TWO RESIDENTS JOIN METHODIST COLLEGE

FAYETTEVILLE--Dr. Samuel J. Womack, dean of Methodist College, today announced the appointment of two part-time instructors in the Business Department. The Fayetteville residents are Russell C. Crowell and Melville M. Murray, Jr.

Crowell, a Chartered Life Underwriter with a life insurance company, will teach courses in insurance and real estate. Murray, a certified public accountant with a local accounting firm, will teach courses in advanced accounting.

Crowell, a native of Oxford, attended North Carolina State University and the American College of Life Underwriters. He is currently chairman of the board of the Cumberland Sheltered Workshop and past president of the Fayetteville Rotary Club. He is also past president of the North Carolina Association of Life Underwriters, and past chairman of the Fayetteville Airport Commission. His hobbies are hunting, fishing, and golf.

Murray, who was born at Ft. Bragg, is a graduate of Fayetteville Senior High School and Stetson University, Deland, FL. He is a member of the Fayetteville Jaycees and the National Association of Accountants.

His hobbies are bicycling, aviation, and tennis. Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Murray, Sr. of Fayetteville are his parents.

LT. GEN. SEITZ ADDRESSES

MC SUMMER GRADUATES

Lt. Gen. Richard J. Seitz, commanding general of the XVIII Airborne Corps and Fort Bragg, stressed individual traits necessary to serve our country and society in his commencement address to 46 Methodist College graduates last weekend. The graduates all completed graduation requirements in the 1974 Summer Session.

Recalling that he too had once listened to a commencement speaker give advice on "the opportunities and responsibilities of my generation, I thought, as many of you may be thinking now, that this was one of the necessary burdens of this otherwise pleasant time."

Thus, taking a tip from the past, the general opted out of the obvious address on "The World You Live In" or "The Opportunities and Responsibilities That Are Yours."

Instead, Gen. Seitz concentrated on the individual. "In order to meet the challenges of this critical time, what are the qualities demanded of you as individuals and what are the personal attributes which will stand you in good stead?" he asked.

First is a sense of responsibility. "The successful person sees what needs to be done and does it without being told," Gen. Seitz said.

Second is a good attitude. "Watch that you are not so impressed with the rightness of your own way that you find it difficult to give loyal and willing support to your superior's decisions," the general cautioned.

Third is example. "Always set the example. The people that work for you will reflect your character as truly as a mirror reflects your image," he said.

The general concluded with the obvious deeper elements of character such as truth, integrity, sacrifice and self-control.

METHODIST COLLEGE FORMALLY

BEGINS 1974 ACADEMIC YEAR

Methodist College officially began the 1974-75 academic year yesterday with a formal convocation in Reeves Auditorium.

The faculty, dressed in full academic regalia, and student body heard Bishop Robert M. Blackburn give an address on morality in light of Watergate. Bishop Blackburn is the North Carolina Conference Bishop of the United Methodist Church.

Dr. Richard W. Pearce, college president, announced several faculty promotions and student achievements. He also discussed various activities which he hopes are emphasized this coming year.

"A never-ending emphasis is academic growth," said Dr. Pearce. As examples of this, he noted the three new majors in physical education, social work, and special subject teacher in art, and the restructuring of the Business Department to include a business administration major with an economics minor.

Dr. Pearce said he hopes to see more "shared decision making with all groups on campus represented," and more honorary and professional organizations.

A renewed emphasis for the year should be on spiritual life. "We need to discuss, re-emphasize, and implement moral, spiritual, and ethical values in this post-Watergate era," he said.

Also slated for study, expansion, and improvement this year are student publications, intramurals, a re-evaluation of all majors, re-examination of the core curriculum, and establishment of a "little theater."

Bishop Blackburn, in his address, stressed the moral and spiritual values needed in our society today. He advocated not only talking right but acting right. "Our conduct reveals what we are much more than our preaching," he said. "Unless you stand for something, you will fall for anything," he added.

The bishop concluded by asking those assembled to begin formulating their ideals and commitments which determines their life goals.

Dr. Pearce said he hopes to see more "shared decision making with all groups on campus represented," and more honorary and professional organizations.

A renewed emphasis for the year should be on spiritual life. "We need to discuss, re-emphasize, and implement moral, spiritual, and ethical values in this post-Watergate era," he said.

