FAYETTEVILLE, NC--Methodist College will observe the 20th anniversary of Reeves Auditorium with a commemorative choral concert Friday, Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. and a Music Enrichment Seminar Saturday, Nov. 5. Both events are free and open to the public.

Alan Porter, Associate Professor of Music at Methodist, will direct the Methodist College Chorus, an orchestra, and four guest soloists in a performance of George Frederic Handel's "Ode on St. Cecilia's Day" and Zoltan Kodaly's "Te Deum." The guest soloists for the concert include: Michael Best (tenor), Suzanne Ishee (soprano), Charles Michael Smith (bass/baritone), and Teresa Batson (mezzo-soprano).

Porter selected two choral works he considered "most appropriate" for the 20th anniversary celebration of Reeves Auditorium, a place where thousands of persons have enjoyed operatic, choral, and orchestral performances. He describes the Handel work as "an oratorio in praise of the patron saint of music" and the Kodaly work as "a liturgical work in praise of God."

A Music Enrichment Seminar will be held Saturday, Nov. 5 from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. in Reeves Auditorium. The guest soloists who appeared the preceding evening will teach master classes lasting one to two hours each. Registration will take place at 9:30 a.m. in the Reeves lobby.

Michael Best, a Durham native and Duke University alumnus now in his tenth season with the Metropolitan Opera Company, will teach a class on opera.

Fayetteville native Suzanne Ishee, an actress and professional singer currently appearing in the Broadway musical "Phantom of the Opera," will teach a class on the Broadway musical theatre.

Rev. Charles Michael Smith of Highland United Methodist Church in Raleigh, who has appeared as a guest soloist at Duke University Chapel and East Carolina University and recently served on the Hymnal Revision Committee of the United Methodist Church, will teach a class on the church and music.

Teresa Batson, a music instructor at Methodist College who has appeared as a mezzo-soprano soloist in Fayetteville, Fort Worth, TX, and Greenville, SC, will teach vocal production.

The Music Enrichment Seminar is made possible by a grant from the Arts Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County. Lynda Beard, Administrative Assistant to the Vice President for Academic Affairs at Methodist, wrote the grant proposal.

METHODIST COLLEGE PROFESSOR AUTHORS TEXTBOOK

FAYETTEVILLE, NC--Dr. Carroll J. Jones, associate professor of education and chair of the Education Department at Methodist College, has written a college textbook for use in preparing teachers of handicapped pre-school children.

Dr. Jones came to Methodist this fall from Fayetteville State University. A native of Kansas, she holds a B.A. degree in Elementary Education and an M.Ed. degree in Reading from the University of Arizona. She earned her Ph.D. in Special Education Administration from Kansas State University.

Designed as a methods text for graduate students, the book is entitled Evaluation and Educational Programming of Deaf-Blind/Severely Multihandicapped Students (Sensorimotor Stage). It is designed to help the teachers of handicapped pre-school children prepare an individual education plan for each student. The book is being published by Charles C. Thomas of Springfield, Illinois.

Dr. Jones, says her text is based on actual case studies of deaf-blind children and research data collected when she chaired a regional diagnostic team in St. Louis in 1985. The eight-member team was charged with developing multidisciplinary student evaluation procedures for the federal government and the state of Missouri.

As a result of her experience in St. Louis, Dr. Jones decided there was a need to "organize information in an area where there is very little", namely the teaching of multihandicapped children of pre-school age.

Each chapter in the book presents detailed procedures for interpreting medical assessments, assessing the developmental skill level of the handicapped student in comparison to the normal student, designing appropriate educational services, and monitoring the educational progress of the student.

While Methodist does not currently offer a concentration in early childhood education, Dr. Jones notes, "I hope to build our learning disabilities program and add an early childhood special education program." By 1990, public school units will be required by law to serve handicapped children of pre-school age.

Dr. Jones has presented her research findings at major educational conferences in Denver, Boston, and Vancouver.

METHODIST COLLEGE TO ESTABLISH ATLANTIC COAST CENTER FOR LANGUAGE AND CULTURE

FAYETTEVILLE, NC--Methodist College will launch an innovative program for foreign students July 1, 1989.

The Atlantic Coast Center for Language and Culture will offer foreign students private tutoring in spoken and written English, escorted travel from their home country to Fayetteville and to other U.S. cities, an American host family and roommate, testing and counseling services, and the opportunity to earn up to 22 units of college credit during three semesters.

Elaine Porter, associate professor of French and chair of the Foreign Language Department at Methodist, wrote the proposal for the center which College President Elton Hendricks approved in August. Mrs. Porter said a foreign student who completes the first year should be fluent enough in English to continue college work, either at Methodist or at another institution.

Jane W. Cherry of Fayetteville will serve as director of the center, effective July 1, 1989. A public school guidance counselor, Mrs. Cherry has extensive experience working with international students and holds a master's degree in history from George Washington University. She and her husband, N.C. District Court Judge Sol Cherry, have opened their home to more than 100 foreign students, half of whom have enrolled at Methodist.

Mrs. Cherry said the primary goal of the new program is to provide an in-depth experience in American culture and thereby foster better understanding and world peace. "I believe this will be another way in which both Methodist College and Fayetteville can establish their identities as international centers," she said. "I also feel this will give a new dimension to campus life."

The Atlantic Coast Center has adopted the motto "A Center For Language-- A Place For Friendship." Foreign applicants must be high school or college graduates, have studied English successfully, have three references from the high school or college attended, and be interviewed by a member of the center staff. The cost for one year will be $25,000, payable in three installments.

Mrs. Cherry projects that the Atlantic Coast Center for Language and Culture will enroll 22-25 students during its first year, 1989-90. Mrs. Masumi Matsumura, a teacher of English from Japan, is acting as consultant for the center and will market the program in Japan. Although the program is designed to accommodate students from any foreign country, initial marketing efforts will be concentrated in Japan, where favorable exchange rates make it very attractive.

Methodist has considerable experience educating Japanese students; the college has accepted students through the East-West Foundation since 1978. For the Fall, 1988 semester, Methodist enrolled 25 foreign students, representing 10 different countries. Japan and Ireland top the list, with nine and seven students respectively.
