TWO MC ALUMNI

ARE HONORED

For only the third time since the founding of Methodist College, the Methodist College Alumni Association has bestowed a "Distinguished Alumnus Award." The honor was bestowed upon William P. Lowdermilk, assistant to the president of Methodist College, at the annual Alumni-Senior Banquet last night (May 3) at the College.

Michael J. Alloway, alcoholism educational consultant for the Lee-Harnett Mental Health Program, was given the "Outstanding Alumni Service Award" at the same banquet.

The honoring of the two recipients marked the conclusion of the 1975 Alumni Day activities.

The only two previous "Distinguished Alumnus Awards" were presented to Dr. L. Stacy Weaver, founding president of Methodist College and posthumously to Dr. Karl H. Berns, former executive secretary of the Methodist College Foundation. The award, the highest award of the MCAA, is given for "singular achievement in his profession and for service of the highest order to his community."

On Alloway's plaque is written: "The Methodist College Alumni Association Board of Directors recognizes Michael J. Alloway for Outstanding Loyalty and Dedication in Service to the Methodist College Alumni Association."

Alloway, a member of the class of 1971, lives in Fayetteville with his wife Beth and two children. He attended the North Carolina State University Graduate School upon graduating from Methodist. He currently serves as MCAA vice-president, chairman of the Finance Committee, and is a member of the Social Committee and the Laison Committee.

Lowdermilk, an honorary alumnus of Methodist College, is the son of Mrs. Jennie W. Lowdermilk of Norman and the late Dallas Lowdermilk. He is a graduate of Emory University and the Duke University Divinity School.

Lowdermilk joined the Methodist College staff as assistant director of public relations in 1963, having previously served for five years as minister of Culbreth Memorial United Methodist Church in Fayetteville.

He is included in "Who's Who in The Methodist Church" and "Who's Who in American College and University Administration." Lowdermilk is a member of the Communications and Annual Conference Entertainment Committees of the North Carolina Conference of The United Methodist Church, the Order of St. Luke, and the Masons.

He was the 1972 recipient of the Methodist College Alumni Association "Outstanding Alumni Service Award."

As assistant to the president, his main duties include church-college relations, alumni programs, news bureau, development, and on-campus conferences.

TWO STUDENT ARTISTS

CONCLUDE SEASON AT MC

"Art is the most universal form of expression. All my life I've been trying to express myself, and art has become my favorite means," says Laura Leigh Sullivan who opened her Senior Art Show in the South Lobby of Reeves Auditorium on the Methodist College campus Monday.

Composed of various paintings, prints, and drawings, the show is entitled "Reflections of Four Years" and will run for two weeks. The gallery is open Monday-Friday from 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

"I've never been the type of artist who tries to bring social change through my work; not that I don't have any convictions, but my paintings are meant to express my personality and what I consider is beauty," Laura adds. She began her art studies at the Gertrude Herbert Institute of Art in Augusta, Ga. Now from Wilmington, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Sullivan, and will graduate from Methodist this Sunday with an art-English double major.

Her work shows a variety of styles and techniques. "I believe a student of art should experiment. I haven't developed one style that I want to settle into and call my own yet," she says.

Laura uses sealing wax and paint application techniques to build unusual textures in her paintings, explaining "I am intrigued by the impressionistic although most of my paintings show more emphasis on form than color and texture."

She feels that the show is a representative cross section of the work she has done while at Methodist in the areas of drawing, painting, printmaking, and sculpture. Although no sculptured work will be shown in the show, a metal assemblage of her design was chosen for the Methodist College Permanent Art Display last year. It now rests in front of Reeves Auditorium.

During the same period as Laura's show, Reginald D. Carde will have his student show in the North Lobby of Reeves Auditorium. His show will include landscape and abstract paintings, hanging sculpture, drawings, a batik, and a few mounted metal flower works.

Carde, a native of Fayetteville, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Carde, 3625 Drayton Rd. He is a graduate of Terry Sanford High School, and took second place in the Methodist College Art Show earlier this year. After graduating from Methodist, he plans to get a master of fine arts degree and then become a free-lance artist.

METHODIST GRADUATES 82

AT SPRING COMMENCEMENT

FAYETTEVILLE--North Carolina should rely upon its independent colleges rather than expanding state institutions State Senator John T. Henley said at yesterday's Methodist College graduation exercises.

Henley, a Hope Mills native who is currently serving as president pro tempore of the North Carolina Senate, told the 82 graduates that it is time for the state to stop expanding public colleges at the expense of independent colleges. An effort in this regards is a bill which would grant $400 to needy North Carolina students attending independent colleges which Henley said he felt would pass by the time the General Assembly adjourns next month.

Henley also attacked "nay-sayers" in the country saying the U.S. has survived worse crises than we face at present. He told graduates to be tolerant of others and to be confident in the future. "Take heart in our government and your community by seeking to right wrongs by becoming involved. 'Cop-outs' didn't turn this virgin land of ours into the country it is. An involved individual can make a difference," he concluded.

Of the 82 graduates, 78 received a bachelor of arts degree while four received a bachelor of science. Sarah Ellen Edge of Fayetteville received the L. Stacy Weaver Award as the outstanding senior.

Graduating summa cum laude (3.75 or better of a possible 4.00) were: Miss Edge with an A.B.; Mary Anne Martin of Hope Mills, A.B.; and Pamela