Also slated for study, expansion, and improvement this year are student publications, intramurals, a re-evaluation of all majors, re-examination of the core curriculum, and establishment of a "little theater."

Bishop Blackburn, in his address, stressed the moral and spiritual values needed in our society today. He advocated not only talking right but acting right. "Our conduct reveals what we are much more than our preaching," he said. "Unless you stand for something, you will fall for anything," he added.

The bishop concluded by asking those assembled to begin formulating their ideals and commitments which determines their life goals.

METHODIST TO HOST

MUSIC WORKSHOP

"Creative Approaches to Child Development with Music, Language, and Movement," is the title of a workshop to be held at Methodist College Sept. 16-20. The instructor will be Dr. Grace Nash, internationally known leader in creative techniques in elementary education.

About 50 teachers from the Fayetteville and Cumberland County Schools are expected to participate in the workshop. Class sessions will run from 6-9:15 each evening in Reeves Auditorium on campus.

"This is an important opportunity for music specialists, classroom teachers, physical education and special education instructors, as well as undergraduate students," said Mrs. Jean B. Ishee, assistant professor of piano and organ at Methodist, who is coordinating the workshop. "Mrs. Nash is one of America's foremost exponents of the creative approach to music education as inspired by Carl Orff, Zoltan Kodaly, and Rudolf Laban."

The course deals with behavioral sciences and will consist of basic techniques for use in the classroom in:

1. the science of movement to improve motor skills and coordination; to reinforce learning; to develop spatial awareness and economy of motion and to encourage self-expression.
2. voice development in speech and song; articulation and pitch placement; awareness of phrasing; enjoyment of language; rhythmic speech ensembles and choral setting

MEMORANDUM

TO: PRESIDENT PEARCE, DEAN WOMACK, MR. LOWDERMILK
FROM: THOMAS S. YOW, DIRECTOR OF FINANCIAL AID
DATE: JUNE 4, 1974

Will be announced in mid-July

We are nominating Pamela Sue Walker and Daniel Livingston Hood for the Goodyear Scholarship for 1974-75.

Miss Walker, a senior math major, received this award for this past year. She has a cumulative average of 3.73. She has been very active in student affairs and served as editor of the Carillon this past year. Pam is a native of Elizabethtown and is a member of Alpha Xi Delta.

Mr. Hood, a junior chemistry major is a new nominee for the award. He has a 2.53 average. Danny has been extremely active on campus serving as an athletic trainer for the soccer and basketball teams, Student Union Board, the SGA External Affairs Committee, and the campus coordinator for Nick Galifianakis. Next year he will serve as the SGA Treasurer, Student Union Board member, Vice President of Sanford Hall. Vice President of Lambda Chi Alpha, and as an athletic trainer. He is from Durham, NC and is the son of Reverend and Mrs. J. L. Hood.

The criteria as established by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company call for the recipients to be juniors or seniors, U. S. Citizens, and be enrolled in either math, science, or business administration.

We have thoroughly researched the academic and social records of those students who are eligible and believe that these students are the most qualified by academic average, major field, and commitment to the goals of Methodist College.

Summer Session Dean's List

Methodist College

Bill Lowdermilk, Director of Public Relations, 488-7110,
ext. 239

Twenty-one students, all from Fayetteville, have qualified for the first Summer Session Dean's List to be issued by Methodist College. Some 16 of the 21 are either active duty military personnel enrolled in the college's Degree Completion Program or military veterans utilizing educational benefits, according to Dr. Samuel Womack, academic dean.

The 1973 summer session at Methodist was the first to be extended throughout a three-month period. Thus, it was the first time that students could carry an academic load of sufficient quantity to qualify for Dean's List status, it was explained. Those achieving this honor must have a "B" or better average on at least 15 semester hours of academic work.

Fayetteville, students enrolled in programs involving military benefits or various categories are:

Barry Box, Donald Charron, Joseph Cordero, Eugene Cote, James Delaney, Jerry Flannigan, Ronald Giroux, Donald Hall, Alan Jones, Herbert McGinnis, Gregory Miller, Ben Moore, Ben Peets, Douglas Ricks, Alfred Searle and John Thompson.

Other Fayetteville students on the list include:

Judy Carter, Valerie Jones, Lee Kesler, Martha Sheppard and Larry White.

Miss Sheppard, Cote and White completed their programs and were awarded Bachelor of Arts degrees at commencement exercises on August 31, 1973.

