

The workshop begins tonight at 7 p.m. at Reeves Auditorium. Saturday's agenda opens with a plenary session at 9 a.m. at the auditorium.

RELIGION-HEALTH TALKS SET AT METHODIST

FAYETTEVILLE - Investigation begins tonight (Wednesday, April 2) at Methodist College of ethical, religious and social aspects of mental and physical health problems.

Through a four-week project, the Methodist College Interfaith Council is seeking to increase understanding and cooperation among theologians, physicians, psychiatrists and sociologists.

Called religion and health discussions, the four-week project will be led by a psychologist interested in theological questions, a sociologist, a psychiatrist and a physician.

Project emphasis will be placed upon the practical problems confronted by the minister, general practitioner, psychiatrist and social worker in their daily work, the Interfaith Council states.

Ample opportunity will be given for dialogue between the four discussion leaders and members of the audience.

Tonight's discussion leader will be Ingram Parmley, chairman of the Department of Mental Health at Sandhills Community College. Parmley will speak on "Religion, Theology and Health."

Formerly a Methodist College faculty member, Parmley holds an A.B. and an M.A. from Scarritt College (Nashville, Tenn.); a B.D. from Duke University and an M.A. from Peabody College (Nashville, Tenn.). In addition to his educational experience, he was a Methodist pastor with the Tennessee Annual Conference before coming to Methodist College.

FAYETTEVILLE - Campaign officials for the Methodist College Community Loyalty Fund Drive reported today (April 8, 1969) that the drive has reached the $104,000.00 mark.

About $89,000 of this figure is cash; the remainder ^{ing} $15,000 ~~£~~ represents pledges.

The $89,000 figure comes near the goal of $10,000 cash per month, according to R. O. McCoy, campaign chairman. Continued contributions should enable the campaign sponsor, the Methodist College Foundation, to reach its $120,000.00 goal by June 30, the end of fiscal 1968-69.

M. C. ALUMNI ORGANIZE IN RALEIGH-DURHAM

FAYETTEVILLE - Methodist College alumni recently organized the second chapter of the M.C. Alumni Association (MCAA), according to William P. Lowdermilk, director of public relations.

Comprising the Raleigh-Durham area, the new chapter is part of the overall program of increased alumni participation undertaken by the MCAA in 1968-69, Lowdermilk said.

The Raleigh-Durham chapter follows the Richmond (Va.) Area Chapter which was organized in January, 1969.

Officers elected for the Raleigh-Durham unit are: president, the Rev. Thomas S. Yow, III of Garner; vice-president, the Rev. W. Edward Barker (a student at the Southeastern Theological Seminary) and secretary-treasurer, Carol Stuart of Raleigh. Next chapter meeting will be May 3.

In Fayetteville, the MCAA has not as yet organized a chapter, Lowdermilk said, preferring to begin in areas of smaller membership before undertaking the organization of what will probably prove to be the largest individual chapter.

The MCAA began in 1964 when Methodist College (now in its ninth academic year) graduated its first class.

Bill Lowdermilk, Director of Public Relations

William Blalock, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Blalock, Sr. of 5427 Rodwell Road, Fayetteville, heads a cast of five in the Methodist College production April 29 and 30 of Samuel Beckett's tragicomedy, WAITING FOR GODOT. Blalock, a senior majoring in Business and Economics, is presently vice-president of the Methodist College Student Government Association and formerly president of the Campus Baptist Student Union and of Green and Gold Masque-Keys.

Blalock, in the role of Estragon, recreates the tramp-clown character made famous in America by the late Bert Lahr on Broadway in 1956. The protagonists are two tramps who wait on a dismal plain for the coming of Godot who will give meaning to their existence. A Master and his Slave arrive and are mistaken for Godot, but Godot seemingly never comes. The two are left waiting with only the assurance of a messenger that Godot will come tomorrow.

In the co-starring role of Vladimir will be Keith Hummer of Alexandria, Virginia. Hummer was elected president of his freshman class last fall. Another Virginian in the cast is Ronnie Bott of Falls Church. Bott, now a junior, was class president both his freshman and sophomore years. He portrays the shepherd boy messenger of the absent but awaited Godot.

Patrick Corn a freshman from Hendersonville, North Carolina, and John Williams, a freshman from Oceanport, New Jersey, complete the all-male cast in the roles of Pozzo (the Master) and Lucky (the Slave) respectively.

In announcing the production and cast, Mr. Raymond L. Conley, director and assistant professor of speech, noted that WAITING FOR GODOT is the only acknowledged classic of the Theatre of the Absurd. Originally written in French by the Irish playwright Samuel Beckett, the play ran for over 400 performances in its Paris production in 1953.

The New York production in 1956 had a long run largely due to the presence of the late Bert Lahr in the cast. GODOT became the "in" thing and some theaterlovers returned time and again to try to decode the meaning of the strange dialogue and the inaction of the two tramps waiting for two acts for a character that never arrives.

David Bouteiller, house manager, reminds the public that this Methodist College dramatic production is free to the public. The play will be staged in Reeves Auditorium at 8:00 o'clock on April 29 and 30.

(Left to Right) Bill Blalock, John Williams and Keith Hummer rehearse for the April 29 and 30 production of WAITING FOR GODOT in Reeves Auditorium at Methodist College.

Dear Mr. Lowdermilk,

We are planning to have a roundup on college commencement activities in the May 8 issue of the North Carolina Christian Advocate.

As soon as your plans are final, will you please send us the following information:

Baccalaureate sermon: date, time, place, preacher and biographical material.

Commencement exercises: date, time, place, speaker and biographical material.

Any special activities in connection with graduation.

Will you please send us glossy prints of your speakers? Since we have changed to offset, we cannot use mats or cuts.

We need to have this material in hand by April 29.

Thank you for your helpfulness and courtesy over the past year.

Sincerely,

METHODIST COLLEGE COEDS PLAN SUMMER OF STUDY IN SPAIN

A summer in Spain awaits two Methodist College coeds, Judy Carroll and Rainelle Dixon.

Both Judy and Rainelle will be students for a summer session at the University of Madrid where they will be studying the Spanish language and the culture of Spain.

Following their four-week stay on the Madrid campus, the coeds will embark on a two-week tour of southern Spain.

Traditionally a project of the Methodist College Esperanza Spanish Club, the summer study program is aided by scholarships. Each year the Spanish club works on several projects to raise funds for the scholarship program.

According to the club adviser, Dr. Esperanza Escudero, Miss Carroll and Miss Dixon will be working for up to six semester hours of credit while in Spain.

Miss Carroll won the scholarship offered by the Esperanza Spanish Club for this summer. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth H. Carroll of Cary.

Although undecided about a career, Judy is considering work as an interpreter. She is a Spanish major at Methodist and will complete her freshman year in May.
