PIANO FUND REACHES $17,000

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- Officials at Methodist College have announced that a fund drive for a new concert grand piano has exceeded $17,000. The Reeves Auditorium Piano Fund was created in the fall of 1985 to raise money to purchase a nine-foot concert grand piano for use at college and community events held in the auditorium.

Groups that have performed at Methodist's Reeves Auditorium the past year include the North Carolina Symphony, the Fayetteville Symphony, the Fayetteville Symphonic Band, Highland British Brass Band, the Fayetteville Dance Theatre, Community Concert Series, several schools of dance instruction, various pageants, regional high school chorale and band contests, local school concerts, and numerous other community groups.

Many Methodist College recitals, concerts, plays and other cultural events are held in the auditorium, featuring faculty and students from the college's fine arts division.

Persons wishing to contribute to the piano fund may send their gifts to Mrs. C. C. Duell, Reeves Piano Fund Co-Chairman, 611 Westmont Dr., Fayetteville, NC 28305.

McCREE BRYAN NAMED TO HISTORIAN
POST AT METHODIST COLLEGE

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- Mary Lynn McCree Bryan of Fayetteville has been named historian-in-residence at Methodist College by Dr. Lynn Veach Sadler, vice president for academic affairs and academic dean.

McCree Bryan, a nationally known expert on Jane Addams, will serve as a resource person in the college's history department. Her appointment becomes effective at the beginning of the 1986-87 academic year.

McCree Bryan holds a bachelor of arts degree in history from Alabama Polytechnic Institute and a master of arts degree in history from the University of Illinois. In 1975, she received an M.B.A. from the University of Chicago.

Since 1983, McCree Bryan has been editor of The Jane Addams Papers at Duke University. She previously held several positions at the University of Illinois at Chicago library, including head of the manuscripts collection, curator of Jane Addams Hull-House, and acting university librarian. From 1975-83, McCree Bryan edited The Jane Addams Papers at Illinois-Chicago.

She has presented lectures to historical organizations throughout the nation, most notably Society of American Archivists, Organization of American Historians, Case Western Advanced Archival Program, American Association for State and Local History, National Association of State Archivists and Records Administrators, Berkshire Conference, Midwest Archives Conference, Chicago Area Historians and other Chicago and Midwestern historical groups.

McCree Bryan was invited to make a presentation at Toynbee Hall in London in 1979.

Locally, she has made presentations to the North Carolina Special Librarians Association in 1983, to the Society of North Carolina Archivists in 1984 and at Pembroke State University in Pembroke, NC, in 1985.

She has edited and written for numerous publications on the life of Jane Addams, including Guide to the Papers of Jane Addams and Eighty Years at Hull-House. She has co-edited Prairie State, Impressions of Illinois, 1673-1967 and has contributed to Archival and Manuscript Resources for the Study of Women's History; A Beginning.

McCree Bryan serves as a board member of the Friends of North Carolina Archives, in addition to positions on the Cumberland County Community Foundation Board of Directors and the Historic Fayetteville Foundation.

She previously held positions with the National Historical Publications and Records Commission, the Society of American Archivists, the Illinois State Historical Records Advisory Board and the Northern Illinois University Regional Archives Advisory Board.

The Team Effort For Serious Baseball

Paul Currie and Danny Hartline are classmates, roommates and teammates at Methodist College, but above all they are friends. Friends tend to adopt like attitudes and common interests, and these are both very serious about baseball.

Currie and Hartline were teammates at Scotland High School where they were part of a winning infield combination. They learned to play baseball together, and together is the only way they know how to play.

"Danny has turned out to be one of the best outfielders I have ever seen," said Currie. "If a fly ball was hit into the outfield, I would want it hit to him."

Hartline is just as certain about his teammate. "Paul is the best defensive catcher ever," said Hartline.

Though their individual performance is important, it is secondary to the team effort. "You have to play as a team," said Currie. "You have to try not to take too much on yourself. You win as a team, and you lose as a team."