SOCIOLOGY STUDENTS AT METHODIST RECEIVE INTERNSHIP ASSIGNMENTS

Roy D. Kindle, director of volunteer projects for the 12th Judicial Court, visited the Methodist College campus recently to conduct an orientation session for students preparing for social work field experience as probation internees.

Methodist College students preparing for certification as probation officer internees are: Floyd Trimmer, Penny Ogles, John Albert, Leon Graves, Royal Rogers, and Mike Ledford, all of Fayetteville; and James Chestnutt of Stedman. Prof. Earl D. Martin, chairman of the Sociology Department, is the coordinator for the social work field experience.

Kindle explained that each internee, after a training period of four weeks, would be certified by Judge Derb Carter of the 12th Judicial Court System and Kindle as an "Internee Probation Officer."

"The volunteer project last year was most successful, due in large measure to the support of social work students from Methodist who helped get the program underway," Kindle said. He cited specific examples of MC students whose efforts on behalf of juvenile offenders had created what he termed "miracles in human behavior."

In one particular instance, a 15-year-old juvenile delinquent and school failure who had been allowed by the court to quit school before the required age, became the client of a student who established such a meaningful relationship that in time the teenager

In one particular instance, a 15-year-old juvenile delinquent and school failure who had been allowed by the court to quit school before the required age, became the client of a student who established such a meaningful relationship that in time the teenager was back in school earning A's and B's in subjects formerly failed.

During the training program, the internee is assigned material to read concerning juvenile law.

When the internee has been certified, he will be regularly consulted by Judge Carter and Kindle regarding disposition of the case. Thus his relationship will take several directions: the juvenile, the family of the juvenile, the director of the volunteer project, and the court. The internee, likewise, will attend juvenile court sessions that relate to his client and will testify on occasion as the court deems necessary.

In every instance, the internee will receive counsel from the leaders of the project. At the same time, the student will be employing some of the concepts that he is learning in the social work classes in which he is currently enrolled at Methodist.

Kindle added that the measure of the success of the program may be gauged by the support it received from the courts, the parents of the juveniles, and the juveniles themselves. Some parents, he said, call to see if they can get an internee assigned to their child before he gets into deep trouble. Some juveniles have expressed a wish not to get off probation because their relationship with the internee has been so meaningful.

Additional social work student interning this semester, their hometowns, and placement are: Charles Poznick, Fayetteville, Womack Army Hospital Department of Social Work; Wayne Spell, Salemburg, YMCA; William Overton, Ft. Bragg, HELP- Ft. Bragg Telephone Answering Service; Debbie Inman, St. Pauls, autistic children in the Fayetteville City Schools; Jacqueline Maguire, Fayetteville, Big Sister Program, Department of Social Services, Cumberland County; and from the Student Union Director's office.

Brooks has received ecstatic notices whenever he has performed. He describes himself as a ballad singer whose tendency is to slow things down. Some examples of the compliments that have come his way: "I heard students say that they enjoyed this concert more than any they've seen at Abilene Christian--that includes Neil Diamond!" Kenny Wilson, Students' Association President.

"And the honeyglow of his mellow performance lingered like a well-known song after he left the stage. It had been a nice night, sweet, low-keyed and above all, satisfying." Jim Conley, The Abilene Reporter-News.

Saturday morning's Sidewalk Drawing Contest is open to alumni, students, and faculty to compete for the $50 first prize, $25 second prize, and $10 third prize. Judging of the chalked creations will take place at 11:30 a.m.

An old fashioned picnic lunch of hot dogs, hamburgers, etc. will be held in front of the library with games, music, and fellowship. The cost is $2 per adult and $1.25 per child under 9. Advance reservations are required with the Student Government Association.

The nine former Homecoming queens will be back to assist in the crowning of this year's queen and to be a part of the half-time soccer game festivities. Nine former SGA presidents will also be on hand to escort the queens. Parade vehicles will be furnished by the Cape Fear Four-Wheelers club.

This year's Johnson Murray Memorial Basketball Game will be alumni vs. alumni. The players in even-numbered classes will play those in odd-numbered classes. The coaches for the game will be Ernie Schwarz, first basketball coach at Methodist, and Gene Clayton, athletic director. Admission is 75¢ with proceeds going to the Athletic Department.

The New Century Platters, with their 1950s sound, will present a concert-dance in the Student Union Saturday evening. Dress is semi-formal and admission is $2.
