As far as my background, the first thing you should know is that I am not Dr. Akers. I'm only a doctoral candidate -at the University of Texas in Austin. I will be returning to Austin in the fall to work on a dissertation. My undergraduate degree -a B.A.- is from Oberlin College in Ohio.

The topic of my dissertation is undecided, but will be in the general area of experimental personality research. Within parapsychology, my interests are 1) the effect of the experimenter on psi test results, 2) the influence of physical variables on psi, and 3) methodological questions, such as testing target sequences for randomness.

Other information -I've been a research assistant at the Institute for a little over a year -conducting experiments (mostly unsuccessful!), doing some computer programming for the staff, and working on the Journal (editing). I came to Durham about two years ago, at which time I was rather sceptical about the field of parapsychology.

I've been thinking in terms of a fifty minute talk, with half an hour for questions. If this is not the right time frame, please let me know.

Sincerely yours,
Chuck Akers

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The establishment of the Charlotte Lessem Memorial Scholarships at Methodist College has been announced today.

A resident of Fayetteville since the age of 10, Miss Lessem was a part-time student at Methodist College since its opening in 1960. Every semester, Miss Lessem took courses "for enrichment."

A graduate of Fayetteville Central School, where she was a Stedman Essay Winner, Miss Lessem attended Virginia Intermont College, Flora McDonald College and the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina(now UNC-G), where she majored in education.

Miss Lessem held an R.N. diploma with honors from the Brooklyn(N.Y.) Jewish Hospital. She taught in the Turkey(N.C.) Schools and also taught biology to the student nurses at the former Pittman Hospital in Fayetteville.

In recognition of her accomplishments at Methodist College, the Academic Affairs Committee of the Methodist College faculty originated the idea for the memorial scholarships bearing her name. In response to this, at its meeting earlier this week, the Methodist College Board of Trustees unanimously voted to award up to 10 tuition-free scholarships for people 65 years of age and over.

Methodist College President, Dr. Richard W. Pearce said, "we are pleased we may honor Miss Lessem through these memorial scholarships. A vital part of our college community for more than 11 years, she exemplifies the type of individuals we hope will avail themselves of these scholarships. Continuing

An all-day economy, energy and ecology seminar was held Saturday, April 6, at Methodist College.

At the morning session held in Reeves Auditorium, five speakers gave their views of the current crisis.

Gen. John Tolson, secretary, State of North Carolina Department of Military and Veterans' Affairs, said "we waste fuel and energy just as we waste everything else in our society. The only recourse to the problem is immediate conservation. If usage keeps increasing, our resources will be in short supply for many years to come."

Discussing the government's role in the crisis, Congressman Charlie Rose said, "I'm not impressed with how the government's long range planners have tackled the problem. They're not as concerned with the economic situation as they should be. We've got to move forward and make use of our nuclear generation facilities."

Carolina Power and Light Co. President Shearon Harris explained that because of the Arab oil embargo, the United States may lose its options needed to cope with the crisis. "However, CP&L will continue to meet the growing needs of its customers. But, we must realize all forms of energy will cost more if our nation remains in an inflationary cycle."

"If we continue to use our fuel resources at the present level, we will have depleted:oil by 1990, gas by 1995 and coal by 2050. It's our duty to restore the land to its natural state,"he added.

Fayetteville architect Dan MacMillan pointed out that everything architects design today to conserve energy should have been done long ago. Skyscrapers will soon become glass menageries. Architects are beginning to discover their creations have become mausoleums. Everything we do must be done precisely to create an effective end result."

"Although the environmental movement has been accused of the major downfall of the energy shortage, we plead not guilty, " according to James R. Westlake, senior staff advisor, Environmental Protection Agency, Atlanta, Ga. "We have allowed our demand for energy to exceed in too short a time, thus forcing us to increase our imports. It's necessary to reduce resource demands and improve the quality of life. We should adapt to different travel and living standards as well as move back to inner-city living."

Methodist College President Dr. Richard W. Pearce, welcomed the guests and speakers. He explained in view of the energy crisis, Methodist has "reduced its electrical power by one-third and its heating oil by one-fourth."

