ALEX BETHUNE ESTABLISHES SCHOLARSHIP AT METHODIST

Alex Bethune of Linden has given $8000.00 for establishment of an endowed scholarship at Methodist College. The scholarship will seek "to provide financial assistance to worthy young men and women in the Linden, N. C. area, while at the same time supporting the cause of Christian Education and the endeavors of Methodist College in the field of higher education," according to the terms of the Bethune Scholarship criteria. ~~scholarship in that order.~~

Scholarship recipients will be selected on the basis of need, scholarship and citizenship in that order.

Priority will be given to residents of Linden, students of Pine Forest Senior High or students of Cumberland County, respectively.

"Mr. Bethune has been a strong supporter of Methodist College since its beginning," stated Methodist president Dr. Richard Pearce.

"We are both encouraged and pleased by this endowed scholarship as a demonstration of his continued interest in Methodist College."

Camels' Rally Earns Deadlock

By THOMAS POPE
Sports Writer

It's not too often a coach finds something good about his team after a tie, but both Methodist College mentor Mason Sykes and Campbell College counterpart Wayne Cunningham were pleased with some aspects of a 3-3 double overtime tie in soccer here Tuesday.

Cunningham was happy to see his team rally from a 3-0 deficit to salvage the deadlock while Sykes was glad to see his club didn't fold completely.

"Our guys had their heads down after Methodist scored those three times," Cunningham said. "We were in a similar situation against Old Dominion (a 3-0 loss) and couldn't come back. We did come back today, but we should have won it."

Cunningham's feelings concerning a win are reflected in the fact that his Camel booters attempted 23 shots on goal, freshman sensation Jerry LeCates stopping 20 blasts while Campbell's John Lee blocked nine kicks.

"We just didn't push to get our second wind quick enough in the second half," Sykes said. "When they tied it up, I thought we kept our composure well. We did a good job of not letting the momentum go completely to them when it easily could have."

The Monarchs struck early in the 45-minute first half when Japan's Atsuo Kumazaki pushed a shot past Lee with just 4:45 gone.

Methodist added a second goal less than eight minutes later when Marty Martin, the Monarchs' all-conference wing, booted the ball in the net with 12:04 elapsed.

Martin added his second score with 23:34 gone when he got one-on-one with Lee. Lee came out of the goal to challenge Martin and the latter rolled the ball past the former to make the tally 3-0.

Campbell retaliated on a shot by Greg Gonzales just 26 seconds later to close the Monarchs' lead to 3-1 at the half.

Gonzales figured in the second Camel score as he was credited with an assist on a shot by Lee Webster with 17:14 gone in the second half.

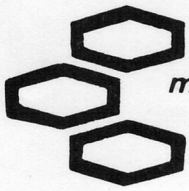

Campbell got the final goal of the day on Norris Baker's effort with 26:05 elapsed and the teams battled scoreless through the rest of regulation time and a pair of overtime periods.

Methodist, now 1-1-1, visits defending Dixie Conference champion Virginia Wesleyan Friday in search of a second straight win over the Blue Marlins. Campbell, now 0-1-1, hosts Elon Friday night.

RADFORD MAKES CHANGE FROM PLAYER TO ASSISTANT COACH

FAYETTEVILLE-- Methodist College senior David Radford had never played organized soccer before coming to Methodist College in 1974, yet four years later, his dream is to return to his high school alma mater in Durham and begin a soccer program under his guidance.

After a four year soccer career at Methodist, Radford now serves as assistant coach for Mason Sykes, head coach of the Monarchs for the thirteenth year. This, Radford hopes, will give him necessary experience in coaching to help fulfill his dreams of returning to Northern Durham High School in Durham and starting a high school soccer program there.

"I had never played organized soccer before coming to Methodist", said Radford, a 22-year old physical education major. "I played in pick up games mostly and knew the basic rules from reading and what people had told me."

"I learned about 75 per cent of what I know now from coach Sykes and the other players that I played with," said Radford, who had earned a starting position at halfback in his junior year.

This year the change to assistant coach has been one that has called for some adjustment on Radford's part. "At first, I really wanted to be out there playing," said Radford. "I missed it terribly. But now, anything I can do to help, I'll do it, even if it's just a little thing."

"I really don't have any set duties. I do anything from assuming the training duties on the team to making sure that people aren't tired on the field. I help the freshmen who are having a problem learning a specific skill by offering what advice I can."

"We have a lot of talented freshmen here this year," continued Radford. "The team puts out more work and people are out there really want to play. The squad has definitely progressed since when I came to Methodist as a freshman. We're alot more organized than before and instead of having the worst field in the area to play on, we now have one of the best due to work by coach Sykes and some of the team members."

For Radford, being a student gives him an added demension in helping the players. "I'm more free for the guys to talk to me about what they wouldn't talk to coach Sykes about and of course it's just easier for us to just sit around and talk about problems in school and soccer."

Being a student and coach has its draw backs too, however. As a student now involved in education block courses and in student teaching in the near future, Radford can't attend the away games during weekdays.

"If I'm doing the job, I should be there (at away games)," said Radford. But I'm obligated to student teaching and classes too. If I had two bodies I would do both."

Radford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl L. Radford of Sparger Road, Durham.

BELINDA CHANDLER OPENS
SENIOR ART EXHIBIT
AT METHODIST COLLEGE

FAYETTEVILLE--Belinda Chandler of Fayetteville will display over 100 pieces of art work in her Senior Art Exhibit opening October 1 in Reeves Auditorium lobby on the Methodist campus.

The exhibit will offer works in a variety of media including sculpture, pen and ink, print-making, crafts, oils, photography and drawing.

"I prefer sculpture, particularly in wood," states Ms. Chandler.

