Business Society and the Audubon Center for Economic Education. He is a member of Rotary International and Investigators of Owensboro. He is president of the Kentucky Economic Association and directed and organized the association's annual meeting held last fall.

The mayor of Owensboro appointed him to the Owensboro Civic, Cultural and Economic Development Commission. He has served as secretary of the commission and was appointed chairman in June 1982.

Dr. Spreng is married to L. Jane (Fitzgerald) Spreng and they are the parents of two daughters.

Novak Presents Keynote Address

Methodist announced the establishment of the Charles M. Reeves School of Business at a noon luncheon held in the dining hall of the college's Student Union. Over 200 area business and community leaders and friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Reeves attended the luncheon and program.

The keynote address at the luncheon was presented by Michael Novak, writer, scholar, activist, and holder of the George Frederick Jewett Chair in Religion and Public Policy at the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, DC

A Pennsylvania native, Novak graduated summa cum laude from Stonehill College in 1956 and cum laude from the Gregorian University in Rome in 1958. He later studied at Catholic University in Washington, DC, and earned a master of arts degree in history and philosophy from Harvard University in 1966.

He was an assistant professor of humanities at Stanford University from 1965-68. Twice in three years the senior class voted him one of the two "most influential professors."

From 1968-73 he taught at the newly formed experimental college at the State University of New York at Old Westbury. He then launched a new humanities program for the Rockefeller Foundation. In 1976, he accepted a tenured chair as the Ledder-Watson Distinguished Professor of Religion at Syracuse University. He joined the American Enterprise Institute two years later.

Novak is the founder of the Ethnic Millions Action Committee (EMAC) and in the mid-1970's he campaigned for the creation of a White House Office of Ethnic Affairs. This office was opened during the Ford administration and continued under President Carter. Novak served as advisor during both administrations.

In 1981 and 1982, he was appointed by President Reagan as the Chief of the United States Delegation to the United Nations Human Rights Commission in Geneva. His highly acclaimed speeches from the 37th and 38th Sessions, "Rethinking Human Rights: Vols. I and II," were published in 1982 and 1983.

Novak has written two novels and nearly 20 influential books in the areas of philosophy, theology and culture. He has written a nationally syndicated weekly column and his articles have appeared in The New Republic, Commentary, Harpers, The Atlantic, National Review and numerous other popular and scholarly journals.

His writings have appeared in every major Western language, Bengali, Korean and Japanese. He has received numerous awards including 10 honorary degrees.

Charles M. Reeves

Charles M. Reeves, noted business executive in the state of North Carolina and a former member of the State Banking Commission, is a native of the Tar Heel State and a life-long resident.

The son of Charles Mercer and Suzanne Easten (Purvis) Reeves, he was born in Sanford, NC, on Feb. 14, 1919. After graduating from high school, he enrolled in the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and graduated in 1940 with a bachelor of science degree in business administration.

Following service in the U.S. Navy as a pilot during World War II, Reeves returned to Sanford and operated a bus company. In 1949, he founded the Provident Finance Company in Sanford and served as president of the firm until 1977. The Provident Finance Company was purchased several years ago by the South Carolina National Bank. Reeves still has holdings with its parent company, the South Carolina National Corporation.

He has been successfully involved in banking, railroad car leasing, real estate development and other business and economic ventures.

Since 1968, Reeves has been chairman of the board of the Atlantic and Western Railway and the Atlantic and Western Rialway and the Atlantic and Western Finance Corporation in Sanford. He is currently the president and chairman of Southern Provident and Life Insurance Company, Phoenix, AZ; a director of Steel and Pipe Corporation, Sanford; a partner in Rich Mountain Associates, Boone, NC; and a partner in Cape Lookout Associates, Morehead, City, NC.

Reeves was elected to the Lee County Board of Commissioners in 1953 and served for two years. He was a member of the North Carolina Banking Commission from 1954-61 and 1969-73, and a member of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education from 1961-62.

Since 1964, Charles Reeves has served on the District Executive Committee of the Boy Scouts of America. A member of St. Luke's United Methodist Church in Sanford, Mr. Reeves has served as a member of the board of trustees at Methodist College for several years.