Luncheon speaker, Roy Parker Jr., editor of The Fayetteville Times, explained that Cumberland County is one of the fastest changing areas in the eastern United States. "Twenty years ago, 60 per cent of the people lived in rural areas, compared with only 23 per cent today. The County has become one of the most urbanized areas in North Carolina. This change has brought psychological as well as physical problems to our area. If we do not keep up the goals of human change, the physical change may overwhelm us. We must always look to the future with great goals."

During the afternoon session, Methodist students Ed Kubisty and John Roberts gave demonstrations on thermopollution and instrumentation and monitoring of air pollution, respectively. The demonstrations were arranged by assistant professor of biology, Dr. Margaret D. Folsom.

Moderator of the seminar was Dr. Sudhakar Gautam, associate professor of economics at Methodist.

Help For The Local Community

Implementation of the Council Mandate is the responsibility of an Executive Director, two planning associates who handle research and planning, a career/manpower specialist who recruits for the field of developmental disabilities, conducts workshops, and examines statewide manpower needs, four regional supervisors and twenty local coordinators.

The Council has been most successful in bringing new programs and services for the developmentally disabled into the communities across the state. This has been done at the local level by area coordinators who are truly the "grass roots" workers in developmental disabilities. They serve as the vital link between the Council and the communities by keeping the central office advised of local needs and problems. A coordinator's responsibilities include:

1. informing the public about developmental disabilities
2. obtaining information for the community from the State office
3. local planning for the initiation and expansion of services for the developmentally disabled by coordinating the efforts of interested people.
4. work to avoid duplication of services
5. relating to the community possibilities of available funds
6. acting as resource person for parents and agencies
7. stimulating organized planning on behalf of the developmentally disabled.
8. directing interested people in finding appropriate volunteer work in the field of developmental disabilities.

The Council on Developmental Disabilities will continue in its efforts to fulfill the duties designated to the Council and the Council staff. It is the hope of the Council staff that all the developmentally disabled in North Carolina will receive the services that they must have to fulfill their needs. It is to this end that we dedicate ourselves.

Council On Developmental Disabilities

An inter-agency planning body in the Department of Human Resources providing planning and channels for coordination at federal, state and local levels to the problems associated with developmental disabilities.

COUNCIL ON DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES

The Council on Developmental Disabilities has the mandate to plan for services for persons with disabilities attributable to mental retardation, cerebral palsy, epilepsy, and other neurological conditions which require similar treatment to that for mental retardation, constitute a substantial handicap, occur before the age of 18, and has continued, or is expected to continue indefinitely.

Art by Frances N. Love
"Fitting It Together"

To Begin With . . .

The idea of the council was originated in 1961 when a group of concerned citizens approached Governor Terry Sanford regarding the dimensions of mental retardation in North Carolina. This concern led to the appointment of a Governor's Commission to Study the Needs of the Mentally Retarded in early 1962. As a result of this study commission's report, the 1963 General Assembly set up the North Carolina Council on Mental Retardation. During the first three years of its existence, the Council on Mental Retardation concentrated its efforts on research and comprehensive planning. National interest in the problem of mental retardation had resulted in federal legislation with allocations to the states, which made funds available to the states for planning in this field. In 1965 a grant proposal was written to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in two phases. Phase I stated that the purpose of the Council was "to assist" in continuing and implementing planning and in taking steps to combat mental retardation in North Carolina. Phase II established community coordinators who would become "generalists" in mental retardation, the needs of children, and community organization. The grant was approved and the Council, with an executive director, secretary, two planning associates, and two area coordinators expanded its work to the local level in 1966. Since that time, the state budget has absorbed the costs of the Council and has expanded the field staff to twenty coordinators.

To Plan For The Future . . .

