JANE BERRY TO PRESENT PROGRAM AT METHODIST

Mrs. Jane W. Berry, well-known in the Fayetteville area for her active role in the arts, will present a lecture and slide show entitled "Great English Cathedrals--History, Art and Music" on Tuesday, October 14 at 8 p.m. in Reeves Auditorium on the Methodist College campus. There is no admission charge for this program which is sponsored by the Humanities Division at Methodist.

Mrs. Berry, who has a special interest in English history, spent a year in preparatory study for the three-month trip to England, Scotland and Wales she took in 1973. Since her return, she has put together a presentation of slides, music and narration which describes the cathedrals she visited on this trip.

In her presentation, Mrs. Berry emphasizes the many roles the cathedrals have played throughout English history. Aside from their obvious function as the center for religious life, these cathedrals have served also as centers for education, the arts, commerce, trade, and for transmitting news and royal commands.

In addition to the presentation Tuesday night, Mrs. Berry will conduct three hour-long sessions on English cathedrals Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings. These sessions will provide a more in-depth study of the cathedrals and will be attended by various history and fine arts classes at Methodist.

Mrs. Berry's interest in English cathedrals has led her into the development of two new hobbies. As the result of this intensive study, she has begun a collection of crosses from around the world. The collection currently contains about 30 crosses. Another new hobby is a growing collection of cathedral music featuring the famous choirs of the major English churches.

This presentation is just one of the many ways Mrs. Berry has shared her love of the arts with the Fayetteville community. A resident of Fayetteville for 15 years. She is a founding member of the Fayetteville Little Theatre, the director of the Children's Theatre for seven years, and is the producer and director of Circa '75, an outdoor, summer drama and music program held at Methodist College. She is also a board member of the Advisory Commission for the Cumberland County Memorial Auditorium and in 1965 she was named an "Outstanding Young Woman of America" for services to the community in the arts.

VA REPRESENTATIVE

JOINS METHODIST

J. Steven Bryan has joined the Office of Veterans' Affairs at Methodist College replacing Major (ret.) Earnest Butler who has transferred to Wyoming.

Bryan, the Veterans' Administrations training and education representative on campus, serves as a liaison between the VA and veterans and bootstrappers attending Methodist, informing them of all potential benefits they may be entitled to, helping them apply for same, and helping solve any problems which develop in their receiving benefits.

The office of Veterans' Affairs is located in the Horner Administration Building. Bryan is on campus Tuesday and Thursday mornings; however, the office is staffed from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays by two student assistants Larry McMillan and Steve Coe.

This semester Methodist has 139 students who are receiving VA benefits. "A qualified veteran attending college full-time receives $270 a month if single, $321 if married, $366 if one has a spouse and one dependent, and an additional $22 per month for each additional dependent. Educational benefits can be paid for a maximum of 36 months." said Bryan. While in school, if a veteran so desires he can also hold a job without loss of benefits.

In addition, MC has 21 bootstrappers. These are military personnel presently serving in the armed forces who have qualified to use their VA benefits before they leave active duty. Since they continue to receive their military pay, VA compensation is $270 a month or tuition and fees--whichever is less.

"Generally, to be eligible for VA benefits one has to have served a minimum of 181 continuous days of active duty and have an honorable discharge," Bryan said, adding, "Educational benefits must be used within 10 years of discharge."

Bryan, a native of Norfolk, is a 1973 graduate of Methodist College and has done additional graduate level work at the University of Utah. He is a member of the Cape Fear Jaycees, the American Society of Photogrammetrical Engineers, the American Society of Personnel Administrators, the Governors Commission on Environmental Education, and chairman of the North Carolina Environmental Action.

Prior to joining the Veterans' Administration in 1974, Bryan was a teacher in Cumberland County and served in the Army. His hobbies are golf, tennis, and coin collecting.

METHODIST COLLEGE NAMED BICENTENNIAL CAMPUS

FAYETTEVILLE--Methodist College has been designated a National Bicentennial Campus by the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

To become an official bicentennial campus, Methodist had to fulfill requirements in three areas--Horizon '76, Heritage '76, and Festival '76. Plans were drawn up to meet these requirements during the summer by a committee consisting of 50 per cent students and 50 per cent faculty and staff, under the direction of Tony Mabb, a senior history major from Fayetteville. R. Parker Wilson, assistant professor of history, served as adviser to the committee.

As a bicentennial campus, Methodist College can fly an official bicentennial flag which, along with a certificate, will be presented to the college in mid-November. Also at this time, the Student Government Association plans to unveil a permanent display of the flags of the 13 original colonies which are being purchased by various organizations on campus. This program will be part of Heritage '76, that aspect of the bicentennial which seeks to commemorate the past. Also a part of Heritage '76 is the Freedom Shrine presented by the Fayetteville Exchange Club. This is a collection of reproductions of historical and foreign documents of the past 200 years and is now on display in the Student Union. Congressman Charles Rose has presented the college with a United States flag which has flown over the Capitol in Washington as his contribution to Heritage '76.

