MU Crowns A New Miss Methodist

Staff Writer Gabbie Isaac

The crowd came to a hush as the announcer paused before reading the name of the next Miss Methodist. With two girls left for the title, a long pause created suspense among the audience. A fanfare of cheers erupted when senior Kelsey Magnine, a Business Administration major from Amery, WI, was crowned Miss Methodist 2012-2013.

The sixth annual Miss Methodist pageant was held on Feb. 8 in Reeves auditorium. Many students, family members and friends came out to support the girls who were participating. There were some cheers as well as words of encouragement coming from the audience during performances. Student Activities Director Doris Jackson felt that the pageant was a success.

"I thought it was a wonderful pageant with good quality talent and beautiful girls," Jackson said.

The 12 Miss Methodist hopefuls opened the pageant with a group dance performance. After the dance, each girl had the opportunity to introduce themselves, sharing where they are from, their year and their major.

After the introducing themselves, the competition started with each girl showcasing a talent. Acts included singing, dancing, hula hooping, playing the water glasses and jumping hurtles. The crowd cheered after every act.

After the talent competition, the participants and audience took a 15 minute intermission, allowing the judges and audience to vote on their favorites in the lobby of Reeves. At that time, audience members could also drop money into cans for each participant. Proceeds went towards a breast cancer fundraiser.

Following the talent section of the pageant, the next portion contained evening wear and an interview. The ladies displayed their colorful and sparkly evening gowns and answered one interview question. Questions ranged anywhere from "What super power would you want and why?" to "Do you think that you are a positive role model?"

The votes from the judges and audience were tallied during the interview section, and five ladies, Syaz, Tina Nesbitt, Melissa Duffield, Knolan Johnson and Kelsey Magnine, were chosen to continue on to the next round. The ladies, still in their evening wear, answered a second interview question for the last round. The audience laughed as Syaz, a second year international student from Singapore, answered her guestion, which asked what she thought about Fayetteville. In her reply, she told the judges and the audience that the little bit of Favetteville that she has seen has been great and she looks forward to seeing more of

While the judges tallied the final results. Lacey Truelove. Miss Methodist 2011-2012, gave a farewell speech and performed "How He Loves" by the David Crowder band in American Sign Language.

The first to be crowned was Nesbitt, receiving the title of Miss Congeniality. Next, Syaz took the title of second runnerup, Duffield was named first runner-up in the competition and Magnine took the crown as the new Miss Methodist.

Magnine has already made a few goals that she would like to achieve during her reign as Miss Methodist 2012-2013.

"My goals are to motivate, inspire and bring out the beauty of Methodist University," Magnine said.

Truelove hopes that Miss Methodist 2012-2013 will go above and beyond what is stated in her contract.

"I hope she has just as a fantastic year as I did," Truelove said.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I am a big fan of smalltalk and do read it in my leisure. Not only me, many students on our campus also read smalltalk.

For me, smalltalk always brings something new to me to discuss with my friends at dinner table. For instance, I was talking with my friends about the "Renovations In Berns: Love it or Hate it?" at dinner tonight.

Anyway, I have a small suggestion for smalltalk, but I am very certain that if we implement this suggestion, it will add some good qualities upon smalltalk.

If we have a "International column"or "International page" on Smalltalk, it would bring so many positive outcomes such as below:

1) It will diverse the theme of Smalltalk and covers more audience.

2) It will give a great cultural, Dear Dhondup Tashi Rekjong, historical, and social understanding to American students who have never been in any other countries.

3) American students have a chance to hear about International students who share their unique background, experience, and history.

4) There will be a great interaction between International students and American students through Smalltalk.

Again, just one page for "International Column" or 'International page".

Thank you very much for your time.

With Best Regards, Dhondup Tashi Rekjong

We would love to have an international coloum. However, we do not have anyone on staff that can do that right now. Would you like to volunteer or do vou know someone that can make this happen? If you do, we would greatly appreciate it. Please stop by Chris's house and speak with Roxanna Ross.

Thank you, Smalltalk Editors

In Time

Tis to be sweet
Our friendship long
In time proceeds
A great love ignites
Deep down inside
Our longing hearts
Abides the love
That kindles sparks
To enlighten the night
Revealing the paths to our stirring hearts
Never ceasing to run towards you
For my love is ever so continuously true

Farewell from Roxanne

You were always there for me,
But how come I never knew?
You had always loved me,
But how come you never told me?
It doesn't matter now,
because I know all about the letters from your loving soul,
It wasn't Christian's words of passion, it was you.
Now you are looking death in the eyes.
I lost the man I thought was for me,
But it was you who my soul desired.
Now I'm about to lose you.
Oh Cyrano, why?
Why does love forsake me so?
Why?