"The naturalness of wood, seashells and plants intrigues me. There's something uniquely beautiful about an object in its natural state."

Although Ms. Chandler finds drawing the most challenging of the art forms, examples of her sketches and works in pen and ink are included in this senior exhibit.

"I don't see things two-dimensionally, so drawing is alien to my perception. I see things three-dimensionally," explains Ms. Chandler.

A three-time winner in Methodist College's Juried Art Exhibit held last spring, Ms. Chandler is relatively new to the art field, having completed only two years of study.

SHAKESPEARIAN FESTIVAL SLATED FOR METHODIST COLLEGE

(FAYETTEVILLE) "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," a panorama of Shakespearian drama, will be the Homecoming production of the Theatre Department of Methodist College with performances slated for Oct. 12-13.

The play will feature the tragic heroes, comic heroines, and excerpts from some modern musical comedy versions of Shakespeare's works. Specific scenes include Antony's funeral orations for Julius Caesar; the witches' prediction of Macbeth's rise to power and his killing of the king; and the gradual weakening of King Lear as his daughters desert him.

Additional selections will be portrayed from The Merchant of Venice, Twelfth Night, As you Like It, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Two Gentlemen of Verona, Romeo and Juliet, Taming of the Shrew, Henry and Henry V.

"This production promises to be something for everyone," states Dr. Peyrouse, coordinator of the Theatre Arts Department at Methodist.

"Offering Shakespeare in O'Hanlon Amphitheatre with authentic costuming and staging is a challenge for the cast, but one they welcome."

Performances will be held at 1:00 and 7:00 on both Oct. 12 and 13 in the outdoor atmosphere of O'Hanlon Amphitheatre.

SUBJECT: Feature ideas--"Brush Up Your Shakespeare"
DATE: September 26, 1978

Enclosed you will find an informational release on "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," homecoming production of the Methodist College theatre department, scheduled for Oct. 12-13. This play has some unique feature aspects you may wish to develop for your readers, such as:

- Shakespeare performed in outdoor theatre
O'Hanlon Amphitheatre in an October setting provides a look at authentic Elizabethan costuming and staging.
- Faculty join students in cast
Dr. Janet Cavano, Dr. Sue Kimball, Ms. Helen Matthews are all faculty members at Methodist who are also part of the student production.
- Two generations perform together
Dr. Janet Cavano and son Jeff, Methodist sophomore, both perform in this production offering an interesting family twist.
- Japanese student is casted
Yasushi Kamo, Japanese exchange student, plays a male witch in Macbeth.
- Alumni take an active role
Methodist graduates keep coming back to campus! Those helping with this production are Mildred Dexter, accompanist; Cheryl King, actress; Fred Haines, technical director; Karen Carlton, musical director.

OLIVIA RILEY OPENS SENIOR ART EXHIBIT

Olivia L. Riley of Fayetteville opened her Senior art exhibit on Sunday, Sept. 10 in Reeves Auditorium Lobby with an afternoon reception.

The exhibit features over 30 works by Riley including pen-and-ink, oil, sculpture, acrylics, pastels and crafts.

"Personal favorites on exhibit are oils 'Harry and His Hens' and 'The Search' as well as the pen and ink 'Boy and His Dog,' "says Riley.

"Portrait painting is the most challenging aspect of art for me, particularly if I use family and friends for subjects, "continues Riley, emphasizing that there is more feeling in the familiar.

Ms. Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.H. Riley of Fairfield Road, became serious about art after transferring to Methodist College from N.C. State University. She plans to teach art on the high school level before pursuing a master's degree in art therapy.

After touring France last summer with the Methodist College group, Ms. Riley became an avid fan of the Impressionistic School of Art. She admires particularly the works of Degas and Cassatt.

"I prefer to work on a small scale somehow more feeling is captured," explained Riley.

"The smaller works, like the pastel of my grandmother, are more intimate and tend to reflect more warmth."

Olivia is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mallie G. Melvin of Harrells, N.C.

Olivia displays several works classified as abstracts such as "Anxiety" in oils, "The Holy Family" in watercolors. She feels that abstract art is fun-away of loosening up."

"I started doing abstracts when I first became interested in art. The freedom is great, but now I find myself favoring more realistic works," Riley says.

Olivia Riley is an art student who has developed her own theory of design.

"I don't like sharp edges softness is the key to feeling . . . self-portraits are the most frustrating works of all. . . I like doing the unconventional like the bud vase I did in pottery—a short fat contrast of the tall slender norm," says Olivia.

Ms. Riley's exhibit is on display through Sept. 30 and is open to the public from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. daily.

METHODIST COLLEGE TO SPONSOR ENERGY-ENVIRONMENT WORKSHOP

Fayetteville--The U. S. Energy Research and Development Administration will present a Citizens' Workshop on Energy and the Environment at Methodist College on Wednesday, Oct. 4 at 10:30 p.m. in Reeves Auditorium. The program is being sponsored by the Convocations Committee of Student Life.

The program will be conducted by Dr. Jose D'Arruda, associate professor of physics at Pembroke State University, Pembroke, NC. Dr. D'Arruda received his B.S. degree from Lowell Technological Institute, an M.S. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Delaware. He is a member of the American Physical Society and American Association of Physics Teachers.

"Citizens" Workshops have already been conducted in about every major U.S. city for over 150,000 participants," states Dr. D'Arruda.

"The highlight of the presentation is the Energy-Environment Simulator, a specially designed electronic computer which enables workshop participants to play the roles of energy decision-makers. In the game, they must allocate the world's energy resources to meet growing demands."

This "Time machine" responds to the decisions of the players by displaying new information on the control pane. Buzzers and flashing lights indicate energy shortages and harmful environmental effects. The game ends when supplies of coal, oil, and natural gas are exhausted.
