The College News Seminar Of The Carolinas

Founded in 1963 to assist college officials concerned with the operation of news services, the preparation of college publications, and duties connected with public relations programs.

July 19, 1971

Dear College Newsman:

In the words of a famous American, "let us make this perfectly clear. "

The College News Seminar of The Carolinas conference begins on Thursday, August 5 (not August 4) after lunch and ends formally on Saturday afternoon. . . informally on Sunday at noon.

Also the dress of the conference will be informal. Keep in mind you can relax while sharing knowledge with some other top-knotch participants.

Lewis Gaston has done a great job in preparing for the conference. . . as he has in the past. The price is low and your institution will benefit from your visit to Appalachian State University's campus.* Keep in mind that Lewis receives no bonus for arranging this conference. We all owe him a vote of thanks. Take a moment and send in your advance registration so Lewis will know he can count on you.

Registration fees are: Participant, $12.00 (includes Steak Cook-In, Buffet and Friday lunch)

Spouse or child of participant, $8.00 (includes the three meals)

Room Fees:

Lodging in Cannon Dormitory is $4 per person per night. There is no charge for children with cots, sleeping bags, pallets, etc., in your room. The room does include linens, blankets, towels, soap and wash cloths. It has two single beds. It may be prudent to bring an extra blanket.

Checks may be made payable to the College News Seminar and mailed with the registration form to Lewis Gaston, Appalachian State University, Boone, N. C., 28607.

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. --- Over 260 young people convened at Methodist College Monday for the week-long Annual Conference Session (ACS) of the United Methodist Youth Fellowship (UMYF).

With the theme "Reach Out," the twentieth annual session began with an orientation meeting in Reeves Auditorium. Miss Genie Jordan of Mt. Gilead, ACS youth chairman, and David Cordts of Rocky Mount, president of the Conference UMYF, are among the coordinators of the activities.

Special study-workshop subjects scheduled concern contemporary worship techniques, over-population, special education and ministries, race relations, environmental issues, drama, graphic arts and UMYF activities.

Special entertainment and speakers have been scheduled.

A multi-film presentation of the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar" was made Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hanger. Hanger, a Methodist minister from Atlanta, Ga., has a multi-media jazz group called the Howard Hanger Trio.

Wednesday evening the Honorable Marion George, Fayetteville City Councilman, will address the session at 8:45 p.m. in Reeves Auditorium.

The delegates represent their respective churches in North Carolina. A staff of 45 adults are training them. The Methodist session closes Friday, July 23, at 11:00 a.m. Rev. F. Belton Joyner, Jr., is Conference coordinator of youth ministry.

Howard Hanger Teaches Methodist Youth New Ways of Worship

By Jean Hutchinson

488-7110, Ext. 228, Public Relations Office

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.-----The twentieth annual conference of the United Methodist Youth Fellowship in North Carolina ended as it began -- with joyful celebration. Perhaps Howard Hanger, a Methodist misfit, was largely responsible.

As conference guest resource person, invited by the youth leaders, Hanger directed worship activities in a liberal manner fully appreciated by and tailored for the 260 teenage delegates sent by the UMYF groups of their respective churches.

Hanger ministered, wearing bellbottoms and long hair, by playing the piano in the UMYF combo, by teaching the delegates to be freer in expressing themselves, in sharing, in loving their "brothers and sisters," and in celebrating God.

"Your life is a ministry. My life is my ministry. A life of love must be followed -- this is the first commandment," 27-year-old Hanger said.

A free-lance minister from Atlanta, Ga., Hanger is a member of the South Dakota United Methodist Conference. He presents "expression celebrations" on private college campuses in the northeast and midwest. Monday night the UMYF delegates at Methodist College heard the full rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar" with Hanger's film augmentation.

With musicians Rob Jackson and David Cole, Hanger tours from Atlanta with his Howard ^{Hanger} Trio, featuring "An Experience in Jazz." He uses his musical talents in college and conference presentations.

