METHODIST COLLEGE DAY HELD

AT ST. ANDREWS CHURCH

~~_____~~ Members of St. Andrews United Methodist Church in Fayetteville opened their doors to the students, faculty and staff of Methodist College during the recent celebration of Methodist College Day.

The Reverend Edward A. Barber, minister at St. Andrews and Methodist alumnus, welcomed a full sanctuary of visitors on Nov. 18. Because of the proximity of St. Andrews to the college, a spirit of neighborliness pervaded the service.

"We're a team," stated Dr. Richard Pearce, President of Methodist College and speaker for the special service.

"Methodist College and St. Andrews serve this community and each other well. We are able through our combined efforts to make Annual Conference more pleasurable to those attending."

Dr. Pearce, who also serves as Lay Leader for the N.C. Conference, spoke on "Proclamation Evangelism;" a major thrust in Methodism for this quadrenium.

Special Music was provided by the Methodist College Chorus under the direction of director Alan Porter.

JEANETTE McMULLEN DEDICATES SENIOR EXHIBIT TO DANCERS

FAYETTEVILLE--Jeanette Catalano McMullen, Methodist College senior art exhibit, scheduled to open on Sunday, Dec. 2 in Reeves Auditorium gallery, to Ann V. Clark and the Dance Theatre of Fayetteville.

"Ballet is the epitome of grace and movement and mood--those things I attempt to capture on canvas," states Ms. McMullen.

The emphasis on dance reflected in the paintings of Ms. McMullen will coordinate with the Dec. 8 presentation of "The Nutcracker" by the Dance Theatre in Reeves Auditorium on the Methodist campus.

Ms. McMullen returned to college many years after leaving Moore College of Art in Philadelphia to travel as a military wife and, subsequently, to make a home for three children. Her early studies included lessons under Reginald Marsh, renown figure artist.

"A change in lifestyle accompanied by the growth of my children created the chance to study art again and the chance to paint again," asserts McMullen.

"I find maturity has improved my painting. Experience and years make emotions easier to crystallize on canvas."

Ms. McMullen, who paints under her maiden name Jeanette Catalano, paints with a continual desire to capture feelings and emotions rather than stereotyped figures and pots of clay.

Favoring the Impressionist school of art, Ms. McMullen utilizes a combination of techniques to achieve the textured quality of her canvases.

"I wish I could be independently wealthy to pursue my painting, but I can't paint in an artist's loft. There are responsibilities to be met," muses Ms. McMullen, who plans to attend graduate school at N. C. State after graduation from Methodist in December.

"Art can be effectively utilized as therapy in many emotional problems. I hope to merge these two areas of interest--art and psychology--into one career."

Ms. McMullen is active locally in Fayetteville Dance Theatre productions and Methodist College Theatre productions. Her daughter Lisa performs with the Dance Theatre of Fayetteville and serves as the model for many of her mother's works.

The exhibit opens with a reception Sunday evening, Dec. 2, from 7-9 o'clock in the Reeves Auditorium gallery. The public is invited to attend the reception or view the exhibit daily until Dec. 21.