The responsibilities and concerns of the North Carolina Council on Mental Retardation were broadened considerably by legislation of the 1971 General Assembly. At this time the Council name was changed to the Council on Developmental Disabilities and the mandate was changed to include planning for all developmentally disabled persons. The Council is now a part of the Department of Human Resources and its functions are:

1. to provide advice to the Secretary of Human Resources as will facilitate the implementation of the State Plan and the fulfillment of the requirements of Public Law 91-517, the Developmental Disabilities Services Act.
2. to study ways and means of promoting public understanding of developmental disabilities; to consider the need for new State programs and laws in the field of developmental disabilities; and to make recommendations to and advise the Secretary of Human Resources on matters relating to developmental disabilities;
3. to advise in the preparation of a plan describing the quality, extent and scope of services being provided to persons with developmental disabilities in North Carolina;
4. to examine programs of all State agencies which provide services for developmentally disabled persons and to make recommendations to the Secretary for coordination of programs to prevent duplication and overlapping of such services; and
5. to advise the Secretary of Human Resources upon any matter he refers to the Council.

METHODIST'S TOLAR HURLS NO-HITTER,
HITS HOMER TO WIN "PLAYER OF WEEK"

PEMBROKE--Sammy Tolar, Methodist College's superb pitching and hitting star, fired his second no-hitter of the spring in the first game of a twin bill and hit a three-run homer in the second contest Friday to win NAIA District 29 "Baseball Player of the Week" for the second time of the young season.

The roundtripper was the third of the campaign for Tolar, who bats as the designated hitter when he is not on the mound.

The no-hitter was the third of his career for the 6-foot-1 Tolar, a sophomore from Hope Mills. His victim was N.C. Wesleyan by a 6-0 score. His three-run homer in the second game helped the Monarchs to an 8-0 triumph.

There were other baseball heroics during the week.

Catcher Bob Martin of N. C. Wesleyan, a senior from Alexandria, Va. hit three home runs in a doubleheader and drove in seven runs. Wesleyan split the twin bill with Virginia State. Martin had four hits in six trips to bat in the pair of contests.

Lynchburg's outfielder-third baseman, Steve Oakes, a sophomore from Rocky Mount, Va., hammered 14 hits in 21 times at bat during the week for a .667 average. Oakes also drove in six runs. His hits included four doubles and two triples.

Pembroke State's left fielder, Randy Ledford, added new spark to the Braves from his cleanup spot in the batting order with five hits in seven tries during the week for a .714 average. A 6-foot-2 junior from Fayetteville, Ledford drove in three runs Saturday as the Braves won at N. C. State 8-2.

Subject Area Meeting

The Area Meetings on Saturday afternoon are set up to allow discussion with the faculty in the area in which you received your major. You will be informed of the new programs and the plans for the future. You will also have the opportunity of making suggestion through evaluating your academic preparation at Methodist. Please check on the form below which area meeting you wish to attend so the faculty can adjust room accommodations accordingly.

Alumni vs Faculty - Staff Softball Game and Chorus Reunion.

Both of these events were most enjoyable last May. We do hope you will plan to participate this year. Eddie Williams is coordinating the softball game. Ken Williams is making the arrangements for the Chorus Reunion.

Alumni Dinner - Dance

We are pleased to announce that this year the Alumni Dinner will be a semi-formal event. Immediately following the dinner will be a dance upstairs in the Student Union at which the College Stage Band will play. Admission for the dinner is $2.50 per plate. The dance is free of charge.

April 8, 1974

Dear Sir:

The Methodist College Student Government Association is sponsoring a "Professional Occupational Opportunity Night" to be held on Tuesday, April 30 at 7:00 p.m. We would be very happy to have your students join us for this meeting. Members of a variety of professions and several industry recruiters have been invited to attend. It should prove to be a very interesting and helpful evening for students who are searching for a profession that will fill their needs.

We would appreciate it if you would advertise this meeting in your school. The information again is --- "Professional Occupational Opportunity Night" will be held April 30 at 7:00 p.m. in the upstairs of the Methodist College Student Union. We hope that through this evening our college may be of service to your students.

Sincerely yours,

Mary M Spilman

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

When North Carolina Gov. James E. Holshouser came to Methodist College late last month, he commended the students for "instituting a new fund raising drive, USA(United Student Appeal), which may result in millions of dollars for charity groups."

Accepting a check for more than $400 on behalf of the American Cancer Society, Gov. Holshouser said he would spread the word about USA not only throughout North Carolina, but also to other states. "I'm sure the success of your drive will be carried to other college campuses around the nation."

The drive was spearheaded by Mike Casey, Methodist College Student Government Association Senate president; and Fred Paddock, SGA vice president. The effort began when the local Methodist College students introduced a resolution at the March North Carolina Student Legislature convention, which was endorsed by the student house and Senate.