"Jazz is good for celebration or worship. It's innovative. We begin with a pattern and tailor it to the group," Hanger explained. He added that jazz-rock is becoming his current style, since it appeals more to high school and college students.

In the six services he conducted on the local campus, Hanger played piano with the youth ^{combo} band. Much of the fascination and appeal of his ministry is in his piano-playing. It is unrestrained, exciting, expressive. Many songs used in the worship services last week were composed by Hanger.

Through planned techniques, Hanger involved the teenagers in free-floating exercises in which they could express their feelings by sharing with others, through sight, touch and movement -- not with mind and voice only. He showed them how to "reach out" and love their neighbors without prejudice and inhibition.

Hanger, an ordained Methodist minister, earned his B. A. degree in sociology at Emory University. He holds a B. D. degree from Candler School of Theology at Emory.

About the Jesus movement, Hanger said that too many participants are rejecting the world and its many problems and retreating into religion. "A return to pietism is not what is needed," he said. "You must have discipline to do things you don't want to do, but religious groups should not dictate the rules." The Church today does not meet the needs of the people. Paradoxically, when they get to the heart of the faith, many reject the institutional Church as it exists today."

Those attending the UMYF meet studied current national and universal issues -- over-population, environmental problems, the draft, sex, institutional reform, race relations. But they generally agreed that Hanger helped more in showing them what Christianity is. They lamented that "those back home" in their church groups would never share their experiences.

Hanger closed the conference session Friday with a communion service on the lawn in front of the chapel on campus. The mass began in communal sharing of cheese and apples among delegates and counselors before communion elements were shared. Contemporary songs of praise were accompanied by the ^{combo}~~band~~.

Through fellowship, the participants were joyful, not solemn. Joining hands, they closed in a huge circle of friendship -- many wept openly in confession and joy. In a new way and with fuller meaning, they were celebrating their faith.

J. Hutchinson

The 1971 North Carolina Association of Educators' Leadership Conference (Wed.) adjourned yesterday at Methodist College following nearly three days of intensive training designed to strengthen the educators' influence on public life in North Carolina.

The workshop was attended by some 300 public school educators from across North Carolina who are leaders in local units of the NCAE.

The workshop opened Sunday evening for the purpose of training local NCAE association leaders in the methods of organizing teachers on the local level and strengthening their voice in public and political life.

Over 200 members of the NCAE Division of Classroom Teachers are now in session at Methodist College. They will adjourn their conference Friday morning.

Political action was among the activities emphasized at the NCAE conference just ended. PACE (Political Action Committee for Education), the statewide political arm of the teachers in North Carolina, was the subject of much of the work. Training for the local leaders in political activity was one of the major aspects of leadership examined.

(The NCAE decided to use PACE during this year's General Assembly when it became clear that political involvement would be a must for the state's educators in the future if they were to have any hopes of improving the financial support provided public education across North Carolina.)

Other topics studied in the NCAE workshop included human relations, public relations, school finance, and membership campaigns, all of which relate directly to political action on the state and local level. The organization and implementation of activity on the local level was stressed.

The role of the teaching profession and its rights and responsibilities in today's world were also discussed, and the role of the local NCAE units in obtaining them was another major theme of the conference.

Local Resident Named to National Awards Volume

Jean Hutchinson, Public Relations Office
488-7110, Ext. 228

FAYETTEVILLE, NC.-----Miss Charlotte A. Carmine of Richmond, Va., and Miss Cynthia A. Walker of Henderson, N. C., have been selected Outstanding Young Women for 1971, according to an announcement by the Methodist College Alumni Association. They were nominated by the association earlier this year on the basis of their achievements.

Miss Carmine is a 1969 graduate of Methodist College. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Carmine, Jr., she is an employee of Carmine Foods, Inc., in Richmond. She was recently reappointed chairman of the chapters committee of the Methodist College Alumni Association in which she has served actively.

