PRESENTATION OF FLAGS HIGHLIGHTS

METHODIST COLLEGE GRADUATION

FAYETTEVILLE--International students at Methodist College in Fayetteville, NC have established a graduation tradition that will insure their place in the memory of the college community.

Each international student who graduates from Methodist will present to the college a flag of his/her country to be carried as part of the processional and recessional at each graduation ceremony.

Talal F.M.M. Al-Azimi, 1985 graduate in business administration, initiated the tradition with the presentation of the flag of Kuwait to college president Dr. M. Elton Hendricks during May graduation exercises. Won Hyung Un, 1985 graduate in religion, followed with the presentation of the flag of South Korea to Dr. Hendricks.

International students have been part of the heritage of Methodist College since its chartering in 1956, according to Dr. Hendricks. The flag presentation ceremony is designed to offer perpetual recognition of the strong contribution of international students to the Methodist College campus.

HOODING RITUAL ADDS PERSONALITY TO METHODIST COLLEGE GRADUATION

FAYETTEVILLE--Initiation into the world of degrees and academic regalia can be both impersonal and abstract for college graduates, but Methodist College has found a way to create that personal touch in commencement exercises.

Methodist graduates receiving degrees in the Formal Commencement Exercises this May were allowed to select an individual to follow them on stage and to drape them with their academic hood immediately after they received their diploma. The majority of graduates chose family members (mother/father/husband/wife), but several graduates selected a special faculty or staff member.

A particularly moving part of the hooding ceremony occurred when graduate Richard Bicoy, music major from Ewa Beach, Hawaii, was hooded by his mother and then given a lei of fresh Hawaiian flowers she had brought with her from the islands.

Response to the hooding ceremony has been unanimously favorable, indicating that a new Methodist College graduation tradition has been established.
