METHODIST COLLEGE EARNS TOP CASE AWARD

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- A photograph entered by Methodist College in the 1986 Council and Advancement for the Support of Education (CASE) District III Communications Awards Competition has earned a first-place Grand Award.

The photograph, used in the college's admissions literature (athletic poster), was one of five top winners in the Photography/Non News category. Methodist and Radford University earned the highest award. One Excellence Award went to Rollins College, and Merit Awards went to East Carolina University, James Madison University and Georgia Tech.

Methodist's entry, designed by Hodges Associates Inc., a Fayetteville advertising agency, edged out a number of major colleges and universities in the 13-state CASE Southeast District.

Methodist was awarded Merit status (third place) for an illustration from a recruitment poster in the Illustrations category. Radford was the top winner with second place awards (Excellence) going to UNC-Chapel Hill, University of Kentucky and University of Mississippi School of Pharmacy.

"We're very pleased with our admissions literature and we're getting some very positive reactions to it," said Al Robinson, director of public information and publications at Methodist. "A lot of people have worked very hard on this literature here at the college and at Hodges Associates."

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- Methodist College recently held its 1985-86 Scholarship Competition, hosting 41 high school seniors from North Carolina and states along the East Coast. These students competed for scholarships ranging from $750 to the Presidential Scholarships which are valued at approximately $20,000 each.

This year's recipients of the Presidential Scholarships are Sharon Renee Daniels, Fayetteville, and Danielle Hargett, New Bern.

In recognition of academic achievement, Methodist College has held a scholarship competition for more than 20 years. Last year, the monies awarded varied from $750 to $2,000. In 1985, more than $500,000 was awarded in scholarships. In addition, the two full-tuition Presidential Scholarships awarded through the annual competition are renewable for four years, contingent upon maintaining a 3.0 grade point average.

Elton Hendricks, president of Methodist, at a breakfast he and his wife, Gerri, hosted in the President's Home on the Methodist campus.

The actual scholarship competition consisted of one required English CLEP examination and one CLEP test selected from the fields of social studies, natural sciences, mathematics or humanities. In addition, each student was interviewed by a panel consisting of one Methodist College administrator, two faculty members and one current Methodist student.

Scholarship winners were determined by totaling interview scores and CLEP test results.

METHODIST ESTABLISHES SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- Methodist College announced today the establishment of the Charles M. Reeves School of Business. The college has named the school in honor of Reeves, a Sanford, NC, businessmen and a member of the college's Board of Trustees.

"We have named the school in honor of Charles M. Reeves because of his creative leadership and his views and philosophy of the free enterprise system," said Dr. Elton Hendricks, president of Methodist.

Reeves, who has been successfully involved in banking, railroad car leasing, real estate development and other business and economic ventures, is a former three-term member of the North Carolina Banking Commission. He is a former Lee County commissioner.

A native of Sanford, Reeves graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill in 1940 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He served in World War II as a Navy pilot.

Reeves, who taught economics classes at Methodist for about several years, said "I didn't want the school to be named in my honor on the basis of a financial contribution. Other people have given more money than I have. I have contributed a lot of money, but the most important gift is preaching optimism to Methodist students."

He added that "this is the finest time for a person to go into business for yourself. Methodist has a very fine business program."

Hendricks noted that Reeves' interest in education and basic philosophy about economics is important. He sees the economic climate as being positive.

"He has made a significant contribution financially, but thus far it is his economic philosophy that is the major gift to the college," Hendricks said. "That has been the stimulus for everything."

Reeves is an advocate of entrepreneurship. He supports an economy controlled by prices in the marketplace. "We must preach optimism and not be pessimistic about the economy," he said.

Dr. Frank Spreng, chairman of the Division of Business at Brescia College in Owensboro, KY, has been named director of the Charles M. Reeves School of Business and professor of economics and business at Methodist College. He will begin his duties at the start of the 1986 fall semester.

METHODIST COLLEGE

Methodist College was founded in 1956 as a joint effort involving the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church and the citizens of Fayetteville and Cumberland County. Dr. Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and former president of Duke University in Durham, NC, served as chairman of the first board of trustees.

Dr. L. Stacy Weaver was the college's first president. He was succeeded by Dr. Richard Pearce. Three years ago, Dr. M. Elton Hendricks assumed the presidency of Methodist College.

The college opened its doors to a freshman class of 128 students on Sept. 19, 1960. That first class, which graduated in 1964, was subsequently joined by the Classes of 1965, 1966 and 1967 to fulfill the dream of the church and the community to bring a four-year institution of higher education with a Christian emphasis to southeastern North Carolina.

Methodist began operation at the dawn of a new decade. At that time there were three buildings -- the Trustees' Building, the Science Building and the Student Union.

As the student body and faculty grew, so did the physical plant. Four residence halls, an administration building, a gymnasium, an auditorium/fine arts facility, library, and chapel were all added to the campus in less than 10 years.

Today, two and one-half decades later, Methodist College has grown to an enrollment of nearly 1,400 students. The student body is represented by states throughout the Eastern Seaboard and several foreign countries. The college offers 34 majors in a wide range of academic areas.

The college hosts many community events in Reeves Auditorium, including the Fayetteville Symphony, the Fayetteville Dance Theater, the Fayetteville Symphonic Band, the Community Concert Series and the North Carolina Symphony. The college sponsors many cultural events for the community at no admission charge, including the annual Fine Arts Festival, Southern Literary Symposium, Iterations, Economic Outlook Symposium, and a number of dramatic and musical performances in the Fine Arts Department.

Now in its third decade -- a young but strong institution -- Methodist College remains committed to its mission -- a liberal arts education based upon Christian ideals and beliefs.

YOW NAMED DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS AT METHODIST COLLEGE

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- The Methodist College Alumni Association has awarded Dr. Thomas S. Yow III, president of Martin College, Pulaski, TN, with its 1985-86 Distinguished Alumnus Award.

Yow, a 1966 graduate of Methodist College, was named president of Martin College last spring, after serving as assistant to the president at Louisburg College, Louisburg, NC, for eight years.

Martin is a United Methodist college with an enrollment of 300 students. The city of Pulaski boasts a population of 8,000 and is located in middle Tennessee.

Yow is a native of Rockingham, NC, and a 1962 graduate of Rockingham High School. After graduating from Methodist with a bachelor of arts degrees in history and religion, he became the associate pastor of Davis Street Methodist Church in Burlington, NC. He was later appointed associate pastor of First United Methodist Church in Garner, NC, and three years later Yow received his first full pastorate at Lyon Memorial United Methodist Church in Fayetteville.

In 1973, Yow returned to Methodist College as director of admissions and financial aid. Four years later, at age 34, he was named assistant to the president at Louisburg College.

Yow has been active in the Methodist College Alumni Association since his

He also served as chairman of the Liason Committee, 1969-71; chairman of the Chapters Committee, 1973-74; and chairman of the Nominating Committee, 1975-77.

Yow holds master of divinity and a doctor of education degrees from Duke University.

In addition to his work with the Methodist College Alumni Association, he has been active in many community, church and political organizations. He has been a member of Kiwanis, Lions and Jaycees.

Last spring, Yow was presented the Louisburg College Medallion, Louisburg's highest award. Other honors include being named to "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities," "Outstanding Young Men of America," and he was selected by the Cumberland County (Fayetteville, NC) Jaycees as "Young Man of the Year."

Yow is married to the former Julia Bryson. They have two teenage sons, Robert and Charles.