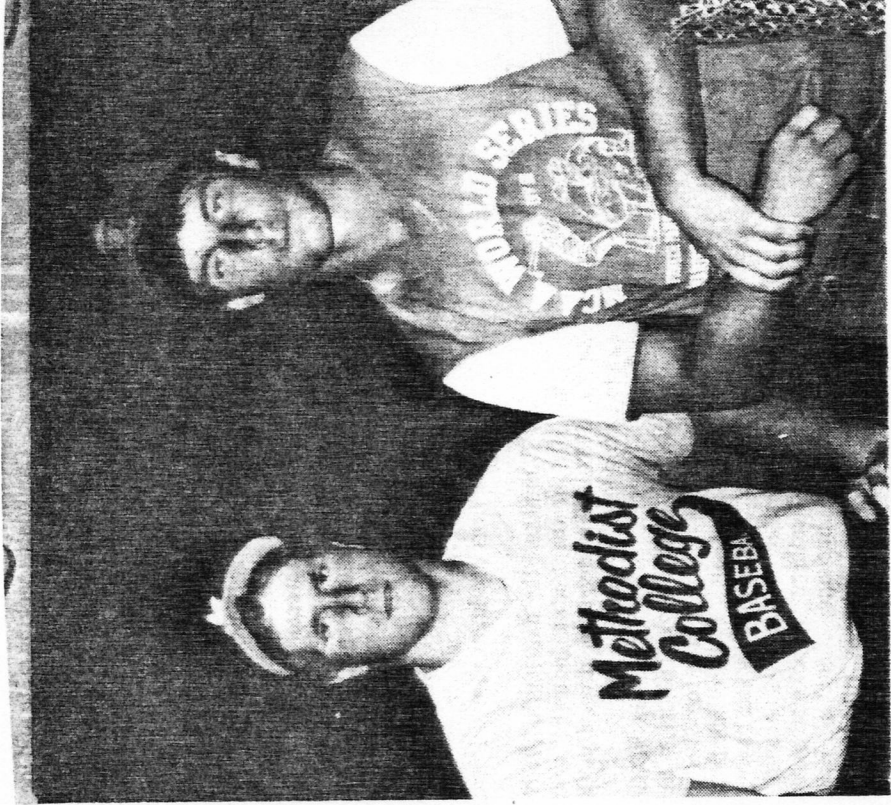

The two junior physical education majors at Methodist College do take a lot upon themselves as they have helped to lead Methodist in two winning seasons and this year's NCAA Division III South Region Title—a title they were runner-up to last year. They have just returned from the NCAA Division III World Series in Marietta, Ohio, where Methodist lost in the third game of the double-elimination competition this past weekend.

"We should have won," said Hartline, who boasts a .416 batting average for the season and was 5-14 with two boubles and four RBI in the series.

First game jitters increased when the first game was delayed due to darkness and had to be played the

Serious Ballplayers

Methodist College baseball players Paul Currie and Danny Hartline have just returned from the NCAA World Series where they lost their third game of the double-elimination competition. Even though the two physical education majors have their eyes set on the pros, Currie says that he would be glad to settle down to teaching and coaching.

next day at 10:00 a.m. They lost to Marrietta 12-6, but came back to beat Cal. State-Stanslov 12-9.

"We knew that we had another game and hadn't lost two in a row all year," said Hartline. "We had to go in and play our game."

The Methodist team lost again to host Marrietta in an 18-14 game that ended the series for Methodist. Hartline said that their pitching just fell apart, and at one point they were behind by 11 runs.

Currie still felt that the team performed well and that he was satisfied with his own performance.

"I threw out everyone that ran off me," said Currie who batted 5-10 in the series and had a .321 season.

Both Currie and Hartline feel confident in next season, with Methodist only losing three players from this 43-6-2 season. "Next year, we'll be right back," said Currie.

TWO METHODIST COLLEGE FACULTY MEMBERS
BEGIN STUDY AT HARVARD SUMMER SEMINARS

FAYETTEVILLE, NC -- Two members of the Methodist College faculty began study this week at the prestigious National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Seminars for College Teachers at Harvard University.

Elaine Porter, associate professor of French, is participating in a French classical literature seminar and Jane Weeks Townsend, instructor of music, is studying 19th century Afro-American musicians.

The NEH seminars are highly competitive and held annually on the campuses of America's leading research institutions. For a small liberal arts college like Methodist to have two selections to the seminars exemplifies the growing prominence of its academic programs. Underscoring that honor was the selection of two faculty members to the seminars last summer. Additionally, Dr. Lynn Sadler, Methodist's vice president for academic affairs, has past experience as a director at an NEH seminar.

Established by Congress in 1965, the NEH seminar program offers teachers of undergraduates a unique opportunity for advanced study or research in their own fields or in fields related to their interests. Only 12 teachers are selected for each of the eight-week seminars. These participants work together in an area of mutual interest under the direction of a distinguished scholar.

Porter will be working under Jules Brody, a romance language professor at Harvard. Eileen Southern, also from Harvard, will direct Townsend's seminar.

Beyond the work of the group, each participant undertakes an individual research project or program of intensive reading under the guidance of the director. Townsend is studying classical composition forms as they were approached by the 19th century Afro-American composers. Porter's study project is Charles Perrault.

The two women will conclude their study at Harvard on August 15.
