METHODIST COLLEGE TO HOST
WORLD PREMIERE OF MUSICAL
'RAFT ON THE RIVER'

FAYETTEVILLE--It isn't often that Fayetteville has the opportunity to be the site of a world premiere stage production. It is even less often that a small liberal arts college has the opportunity to host such a production. But both will come to pass on April 15, 1981 when Methodist College hosts the world premiere performance of Maxwell Anderson's Raft on the River.

The late playwright Maxwell Anderson wrote Raft on the River as a musical interpretation of Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn. It existed only in the original handwritten form until Methodist professor of English Dr. Sue Kimball discovered the play while reviewing a book on Anderson's writing during a study of Southern literature at Louisiana State University in 1979.

Intrigued and excited by her discovery of the musical with book and lyrics by Anderson and an incomplete score by the late Kurt Weill, Dr. Kimball wrote to the widows of both men, seeking permission to produce the musical. Lotte Lenya, Weill's widow, refused permission to use Weill's music. Mrs. Anderson, however, agreed to having the work produced at Methodist College and gave added permission for a new score to be added.

After submitting representative scores to five of the 21 songs in the play to Mrs. Anderson for her approval, Dr. Jack Peyrouse, director of theatre arts at Methodist College, will direct the play while Dr. Kimball will produce the five scheduled performances.

Raft on the River, although sponsored by Methodist College, will be a combined effort of top professionals in the area. Joining

WORLD PREMIERE--'RAFT ON THE RIVER'

Reservations will be available from Methodist College in March for performances of Raft on the River.

"A premiere performance of anything is a monumental undertaking," says Dr. Peyrouse, "but a musical which still is in the process of being scored is challenging, to say the least. We are excited beyond belief and grateful for a chance that comes rarely to a college campus."

METHODIST COLLEGE OFFERS INFORMATION ON FINANCIAL AID

FAYETTEVILLE--Student Financial Aid: What it involves and how to get it to help meet college expenses will be the subject of a statewide consumer information effort by the North Carolina Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators during the week of January 12 through 17. Methodist College will be participating in the awareness effort by offering personal consultation on the subject of financial aid to colleges upon request.

In proclaiming this week as "Student Financial Aid Awareness Week," Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. recognized that, due to the ever-increasing educational and living expenses, more and more students are finding it necessary to seek financial assistance in order to further their educations beyond the high school level.

Even with the large sums of student financial aid dollars that are available through the National Defense Student Loan Program, the Middle Income Student Assistance Act, the GI Bill and Social Security, many potential students who are eligible for assistance do not explore the possibilities of post-secondary educations because they feel they cannot afford a college education.

For this reason, the N.C. Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators has made a commitment to provide to North Carolina students more comprehensive information on financial aid resources available for the 1981-82 academic year.

METHODIST COLLEGE PARTICIPATES
IN FINANCIAL AID AWARENESS EFFORT

NCASFAA president, James A. Belvin, Jr., states that the purpose of the week is "to create an awareness of the aid programs that are available to students and to provide information about applying for and receiving assistance to attend college.

"We hope to get students to apply early for assistance since the date of the application for aid is often a key component in determining the types and amounts of assistance that a student receives."

January is the time to begin the application process. Typical financial aid application procedures include the filing of family financial information with a recognized need analysis service, such as College Scholarship Service or American College Testing Service).

Any additional application procedures required and other information about financial aid can be obtained by contacting the Financial Aid Office at Methodist College. Director of Financial Aid is Donna Holt.

TO: Beverly Mills, News and Observer
SUBJECT: Response to inquiry
FROM: Gwen Sykes

Thank you very much for the opportunity to respond to your inquiry of inexpensive entertainment found on college campuses. Methodist College in Fayetteville has established and is continuing a tradition of quality offerings in the cultural arts as well as informative seminars on contemporary issues and we welcome the opportunity to share that information with your readers.

The basic policy of Methodist College is that all college-sponsored events offered to the community are offered free of charge. Dr. Richard Pearce, president of Methodist College, explains the college's position this way.

"Methodist College attempts to be the cultural center of activity in Fayetteville/Cumberland County. We offer our campus, our facilities, and the talent of our students and faculty in addition to those activities planned for our college students. This is offered to the community as our way of saying thank-you for their continued financial support of Methodist College."

However, Reeves Auditorium is a popular spot for cultural events in the Fayetteville/Cumberland County area, having an ideal seating of approximately 1200. It also provides easy access, being located on Highway 401-North. Consequently, a number of groups use Reeves Auditorium as a facility for their particular programs--therefore, they are not college-sponsored and often require a fee. Since these groups are paying for the use of the facility, they are at liberty to charge for their events with special consideration to our college students. Among these inexpensive (under $5) are Youth Theatre productions, choral concerts, Fayetteville Symphony, North Carolina Symphony, Dance Theatre of Fayetteville, North Carolina Dance Theatre, Cumberland Chorale, and the College/Community Concert Series.

Attached you will find a spring calendar scheduled for the Methodist campus with approximate charges included. Feel free to use any of this information that is valuable for the article you are compiling. There may also be interest in the intellectual offerings available on the college campus at no charge to the public. These include seminars, Cape Fear Radio Society, Piedmont Mineral and Gem Society, numerous art exhibits, handbell festivals, etc.

PEARCE CALLS FOR ENERGY-AWARENESS AMONG METHODIST COLLEGE STUDENTS

FAYETTEVILLE--Dr. Richard Pearce, president of Methodist College, called upon students to redouble their efforts in energy conservation during the coming months.

Addressing the student body at the opening convocation for the spring semester, Pearce cited statistics that could seriously affect tuition costs.

"We are fighting an uphill battle," said Pearce. "Although the college is now using one-fourth less energy now than we did three years ago, we are paying three times the money for what we are using."

Methodist College spent $275,000 during the 1980 year for energy costs, averaging $372 per student for the year. Pearce called upon students to reduce this figure to $250 per student, the average projected as adequate based on energy assessment.

"Our big effort now must be in personal reduction of wasted energy," asserted Pearce. "We can no longer afford to light an empty room or allow heat to escape from an open window. Doors must be kept shut and you must dress warmly. We must keep these energy costs in line or the additional expense has to be absorbed in increased tuition figures."

Methodist College has just completed an energy-conservation revamping of the lighting systems in Davis Memorial Library, the college gymnasium and outside lighting as well as a conversion from oil to gas power.

Pearce also urged students to stay healthy, citing the flu epidemic at Davidson College as a situation to avoid.

"When you are sick, go to the infirmary--don't expose the entire dormitory to the virus. Dress appropriately and get adequate rest. We don't have an epidemic on the Methodist campus."

Methodist College began classes for the spring semester Monday, January 5.

RADIO RELEASE
PUBLIC SERVICE ANNOUNCEMENT

FAYETTEVILLE--Dr. Richard Pearce, President of Methodist College, called upon students to redouble their efforts in energy conservation during the coming months.

Addressing the student body at the opening convocation for the spring semester, Pearce cited statistics that could seriously affect tuition costs. "We're fighting an uphill battle," said Pearce. "Although the college is now using one-fourth less energy than we did three years ago, we are paying three times the money for what we are using."

"Our big effort now must be in personal reduction of wasted energy," asserted Pearce. "We can no longer afford to light an empty room or allow heat to escape from an open window."

Methodist College has just completed an energy conservation revamping of the lighting systems in Davis Memorial Library, the college gymnasium and outside lighting as well as a conversion from oil to gas power.

Methodist College began classes for the spring semester on Monday, January 5th.