He is also a member of Mensa, SAR, Beta Theta Pi and Rotary. He and his wife, Sarah Frances Crosby Reeves, whom he married on Oct. 12, 1940, make their home at Reeves Ridge Farm in Sanford. Mr. and Mrs. Reeves are the parents of four children: Charles Mercer III, David Crosby, Suzanne (Mrs. James Marion Parrott IV) and John Mercer II.

Working Hard Is Duggins' Philosophy

By Lynn Gruber Byrd MC Today Co-Editor Murray O. Duggins' philosophy of placing an emphasis on hard work was evident even during his years at Methodist. As a day student, he carried a full load of studies and worked full-time after Formerly a student of Seventy-First High School in Fayetteville, Murray received his B.A. in business administration from Methodist in 1966 and a master's degree in education with a concentration in guidance and counseling from East Carolina University in 1972.

In an effort to more efficiently pursue his business opportunities, Murray became a licensed real estate broker in 1972, a licensed insurance broker in 1978, a licensed general business contractor in 1978 and a certified real estate instructor in 1980.

All of these accomplishments have aided him in the 19 businesses in which he is presently principal owner or partner in North Carolina and South Carolina. These business projects include real estate holdings, marinas and insurance companies.

Murray has been president of the Fayetteville Exchange Club, on the board of control for the Exchange Club of Greater Fayetteville, on the administrative board of the Haymount United Methodist Church, a mason of John Huske Anderson Lodge #731, a member of the Cumberland County Shrine Club and a member of the board of directors of the Methodist College Foundation.

In 1982, Murray was cited by the Business and Economics Club of Methodist College as Outstanding Alumnus in the business field.

ing Alumnus in the business field.

When asked what major changes he has noted at Methodist College since 1966, Murray cited the construction of new buildings, the growing enrollment, and the college's higher visibility in the Fayetteville community. He feels that the involvement in the local community in the Foundation drive helps to cement relations.

Murray is happy that he chose Methodist and feels that he would have been lost in a large university. He also acknowledges that he derived benefits from Methodist during a key point in his life.

Not only does Murray look forward to working harder for his alma mater but he is especially pleased that his daughter, Denise, will probably soon be entering Methodist.

Murray and his wife, the former Nancy Trogdon of Hope Mills, have three children. They are Denise, age 18, Murray Odom Jr., age nine and Wade, age seven.

Homecoming '86

By Lynn Gruber Byrd MC Today Co-Editor Come one, come all to the greatest show on earth — or at least on campus! Please circle your calendars on the dates of October 10, 11 and 12 for Homecoming 1986.

Our theme this year is the circus and promises to give us a week of fun here on campus. The students will be entertained during that week by jugglers (trained by our own Dr. Todd Woerner), clowns, circus movies and other big top attractions.

Please bring the children because we will have activities to amuse the young as well as the young-atheart.

Our August issue of MC Today and a special mailer will give you all the details of scheduled events, baby sitting facilities and special rates at a cooperating hotel.

R.B. Goforth, past United Methodist Men district president, represented Methodist College at Culbreth Memorial United Methodist Church on Methodist College Day held Sunday, March 16, throughout the Fayetteville District of the United Methodist Church.

Methodist College Day In UMC Fayetteville District

By Bill Lowdermilk

March 16, 1986, marked a new experience in the life of Methodist College. It was the first time that every United Methodist Church in a four-county area had a special emphasis on Methodist College.

R.B. Goforth, former Fayetteville District United Methodist Men president; Herman Winberry, Fayetteville District superintendent; and Tom Holtsclaw, Fayetteville District Council on Ministries chairman discussed the idea last year, but it wasn't until the District Council on Ministries met in December that the idea became an official program of the district.

The idea was to have a day celebrating Methodist College in each church of the Fayetteville District on a given Sunday. There are 62 churches in Cumberland, Harnett, Hoke and Sampson counties which make up the Fayetteville District. Each church was given a choice of whether to have someone at the sermon time or to have a special four-minute highlight. The college musical and dramatic groups were also alternative programs.