A Passionate Heart

At last now I stand here dreaming in reality, all blurred into red and gray, my heart racing at the speed of light I envision bringing my fingers to your lips and all time stops I forever think of you and ponder in the memory of your ways.

> How I silently called for your love the way you made me feel in my soul the way you touched my heart and made me believe.

Unable to stop, it seems too wonderful, but in the end there is not much but pain to bear.

I allow this for some time, then I awake to my senses and know that I am alive the possibilities are forever endless.

"The Vow" Touches Hearts

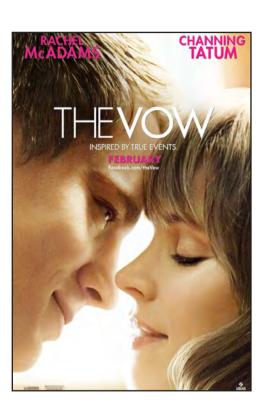

Staff Writer Gabbie Isaac

In "The Vow," a tear-jerking chick flick, Channing Tatum plays Leo, a man working to regain the love of his wife Paige (Rachel McAdams), who lost her memory after a tragic car accident. During the accident, Paige loses all of the memories that she has made with her husband, while Leo comes out with a few bumps and bruises. Fortunately, Paige can remember her parents and sister, but she does not understand why she would have left her home and changed who she was.

In order to help regain her memory, her doctor recommends that she get back into her daily routines. Paige attempts to remember how life was with her husband, who is now a stranger to her, but eventually the stress of coping with a strange life causes Paige to go home to live with her mother and her father. Before she moves home, Leo warns Paige to be careful around her parents. Leo is worried that she will remember the reason why she gave up on her family and moved to the city.

After moving home, Paige has to deal with her ex-fiancé and a family secret that will have movie-goers on the edge of their seat. This movie is best for women of all ages and is a great date movie.

The Hobbit Comes to Life

Staff Writer Tria Detz

"The Hobbit" by J.R.R. Tolkien is a very good book. The plot is a long journey with a lot of little adventures within the main story. The book is from third person narrator point of view; which adds a comical feel to the book.

The main character, Bilbo, is a hobbit that lives in a hole called Bag End. Hobbits are miniature humans with big hairy feet that love to drink alcohol and enjoy good food. However, they do not like adventure or the exploring the world beyond their own community. Unfortunately for Bilbo, he encounters much adventure.

Gandalf, a wizard friend, shows up on Bilbo's door along with thirteen dwarves in tow who need Bilbo's help. Bilbo has been drafted to join them on their journey as a "Burgler" or "Sneak" in their quest to Thorin Oakenshield is the dwarf in charge of the expedition due to the fact that the mountain is his inheritance; his grandfather had lost the mountain to Smaug. There are also elves, goblins, trolls, and other magical creatures that make an appearance in Bilbo's adventure.

This book is the prequel to the Lord of the Rings series and explains how Bilbo found the ring and met Gollum. It is also a setup for the start of the series.

Soon, "The Hobbit" will hit the big screen in two parts. The first part, called The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey, will be coming out on December 14th, while part Opinion Is the Entrance to Methodist Safe?

Some students have encountered car problems and safety issues due to the road work on Ramsey street as well as the stoplight that leads students and faculty on to campus. This poll was taken by students of Methodist University. Approximatley 50 students took the time to take this poll.

Campus Detective

Illistration by Emory Jacobs

Dear Campus Detective,

I walked into the Berns student center today to find a piano. To me, it is rather annoying. Some people who cannot play a simple song like "Chopsticks" tend to come over and pound on the keys. It's not that I hate pianos, I just think that it is added noise to the already bustling Berns. My question is, how do other students feel about the new addition?

Sincerely,

Nothing but Treble.

Dear Treble,

I decided to further investigate your predicament. All of the clues led me to believe that more than half of the students who were questioned actually enjoyed the addition to Berns. However, there are a small amount of people who agree with you as well as some who are indifferent to the addition. I hope that this information has helped you.

Your Welcome,

C. Detective
