FAYETTEVILLE - "The Changing Church in a Changing Society" is the theme for the Faith and Life Week scheduled at Methodist College on February 16-20. Koinonia, the campus interdenominational Christian fellowship, is sponsoring the Week.

The Reverend Keith Tonkel, Pastor of Wells Memorial United Methodist Church in Jackson, Mississippi, has been selected as the leader for this event. He is Director of Wesley House, an interdenominational ministry to young adults which includes students from all of the colleges in Jackson. In addition to his church's ministry to the poor in "Operation Shoestring", Mr. Tonkel has two radio broadcasts. He and his wife have seven adopted children.

In an attempt to take the program to the students, sessions will be held in the lobbies of the campus residence halls on a rotating basis Monday through Thursday nights. The theme will be introduced on Monday night and Tuesday through Thursday nights will cover "Faith and Art", "Faith and Science" and "Faith and Politics". In addition to Mr. Tonkel, faculty and students will take part in the programs.

Mr. Tonkel will speak to the student body on Wednesday morning and close the week's program with a service in Hensdale Chapel on Friday morning.

FAYETTEVILLE - Collegiate legislators convene Wednesday through Saturday (March 4-7) in Raleigh for the annual session of the North Carolina Student Legislature (SSL).

Making its sixth trip to the SSL will be the Methodist College delegation, this year composed of ten students (5 regular delegates and 5 alternates and observers.)

Heading up MC's delegation this year are Warren Southerland as chairman and Natalie Schwoyer as co-chairman.

Southerland, a senior History major from Durham did his teacher internship in the Fayetteville City School System last semester. He is president of the Student Government Association Senate, is a member of the S.G.A. Executive Committee and is a member of the campus History Club.

Miss Schwoyer is a junior History major from Reading, Pennsylvania.

Other delegates to the SSL are: John Brown (House), a junior from Piscataway, New Jersey; Tommy Smith (House), a sophomore from Sandston, Virginia; and Howard Arden (House), a senior from Scarsdale, New York.

Alternates and observers include: (Senate) Frank Lee, a senior from Arlington, Virginia; (House) Elva Jess, a junior from Kensington, Maryland; (House) Jim Russell, a senior from Arlington, Virginia; (Senate) Maurine Davidson, a freshman from Raleigh, North Carolina and Virginia Aydlett (House), a sophomore from Elizabeth City, North Carolina.

The North Carolina SSL was the second such state body to be formed in the nation. Over 20 colleges and universities across North Carolina affiliate with SSL. Each member college selects and sends delegates to the annual sessions. Each college has the opportunity to present at least one bill or resolution.

Methodist's proposed bill for the 1970 session is a bill making the people aware of the problems of over population and putting a chapter in the secondary school health textbook on the subject.