Speakers included faculty members, staff persons, alumni, Foundation directors, trustees, students and local business persons who have been a part of the college's life over the years. Securing the speakers was the easiest part of the project. In fact, as word spread throughout the community, townspeople called and volunteered with comments such as, "I have been a part of Methodist College for years. I want to speak a word on her behalf." As the information spread about the day, there were more volunteers than there were churches.

Those who participated were: Linda Sue Barnes, Kenneith Calvert, Robert Christian, Gene Clayton, Kenneth Collins, Russell Crowell, R.B. Goforth, Dennis Gregory, Kenneth Hall Jr., Kathie Harrison, M. Elton Hendricks, Bobby Hurst, Bert Ishee, Jack Kelley, Laura Kernek, Sue Kim-ball, Garland Knott, Bill Lowdermilk, Howard Lupton, Mrs. Paul Lusk, Donald Melvin, Betty Neill Parsons, Elaine Porter, Bruce Pulliam, Al Robinson, Lynn V. Sadler, John Sill, Louis Spilman Jr., Walter Swing, Tom Thomas, Patricia Turner, Richard Walsh, Parker Wilson, Herman Winberry, and Rainbow's End, a vocal quartet from the college.

In addition to those who spoke, there was a bulletin insert which gave an update on the changes and growth of Methodist College.

The participants indicated that it was a meaningful experience to go to the local churches to express appreciation for their financial support and the trust placed in the college by the sending of their youth to the college. The pastors indicated that it was a positive experience for the churches to have representatives to give personal experiences which had given them a special appreciation for Methodist. One pastor remarked on the impact it was to have an accounting professor to speak on tithing.

Due to the success of Methodist College Day, it is now expected to be an annual event in the life of the Fayetteville District.

College Hosts 2,000 For Training, Fellowship

The close relationship between the United Methodist Church and Methodist College was demonstrated again this semester when 10 events brought nearly 2,000 people to campus for worship, training, fellowship and skill development. The participants had training sessions in the classrooms, worship events in Reeves Auditorium, lectures and displays in the private dining rooms, concerts in the Student Union, and many were housed in the college residence halls.

The groups which came during this semester were the conference-wide Unity Day, celebrating the life and ministry of Dr. Martin Luther King, held Jan. 19. The Conference Disaster Task Force met Jan. 22-23. The "39 and Under" group of the United Methodist Women met on Feb. 14-15. The Fayetteville District Lay Rally was held in Reeves Auditorium on Feb. 23. The Southeastern Jurisdictional Native American Consultation met March 6-9. The Conference Handbell Festival was March 7-8. The Conference United Methodist Men were on campus April 4-6. The Ministers' Wives Potpourri was on campus April 11-12, and the Fayetteville District Lay Speakers Workshop was April 25-26. The United Methodist Women Nominating Committee met on two occasions -- March 22 and April 22. This involved nearly 2,000 people who came for wor ship, training, fellowship and skill development.

The Rev. Michael Safley, associate director, North Carolina Council on Ministries, gives directions to Jan Smith, handbell director at Ann Street Church, Beaufort.

The Disaster Preparedness group learned through shared experiences, video programs and guest lecturers.

The Rev. Bob Mangum addresses the Southeastern Jurisdictional Association for Native American Ministries Consultation.

'Spiritual Journey'

Harold E. Batiste Jr

By Al Robinson MC Today Co-Editor

Harold E. Batiste Jr., national president of the United Methodist Men, visited Methodist College to keynote the North Carolina Conference UMM's Annual Retreat. The focus of the April 4-6 gathering was "M.A.N. -- Meeting Another's Needs" with the theme, "The Spiritual Journey Begins."

Batiste, who was installed as national president of United Methodist Men in March 1985, spoke on Saturday, April 5, concerning the needs of men nationwide. On Sunday, April 6, he examined the question "Where Are All The Men?" Also on Sunday, Bishop C.P. Minnick of the North Carolina Conference conducted the morning worship service and preached. Minnick also presented an in-depth bible study on the theme of "Men's Spiritual Journey" Saturday morning.

Other highlights of the retreat

Other highlights of the retreat included "Spiritual Journey," a presentation by Rudy Hillman of Raleigh, service administrator with the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service, and a Lovefeast conducted by Allen Norris, president of Louisburg College, Louisburg, NC, and Conference lay leader.

