METHODIST COLLEGE TO OFFER

SUMMER COMPUTER WORKSHOPS

FAYETTEVILLE--Methodist College will offer 16 different sessions of computer workshops this summer, beginning Monday, May 6, on the Methodist College campus.

Workshops will be offered in many areas, including programming and computer-assisted composition, as well as specific computer programs such as "WordStar," "ThinkTank," and "MailMerge." The sessions are designed for children, teachers, the business community and senior citizens, in addition to the general public.

Cost for each workshop varies, starting at $75. Senior citizens discounts are available.

Most of the workshops will meet daily in the Computer-Assisted Composition Lab located in the Methodist College classroom building from 9 o'clock in the morning until 12 o'clock noon and again from 1 o'clock until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Workshop enrollment is limited to ten participants, each of whom will have use of an IBM computer.

Methodist College faculty will conduct the workshops. Instructors will include Methodist College president Dr. Elton Hendricks, Academic Dean Dr. Lynn Sadler, and Computer-Assisted Composition Lab Director Dr. Wendy Greene.

For more information about the workshops, please call 488-7110, extension 293, 283, or 221.

TWO METHODIST COLLEGE PROFESSORS

AWARDED HUMANITIES GRANTS

FAYETTEVILLE--Two Methodist College faculty members have been awarded grants for summer study from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Dr. Robert Christian, professor of English, and Dr. Sue Kimball, associate professor of English, will study at Stanford University in Palo Alto, CA, and Columbia University in New York City, respectively. Dr. Christian will attend a seminar conducted by Yale University professor of English Dr. Michael G. Cooke entitled "English Romanticism: The Problem of Wholeness." The seminar begins June 24 and ends August 16. Dr. Kimball will study under Chaucer scholar Dr. Robert W. Hanning of Columbia's English faculty. The seminar she will attend begins June 17 and concludes August 9. Her topic of study will be "Chaucer's Language Games - Society as Art in Canterbury Tales."

Christian was required to make application for the grant by April 1, 1985, and was notified of his selection April 22. Upon completion of the summer study, he plans to write a paper on "the search for wholeness in (William) Wordsworth's 'The Prelude.'"

"The Prelude" is one of five primary pieces of literature selected for study at the Stanford seminar. Christian contends that upon careful study of key passages of the Wordsworth poem, he "shall conclude that there is an underlying sense of the unity or wholeness of life which, when perceived, reflected upon, and affirmed, can uplift, comfort, and sustain mankind."

Christian holds an undergraduate degree in English from Western Maryland College. He earned a Master's degree in English from the University of Connecticut

Christian holds an undergraduate degree in English from Western Maryland College. He earned a Master's degree in English from the University of Connecticut in 1960 and a Master of Divinity degree in Theology from Drew University in 1963. In 1975, he earned his Ph.D. in English from the University of South Carolina.

Christian has taught at Methodist College since 1968, where he is currently chairman of the English department and director of the humanities division. He and his wife, Kathryn, reside in Fayetteville and have two children.

Kimball completed her application for the grant by its deadline, April 22, and was notified April 24 of her award. During the seminar, she plans to study a specific Chaucer poem, "Parlement of Foules." Noting that "language and games are two of (her) favorite topics," Kimball eagerly anticipates studying language games in the works of Chaucer. Her dissertation on William Congreve's works also researched language and games.

Kimball first attended a National Endowment for the Humanities seminar in the summer of 1979 at Louisiana State University, where she studied "Southern Fiction" under Dr. Lewis Simpson, a noted authority on Southern Literature. Kimball graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1942 with an undergraduate degree in English. She holds a Master's degree in Education from St. Mary College in Kansas (1963) and a Ph. D. in English from the University of Alabama (1979).

A member of the Methodist faculty since 1978, Kimball is the mother of seven children.

National Endowment for the Humanities grants are awarded annually. Out of approximately 6000 applications received, 600 selections are made. Methodist College Academic Dean Dr. Lynn V. Sadler, who recommended both Christian and Kimball for the grants and directed an NEH seminar last summer at Bennett College in Greensboro on "The Novel of Slave Unrest," notes that "for English instructors, the receipt of a National Endowment for the Humanities grant is truly an honor. The award is much like an Academy Award because the competition is so keen."

OGLESBY WINS METHODIST COLLEGE

ATHLETIC AWARDS

FAYETTEVILLE--Carla Oglesby of Cowpens received the "Outstanding Senior Female Athlete Award" at Methodist College's annual all-sports banquet held Thursday evening, April 25, in the Alumni Dining Room on the Methodist College campus. Co-winner of the award with Mandy VanderRoest of Hope Mills, NC, Oglesby won the award because of her participation in basketball and softball at Methodist College.

In addition to the senior award, Oglesby received the Most Valuable Player award in women's basketball for the 1984-85 season.

Oglesby is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rochell Oglesby of Cowpens, SC.

Methodist College is a four-year private residential college of liberal arts and sciences located on a 600-acre campus bordering the Cape Fear River in Fayetteville, NC.