Miss Walker is a 1965 graduate of Methodist College. The daughter of Mrs. Harry Walker, she lives in Henderson and is employed as a school librarian. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Methodist College Alumni Association in which she has served actively.

The Outstanding Young Women of America program, now in its seventh year, was conceived by the leaders of the nation's major women's organizations. The program recognizes young women between the ages of 21 and 35 for their contributions to the betterment of their communities, professions, and country. Serving on the program's Board of Advisors are the national presidents of women's clubs, headed by Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, honorary president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Each year over 6,000 young women are nominated as Outstanding Young Women of America by leading women's organizations, college alumni associations, and churches across the country. Complete biographical sketches of all nominees are featured in the national volume, OUTSTANDING YOUNG WOMEN OF AMERICA.

These women are now in competition for their states' Outstanding Young Woman of the Year Award. This fall, fifty of the young women included in OUTSTANDING YOUNG WOMEN OF AMERICA -- one from each state -- will be named as their state's Outstanding Young Woman of the Year.

Publication date for the 1971 volume is November.

Spivey's Corner Resident Named To Awards Volume

Jean Hutchinson, Public Relations Office
488-7110, Ext. 228

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C.-----Larry M. Barnes of Spivey's Corner has been named for inclusion in the 1971 edition of OUTSTANDING YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA, a spokesman has announced. Barnes was chosen for the annual awards volume in recognition of his professional and community leadership.

Sponsored by leading men's civic and service organizations, OUTSTANDING YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA honors men between the ages of 21 and 35 "whose demonstrated excellence has marked them for future leadership in the nation."

Barnes is a 1962 graduate of Fayetteville Senior High School in Fayetteville and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Barnes of that city. A 1966 graduate of Methodist College, he formerly taught school in Cumberland County. He served actively as president of the Methodist College Alumni Association from 1968-70. He was reappointed chairman of the liaison committee in the association recently. In May Barnes was awarded the second annual Outstanding Alumni Service Award by the board of directors of the Methodist College Alumni Association. His wife, Judith Bass Barnes, is a 1968 graduate of Methodist College.

Also named for inclusion in the awards volume is Rev. Tommy Yow of Fayetteville. Yow is a 1966 graduate of Methodist College.

"These young men," according to Doug Blankenship, Chairman of the Board of Advisory Editors, OUTSTANDING YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA, "are truly outstanding because they have distinguished themselves in one or more aspects of community and professional life." Blankenship was U.S. Jaycee president in 1962-63.

Nominations for the awards volume are submitted each year by civic organizations, Jaycee chapters, college alumni associations, and military commandants.

President Nixon, complimenting the awards volume, has said, "OUTSTANDING YOUNG MEN OF AMERICA presents a most fitting testimonial, not only to the success of success of many of our young people, but also to their awareness of the debt which they owe our free society."

Publication date for the 1971 edition is November.

Cynthia A. Walker (of Henderson, N. C.)

Charlotte Carmine (of Richmond, Va.)

The young women named above have been selected Outstanding Young Women for 1971, according to an announcement today by the Methodist College Alumni Association. They were nominated by the organization earlier this year on the basis of their achievements.

The Outstanding Young Women of America program, now in its seventh year, was conceived by the leaders of the nation's major women's organizations. The program recognizes young women between the ages of 21 and 35 for their contributions to the betterment of their communities, professions, and country. Serving on the program's Board of Advisors are the national presidents of women's clubs, headed by Mrs. Dexter Otis Arnold, honorary president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Each year over 6,000 young women are nominated as Outstanding Young Women of America by leading women's organizations, college alumni associations, and churches across the country. Complete biographical sketches of all nominees are featured in the national volume, OUTSTANDING YOUNG WOMEN OF AMERICA.

These women are now in competition for their states' Outstanding Young Woman of the Year Award. This fall, fifty of the young women