Charles Sauls, newspaper journalist and publisher, coordinated the retreat and moderated the sessions. Sauls was 1985 president of the Conference Methodist Men. His replacement, elected at the retreat, is Ernie Wendell of Durham, NC. Wendell is a member of the Methodist College Board of Trustees.

'Building Men of Hope'

Batiste, a retired U.S. Air Force health services administrator, said the theme of his UMM presidency is "Building Men of Hope." He is implementing programs among all Methodist Men's groups focusing on a "spiritual journey."

He explained several key points of his four-year term as national

Richmond Leads The Way

Our Richmond - Tidewater area alumni met on Saturday, April 12, 1986, for a reception, dinner and meeting at the Holiday Inn South to revive their chapter.

Joining Dr. Elton Hendricks,

Nancy Bouteiller '72 buys a Methodist shirt at the Richmond Area Chapter Meeting.

Methodist College president, and alumni director, Lynn Gruber Byrd, were Ernie Woodcock '68, Bill Krumpter '75, Nancy '72 and Dave Bouteiller '69, Al Pierce '71 and his wife, Gail, Bill and Jackie Estes '69 and Malvern Barrow '68 and his wife, Louise.

During dinner, Dr. Hendricks spoke about the state of the college and its growth and later answered questions. Lynn Byrd then discussed alumni business and reported on the status of the phonathon.

Before going home, many of the alumni bought sweatshirts, decals, license plates, T-shirts, charms and other items sold at the campus bookstore.

Chapter organizers Bill Estes and Malvern Barrow reported a previously strong chapter and a desire to rebuild. Another meeting, to be held at Malvern and Louise Barrow's home, will be scheduled for the fall.

If you live in the Richmond -Tidewater area and did not receive notification of the meeting, please contact the alumni office.

Loyalty Fund News

By Lynn Gruber Byrd
In response to a call for volunteers, alumni, students, faculty and administration worked for three weeks calling our alumni.

This year's phonathon was successful, considering the limited number of telephone listings that we have for our alumni. One of the positive results of the calls was a significant number of first-time contributors. Also noted were a trend of increased pledges among former contributors and a strong effort to utilize matching gift offers from companies.

Our next issue of MC Today will present our full financial report for 1985-86. Please remember that our fiscal year ends on June 30, 1986, so we need your pledges paid before that time.

Because our fiscal year begins on July 1, 1986, we will begin our Loyalty Fund Drive for 1986-87 on that date and send out our envelopes as close to that time as possible.

Another change was voted on and passed by the Finance Committee. Our phonathon will be moved forward, from now on, to November. That month works well for other institutions because it allows the alumni to make their contributions before the end of the year for tax purposes.

If you have not received mail or publications from Methodist College recently or know of any 'lost' alumni, please send us current name changes, addressses and telephone numbers. Current information can help to insure a successful phonathon and an informed body of alumni.

Dr. Kay Huggins, associate professor of history, Bruce Pulliam and Parker Wilson attended the spring meeting of the North Carolina Historical Society at North Carolina State University on April 18. Huggins is on the society's executive council.

This summer, Dr. Kimball will take a course in Modern British Literature at Cambridge University sponsored by the Humanities Institute of Belmont, MA.

Gene Clayton has been appointed by Mayor John W. Hurley to the Future Fayetteville Task Force Committee, which will consider the capital needs of the city for the next five years and recommend that the city consider a bond referendum in the fall of 1986. The mayor has also appointed Bruce Pulliam to the Committee for the Celebration of the Constitutional Convention of Cross Creek and Campbellton. The group will sponsor several programs to mark the anniversary of this event.

A paper presented at the recent Pop Culture Conference in Atlanta by Dr. Sadler, "John Bunyan's A Book for Boys and Girls," has been accepted for publication in the Journal of Popular Literature.

Dr. Robert Perkins, professor of history and director of institutional research, gave a presentation on Bristol and the west of England to a group preparing for a trip there sponsored by the Friendship Force of Woodspring. Perkins made his presentation April 19 at Margaret Willis School.

