Mr. Dwight Lamar Sheppard of Erwin won first prize in the first "Sidewalk Drawing Contest" held at Methodist College.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman B. Sheppard of 402 South 7th, Mr. Sheppard competed Saturday, November 3, in the contest, which was part of the annual Homecoming weekend festivities.

Students, faculty and members of the college administration staff had the opportunity to show their talent. Contestants drew on the sidewalks around the college Bell Tower. Chalk in a variety of shades was sold for $1 to all contestants.

Mr. Sheppard, a second semester junior business administration major, said his entry was "a general abstract...with a theme mainly about the preceding evening's Homecoming Dance, which was held at Fayetteville's Ramada Inn." Included in his drawing were a coke can, a beer can, a chimney, clock and a cracked wall...all symbolic of the good time had by all who attended the dance.

Mr. Sheppard also received $50 for his winning entry.

Grants totaling more than $49,050 were distributed to 41 privately supported colleges and universities in North Carolina this week by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation.

Methodist College received a $2,000 Library Grant. Presenting the gift to Methodist College president, Dr. Richard W. Pearce, was Mr. A.E. Rummans, manager of the local Sears-Roebuck Stores.

The North Carolina colleges and universities are among an estimated 950 private, accredited two and four-year institutions across the country which are sharing in $1,650,000 in Sears Foundation funds.

Nationally, private colleges and universities will receive $1,150,000 in unrestricted grants and an additional $500,000 through a Sears Foundation program to assist college and university libraries.

The unrestricted funds may be used as the colleges and universities deem necessary. The library grant program is designed to supplement the normal book acquisition budgets of the participating institutions.

In addition to its unrestricted and college library grant program, the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, during the current year, will invest more than $1,100,000 in a variety of other education activities, Mr. Rummans said. This will bring the budgeted education expenditures of the Sears-Roebuck Foundation to more than $2,750,000 this year.

Grants totaling more than $49,050 will be distributed to 41 privately supported colleges and universities in North Carolina this week by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, Mr. A. E. Rummans said today.

In the Fayetteville area, Methodist College will receive grants totaling $2,000.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ABOUT THE 1973
SEARS FOUNDATION COLLEGE LIBRARY GRANT PROGRAM

QUESTION: Why is The Sears Foundation conducting a college library grant program?

ANSWER: For the fifth consecutive year, The Sears Foundation is making grants totaling $500,000 this fall to strengthen private college libraries in recognition of the fact that many of this country's two- and four-year colleges fall below accepted minimum standards in the number of volumes in their libraries.

QUESTION: Does the college library program affect The Sears Foundation unrestricted grant program?

ANSWER: No. The Sears Foundation this fall will make unrestricted grants totaling $1,125,000 to private colleges and universities. The $500,000 college library program supplements the unrestricted grant program. Under these two programs of support, an individual private college may receive an entirely unrestricted grant, a grant reserved exclusively for strengthening its library, or a combination grant - part unrestricted and part reserved for the college library.

QUESTION: How are the colleges receiving Sears Foundation library grants to use these funds?

ANSWER: The board of directors of The Sears-Roebuck Foundation has requested that these funds be used exclusively for the acquisition of books rather than for any of the other needs of the college library. Since most colleges normally have requests for the purchase of books which exceed their acquisition budgets, it is in this particular area of need in which The Sears Foundation wishes its funds to be used.

QUESTION: How are Sears Foundation library grants to be made known?

ANSWER: It is hoped that colleges will recognize Sears Foundation grants to their libraries by placing Sears Foundation book plates in books purchased with our funds. A supply of these book plates is available for presentation to colleges receiving library grants.

QUESTION: How was The Sears Foundation book plate developed?

ANSWER: The Sears Foundation book plate was developed in consultation with the staff of Northwestern University Library and Newberry Library of Chicago. Incorporating the logotype of The Sears Foundation, the plate is small enough to be used in conjunction with the college or university's own book plate, and may be used in books of virtually any size from the largest to the smallest. The back of the plate is gummed. But additional gumming, though unnecessary, will not harm it. Both the gumming and the paper stock are of an acidity which will not harm even a rare and delicate book.

QUESTION: Many colleges recognize donors of books with special book plates of their own. May a college use its own plates rather than The Sears Foundation plates?

ANSWER: Yes.

QUESTION: Some university libraries have hundreds of thousands of books in their collections. Within these collections, does The Sears Foundation have any special area of interest?

ANSWER: Yes. Our areas of interest include reference books and such subjects as business, retailing, marketing, economics, and career guidance. The Sears Foundation, however, does not wish to restrict the use of its funds solely to these areas, and feels the colleges and universities themselves are best qualified to judge their book acquisition needs.

QUESTION: If the college administrator does not wish to increase his book acquisition budget by the amount of The Sears Foundation library grant, can he take away some of his own funds so that the total library book acquisition budget remains the same?

ANSWER: No. Because college libraries are in need of additional aid for book acquisitions, we do not wish grants to result in a subtraction of the college's own funds from its book acquisition budget.

QUESTION: Can part of a Sears Foundation library grant be used to cover the expenses of processing and cataloging the books purchased with The Sears Foundation grant?

ANSWER: It is hoped that the colleges will assume the cost of processing and cataloging books purchased with The Sears Foundation grant.
