METHODIST NINE

AIM HIGH

FAYETTEVILLE-It is baseball season again and Coach Tom Austin has parleyed his fine recruiting skills and superb coaching abilities to field what looks like another strong Methodist College baseball team.

Austin in his sixth season as the helm for the Monarchs is optimistic and well he should be. For the past three seasons, the Monarchs have reached the South Regionals in the NCAA Division III Tournament. They also are credited with one of the toughest schedules around, taking to the Diamond against ACC Teams the like of North Carolina, NC State and Wake Forest. Other Division I foes include Purdue and Armstrong State, but the list of scholarship schools doesn't end there.

The Monarch squad of last season was 39-9 but they lost some key players. Coach Austin believes that the returners and the newcomers will mix well. "They are all hard workers and they'll fight you to the end," exclaimed Austin who seems quite happy with his ball club.

The Monarch infield will be headed by junior Doug Garner of Beaufort, NC. Garner, 1984 All-DIAC second baseman will be starting at the "hot corner." Horne is a good power hitter and, according to Coach Austin, he can dominate a game offensively. Sharing some of the duty at third and the Monarch's designated hitter will be junior Mark Council from Lake Waccamaw, a transfer from ECU. Council has the most power-hitting potential on the Monarch squad

Janson Evans, freshman from Dudley, NC, probably the most consistent player for the Monarchs, will handle second base while Carl Poe, a freshman from Durham, NC, will be set at first. Poe has potential to be one of Methodist's best ever. He is a solid defensive player and hits back-side well.

The outfield is also young. In left field, sophomore Stan Mazingo from Goldsboro, NC, hits the ball hard and has good potential to hit the long ball. Over in right field is freshman Danny Hartline from Laurel, NC.

"Danny can just keep getting better. He's a great athlete," said Austin.

In center is a transfer from NC State, Artie Hall, Fayetteville, NC. Hall has the best arm in the outfield and runs well.

Also contesting for time in the outfield will be Roy Haddock. Roy, a freshman from Fayetteville, NC and the smallest man on the squad, is also the fastest. If Roy doesn't start in the outfield, he will be used as a designated runner for the catchers. Coach Austin looks for Haddock to steal a lot of bases.

The catching will be split between freshmen Dean Nelson from Harker's Island, NC and Paul Currie. Both have good offensive potential and are sound defensively. Another catcher who swings the bat well for the Monarchs is Toll Loving from Monroe, NC.

The Monarchs pitching staff should be the strongest portion of the team. The Monarch Mounds Men will be led by three seniors. Ronnie McNeil of Sanford, NC, 7-2 last season, is a good control pitcher. Frank Sessoms of Fayetteville, 4-3 last year, leads the team in saves with four, which is the single season record. Sessoms has set it each year he has been at

Rob Boswell of Fayetteville is another senior who throws hard for the Monarchs, 2-0, two saves, last season.

Sophomore Henry Bowden of Fayetteville, 7-3 is the hardest hurler for the Monarchs and Greg Pickett, junior from Shallotte, NC, 6-0 is a good control pitcher.

Austin also noted three freshmen hurlers: Carlos Besserva of Miami, FL; David Wright of Ruffin, NC; and Jimmy Wright of Pensacola, FL. All are expected to contribute to the team.

The DIAC should be strong this year with Virginia Wesleyan and NC Wesleyan being the toughest opponents. But the Monarchs are optimistic. "We have good team speed, but the key will be with bats," Austin believes. "Our pitchers will have to work hard, keep the scores down and our base running should intimidate some people."

The Monarchs are a good club. Expect them to keep the tradition going and make it to their goal, the NCAA Tournament.

METHODIST COLLEGE CHEERLEADERS

TAKE 1985 DIAC CHAMPIONSHIP

FAYETTEVILLE-Methodist College cheerleaders captured their second straight DIAC Cheerleading Championship on Saturday, February 23 at Greensboro College.

The Monarchs travelled to Greensboro to defend their Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title against squads from Christopher-Newport College, Greensboro College, NC Wesleyan College, St. Andrews Presbyterian College and UNC-Greensboro.

Performing third in the competition, the 14-member Methodist College squad presented a nine-minute routine featuring mounts, stunts, cheers, chants and dance routines to "Men On Pause" and "Cum On Feel the Noize."

while the Spartans of UNC-G were third.

"We felt really good after we finished our routine," says Raeford, "but we all knew that St. Andrews and UNC-G were going to be tough competition."

Nonetheless, the Monarchs from Methodist were the unanimous choice of all three judges. "It feels great!" says Gwen Sykes. "No one could have worked harder or with more heart than this group did. I knew that the routine was solid and that we had practiced hard. But more than that, I knew how unbelievably determined these cheerleaders are. Nothing throws them."

That composure was challenged on the Friday night before competition when freshman Paige Clawson suffered a severe asthma attack in Greensboro. Physicians at Westlawn Hospital emergency room in Greensboro administered medication and breathing treatment enabling her to perform on Saturday.

"Even if Paige had been unable to perform--this group could have handled it," said Sykes. "Without question, this is the best all-around squad I've ever had."

Westbrook concurs, indicating that the two-time DIAC champs have begun a "dynasty that the freshmen on the squad are determined to continue!"