Dr. Hendricks, Gene Clayton and Dr. John Sill, associate professor of sociology, participated in a program at Queen Street United Methodist Church in Kinston, NC, on May 4. Sill spoke on "The Changing Family," Clayton spoke on "Self Conceptualization for a Winning Attitude" and Hendricks spoke on "John Wesley."

He has developed three objectives for this program. "It's done through building fellowship, emphasizing bible study and prayer," said Batiste, "a one-to-one relationship with men...witness.

"That's our purpose -- bringing men together for fellowship, outreach and witness. Fellowship is what we are celebrating here today at a retreat like this; outreach, meaning we must go beyond... to those needing help; and witness, testimony of what walking with the Lord means."

Health Services Consultant

Outreach, witness and fellowship have been hallmarks in the life of Lt. Col. Harold Batiste Jr., USAF, MSC. Although he's officially retired as a health services administrator with the Air Force, Batiste keeps professionally active as a consultant in health services administration and human resources development. He also is a part-time instructor and lecturer at St. Philip's College in San Antonio, TX.

The third point of Batiste's outline is to build efforts to "dwell on the mighty acts of God."

Twenty-four students, alumni and faculty were inducted into Methodist College's newly chartered Kappa Gamma chapter of Phi Sigma Iota, an international foreign language honor society.

The installation ceremony was held Saturday morning, March 15, in Hensdale Chapel. Dr. Gabriel Gonzalez, faculty advisor of Alpha Lambda Chapter at North Carolina State University, was the installing officer.

Kappa Gamma expands the number of Phi Sigma Iota chapters to 148. Other chapters in North Carolina are located at North Carolina State University, Wake Forest University, East Carolina University and High Point College. The honor society was founded in 1922 at Allegheny College, Meadville, PA, and membership has grown to 30,000.

Dr. Charles G. Rowe, professor emeritus of romance languages, was named an honorary member. Rowe was chairman of the Division of Foreign Languages at Methodist College from 1961-69. Under his leadership during the college's first decade, majors in French and Spanish were developed, a 36-station language laboratory was installed, and the staff of the department increased to eight people.

Methodist College students inducted as charter members included: Richard Butler, Eve Derreth, Masahiro Ebihara, Susan Hyatt and Laura Kernek. Michael Robertson, Irina Rozanski and Mandy VanderRoest, graduates enrolled in the spring semester for additional work, also were inducted. Other alumni intitiates were: Laureen Bach, Jennifer Brigman, Roseann Elson, Linda Gravitt, Dorothy Hubbard, Friedbert Humphrey, Bianka Kroos, Malenda Matthews, Anita L. Peters and Andreas Winston.

Five faculty members, both fulltime and part-time, joined the organization as charter members: Martha Waring, instructor of Spanish; Elaine Porter, associate professor of French; Dr. Lechi Oggeri, instructor of romance languages; Janis Holden, instructor of Spanish; and Dr. David Diaz, assistant professor of Spanish. Banner Year For MC Spring Sports

By Al Robinson Public Information Director

The story of spring sports at Methodist College in 1986 has yet to be completed. A drama that unfolded in March with a national championship in track, has seen script changes and character performances that have brought untold honors to the college's athletic (stage.")

Since Karen Grant won a national title at the NCAA indoor track meet, Methodist Monarch sports fans have seen additional national honors in softball, baseball and both men's and women's golf.

The spring season got off to a blazing start when Grant, a sophomore from Sumter, SC, took first place in the women's triple jump with a leap of 39-3½. The 10 points awarded Methodist for Grant's championship placed the Lady Monarchs in a five-way tie for 11th place in the team standings. Only 31 teams scored points in the NCAA Division III track championships. The win also qualified Grant for the outdoor nationals to be held later this month.

Grant's first-place jump earned her All-American status.

Rodney Burgess, who qualified for the men's championships, also earned All-American honors at the March 14-15 meet held in St. Paul; MN. A freshman from Penn Yan, NY, Burgess jumped 23-04, just 2½" behind the winner, to take fourth place in the long jump.

Grant's jump also established a new NCAA Division III record. This was the first appearance for any Methodist track team member in the NCAA indoor championship meet, the first NCAA track championship for Methodist and the college's first-ever NCAA national championship. The coach of the Monarch tracksters is Fiore Bergamasco.