The college's SGA asked each Methodist College student to contribute at least 25¢ for the cancer society. "Just think of the possibility of every student in America donating 25¢ cents for charity groups in the nation. This would come to more than $2 million," said Paddock.

The students were also commended in an editorial opinion by the Durham Sun. The comment said in part, "the young people at Methodist College would like to replace nonsensical college fads with fads that actually mean and accomplish something. They are taking steps to launch a new one in which students throughout the state and nation will make donations to charity groups...For too long, the attitude of too many college students toward society has been one of negativism. This is an opportunity for them to make a positive contribution to it."

Due to the success of the Methodist College drive, Methodist students have sent information packets to other colleges outlining steps for their college drive. "We hope our success will help other colleges surge forward in the USA movement," Paddock said.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The establishment of the Charlotte Lessem Memorial Scholarships at Methodist College ~~have~~^{has} been announced.

A resident of Fayetteville since the age of 10, Miss Lessem was a part-time student at Methodist College since its opening in 1960. Every semester, Miss Lessem took courses "for enrichment."

A graduate of Fayetteville Central School, where she was a Stedman Essay Winner, Miss Lessem attended Virginia Intermont College, Flora McDonald College and the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina(now UNC-G), where she majored in education.

Miss Lessem held an R.N. diploma with honors from the Brooklyn(N.Y.) Jewish Hospital. She taught in the Turkey(N.C.) Schools and also taught biology to the students at the former Pittman Hospital in Fayetteville.

In recognition of her accomplishments at Methodist College, the Academic Affairs Committee of the Methodist College faculty originated the idea for the memorial scholarships bearing her name. In response to this, at its meeting earlier this month, the Methodist College Board of Trustees unanimously voted to award up to 10 tuition-free scholarships for people 65 years of age and over.

Methodist College President, Dr. Richard W. Pearce said, "we are pleased we may honor Miss Lessem through these memorial scholarships. A vital part of our college community for more than 11 years, she exemplifies the type of individuals we hope will avail themselves of these scholarships. Continuing education was important to her. It was through her work here that she sought intellectual stimulation and cultural enrichment. We proudly name these scholarships in her memory.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Cash prizes totaling $150 have been awarded in the 8th annual Methodist College Student Art Exhibition now underway in the Lobby of the college's Fine Arts Building.

Presentation of the awards was made at a reception opening the show Monday evening. Exhibit hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, until April 19.

Mrs. Janet Rae Stotts of Fayetteville captured top honors with four entries. The First Purchase Award of $75, which now becomes the property of the college, went to Mrs. Stotts for her sculpture entry, entitled, "Pregnant." The senior art major also received the $50 second prize for a painting of ballerinas entitled, "Practice Session." The show's overall honorable mention also went to Mrs. Stotts for a series of paintings, "Sea Shells." Her entry, "Monotony", won second place in the graphics category.

The $25 third prize went to junior, Mrs. Esther B. Temple of Fayetteville. Her entry, a pencil drawing, was entitled, "Shifting Sands."

Other winners in the sculpture category were senior Miss Constance Marlowe of Fayetteville, "Horse"; and senior Dwight L. Sheppard of Erwin, "Free Form."

NEWS

In the painting category, Dwight Sheppard took second place for "Lonely Girl"; and third, Lee Warren of Fayetteville for "Triumph."

Senior John Elkins of Durham won third place in graphics for a black and white photograph, "All In A Day's Chores"; and honorable mention, senior Danny Fowler of High Point for his entry, "Infinite End."

Freshman Miss Becki Boatwright of Patrick, S.C., captured the first prize in the crafts division for her macrame entry, "Impressions In Black."

Art show judges were Mrs. Janet Parks, who teaches art part-time in Fayetteville; Syed Yunus, art instructor, Fayetteville State University; and Jack Mitchell, art instructor, Terry Sanford Senior High School.

According to Methodist College assistant professor of art, Donald Green, "we had 54 entries of which 34 were selected by the judges. I feel the quality of the show is very good. It is our hope that with future open and juried shows we will continue to attract top quality work."