Other plans which are part of Heritage '76 include special music of the Revolutionary War era which is being rehearsed by the Methodist College Chorus, and the addition of lighting fixtures and furniture to the Lafayette Room of Davis Memorial Library. Last spring Mrs. C.C. Duell presented a portrait of General Lafayette to the college. Painted by William C. Fields, it now hangs in the Lafayette Room.

To fulfill the requirements for Horizon '76, which states that students have to leave something permanent on campus commemorating the bicentennial, plans have been made to construct a bicentennial park. The park will feature a picnic area as well as shrubs and flowers.

A pageant in the O'Hanlon Amphitheatre on the Fourth of July will serve as Methodist's Festival '76. Entitled "The French Connection 1776," the program will describe the foreign aid received from the Netherlands, France, and Germany during the Revolutionary War.

An upswing in enrollment at Methodist College this fall and prospects of continued increases for the next few years were cited Tuesday by President Richard W. Pearce as positive growth signs for the college.

In a talk to the college's Foundation directors, Dr. Pearce said the college "could substantially recover from recent losses created by declining enrollment with the kind of healthy growth we experienced this year."

"We are making every possible effort to guarantee that we reach our goal," he said.

Enrollment increased from 622 students in 1974 to only 635 this year but the freshman class reached 205, the highest level in four years, and the college graduated a large senior class. Another 51 students enrolled in the newly-established night program.

Methodist College is the only church-affiliated college in eastern North Carolina to report an enrollment increase this fall.

Dr. Pearce said the college's concept of student life involvement is growing in appeal. "This is reflected in the record number of student participants in the various campus activities," he said.

Foundation chairman Wilson F. Yarborough Jr., presided over the meeting held in the college cafeteria. Twenty-three Foundation members and area trustees attended.

The 1976 Foundation campaign team will be announced shortly, Mr. Yarborough said.

MINISTER-IN-RESIDENCE PROGRAM INITIATED AT METHODIST COLLEGE

FAYETTEVILLE---Methodist College is participating in a new program which brings ministers from all areas of the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church to the college to serve for one week as a minister-in-residence. This program, adopted by the 1975 Annual Conference, is a visible sign of the church's interest and involvement in Methodist College.

The minister-in-residence will perform several duties while on campus. In addition to conducting services of worship, he will speak at a Friday morning prayer breakfast, serve as a resource person in classes, and conduct informal discussion sessions among the students.

Methodist will have four such ministers-in-residence during the academic year. The first to serve was James Noseworthy of Roanoke Rapids(Rocky Mount District). He was on campus October 19-24. Mr. Noseworthy's activities included conducting a service of Holy Communion, practicing with the College Chorus, conducting informal "rap sessions", serving as a resource person to religion, sociology and history classes and meeting with various student groups throughout the week.

Mr. Noseworthy, born in Boston, Mass., attended Simpson College in Iowa and received his M.Div. degree from the Duke Divinity School in Durham. Ordained in 1970, he is the pastor of the South Rosemary and New Hope United Methodist Churches in Roanoke Rapids. He is the vice president of the Roanoke Rapids-Weldon Ministerial Fellowship and a member of the Division of Stewardship for the conference.

Reflecting on his stay at Methodist, Mr. Noseworthy commented that "the experience of being minister-in-residence at Methodist has given me a renewed appreciation of the worth of the Christian college. At Methodist, the attitude of the students and the commitment of the faculty and administration combine to create a Christian atmosphere for learning and personal growth. Our continued support of our church-related colleges is essential."

Other ministers participating in the minister-in-residence program at Methodist will be: Clarence Warren of Maury (Greenville District) who will visit in November; Ernest Porter of New Bern (New Bern District) who will be at Methodist in February; and J. Malloy Owen of Raleigh (Raleigh District) who will serve in March.

TERM II REGISTRATION

SET AT METHODIST

Term II of the Methodist College Night School begins this Monday (November 3) with 10 courses from among nine departments being offered.

For those who cannot register during the regular operating hours of the college, the Admissions Office will be open from 9 a.m. until noon this Saturday (November 1).

Term I, which inaugurated the night school September 15 and ended yesterday, has been called an unqualified success by college officials with its enrollment of 51 far exceeding projections. Of the 51 enrolled, 20 are attending Methodist with military assistance and 15 are attending with Veterans' Administration benefits.

Most night school students are employed full-time or are military personnel going to college in the evening on their own time. The majority (34) are over 25 years of age while the typical student in the day schedule is a 17- to 22-year-old.

A student attending only night school can complete a baccalaureate degree in five and one-half years. It is possible to shorten this time to two and one-half years if CLEP (College Level Examination Program) tests are passed. At Methodist it is possible to earn 63 semester hours by passing all CLEP examinations.
