METHODIST COLLEGE TRUSTEES VOTE TO BUILD ADDITIONAL RESIDENCE HALLS

FAYETTEVILLE, NC--The Methodist College Board of Trustees recently approved a series of planning recommendations that will allow the college to serve "at least 2,000 students" by the year 2000. In 1992-93, the college served 1,680 students.

At a planning retreat June 4-6, the trustees approved the construction of additional residence halls over a six-year period to accommodate an additional 300 resident students. Each residence hall will house 50-60 students; the first will be opened in the fall of 1994. The college will borrow funds to build the facilities and use revenues from room rent to retire the debt.

"I believe if we build these facilities, the students will come," said Dr. Elton Hendricks, college president. "The Buildings and Grounds Committee (of the board of trustees) will meet soon to select an architect and discuss sites for the new residence halls. We will review enrollment trends yearly to decide if the additional units are needed."

Methodist can presently accommodate 600 students in four residence halls. An additional 44 students can be housed in a renovated 12 -unit apartment building on the southern edge of the campus. The college is planning for 610 resident students this fall.

The construction of new residence halls was one of several recommendations presented to the trustees by a Strategic Concepts Committee appointed by the president. The committee's report and recommendations were discussed in detail during the trustees' planning retreat.

The trustees approved two other recommendations which have major ramifications for the future of the college. First, they authorized a feasibility study to prepare for a major capital campaign for building the endowment and new academic facilities. They also established a task force to make recommendations to the trustees in the summer of 1994 regarding development of unused college land.

SOCIAL WORK PROGRAM GRANTED CANDIDACY ACCREDITATION

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.—The Council on Social Work Education has granted Methodist College's social work program candidacy for accreditation.

"Full accreditation will take us about two years," said Emily Seamon, head of the Department of Sociology and Social Work. "We will have to do a self-study which shows how we comply with their standards."

Mrs. Seamon noted that accreditation by the national council will confer added status upon Methodist's social work graduates. "Graduates of accredited programs are usually given preference in hiring and advanced standing in graduate school," she explained. "They also qualify for social worker certification by the State of North Carolina."

The social work faculty -- Emily Seamon and Terry Moore Brown -- will soon begin work on the self-study, in consultation with a commissioner from the council. A review team assembled by the council will visit the department after the self-study has been completed.