First Team Championship

But there was soon to be more good news for the MC athletic department. The Lady Monarch softball team and MC baseball squad had opened their seasons two weeks prior to the NCAA indoor track meet and both were ranked among the nation's leaders. Coach Darci Wilson and her women's golf team had been the top-ranked Division III school in the computer golf rankings which had been released earlier in the year. (The rankings listed all the schools together with no classification by division.)

The ranking almost assured the Lady Monarch golfers a spot in the prestigious Small College Nationals/Azalea Seahawk Golf Tournament to be held in nearby Wilmington.

Not only did the MC linksters secure a bid, they swept away the competition with a 90-stroke lead over the number two team to bring back Methodist College's first-ever national team championship.

Holly Anderson led the lady Monarchs with a three-day tally of 83-77-76 -- 236 on the 54-hole course to take individual medalist honors. Teammate Joy Bonhurst carded a 78-88-82 -- 248 and Rose Turner completed three rounds of play with a 256. All three earned All-American honors. Rounding out the team score for Methodist was Darcy Krumme with a 266.

Methodist looks to establish a dynasty in women's golf as all four national championship team members are freshmen. Anderson is from Cumberland, ME, Bonhurst's hometown is Huntington, NY, Turner is from Salisbury, MD, and Floridian Krumme is from Stuart.

The men's golf team reigned once again as Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (DIAC) champions and John Walsh, a sophomore from Thomson, GA, was the conference medalist.

Walsh's two-day total of 75-77
--152 led the team and the league.
Teammates Kurt Hoflein and Brian Connor also finished in the top five. Hoflein carded an 82-74
-- 156 for fourth place and Conner scored an 80-77 -- 157 putting him in a three-way tie for fifth with golfers from UNC-Greensboro and Christopher Newport.

MC won the tournament, held April 28-29, with a 312-306 -- 618, 11 strokes ahead of runner-up UNC-G. Rounding out the team race were Greensboro College, 640, Christopher Newport, 661, St. Andrews, 680, Virginia Wesleyan, 706, and Averett, 736.

It was another banner season for the Monarch linksters. They finished third out of 14 teams at the Fripp Island (SC) Tournament, seventh out of 24 teams at the District III Tournament held at Sanford's Quail Ridge Golf Course, third out of 23 teams at the Max Ward Invitational at Elon College, and third out of 15 teams at the Pembroke State University Invitational.

Once again, Methodist received a bid to the NCAA Division III Golf Tournament scheduled for later this month at Kings College, Wilkes-Barre, PA.

Monarch Sluggers Win Dixie

There was plenty of diamond action at Methodist this spring to keep the hardball (and softball!) fans more than happy.

fans more than happy.

The women's softball team, in only their second season of fastpitch play, made their presence known in a big way. Led by All-American pitching candidate Lisa Wymer, a sophomore from Culpeper, VA, the Lady Monarchs rolled up an impressive 36-13-2 season record and finished as runner-up in the regular season standings and in the conference tournament, held on the Methodist diamond.

With a 23-5 conference mark, the Lady Monarchs were only two games behind champion Virginia Wesleyan, 25-3. The Lady Marlins and Methodist both advanced through the first and second rounds of the tournament to face off in the championship game.

Virginia Wesleyan was on a roll however, and Methodist fell to the team from Virginia Beach, 3-0. It was the 30th consecutive win for the Lady Marlins. VA Wesleyan earned a bid to the NCAA playoffs while Methodist just narrowly missed an at-large berth.

Wymer was named allconference along with outfielders Jimmie Lou Morris and Janet Burleson.

The Lady Monarchs finished the season ranked 16th in the nation in Division III. The team was ranked as high as 10th earlier in the season.

The big news so far this spring has been the play of the baseball team. Coach Tom Austin, in his seventh year at the helm, has led the Monarchs to one of their best seasons ever. At one point the Monarchs were without a loss in 29 consecutive games (two ties) and unbeaten in 17 straight games.

The season highlight to date was a big 7-5 win over rival North Carolina Wesleyan on Easter Monday, March 31, at Shelley Field. NCW later turned the tables and downed Methodist at Rocky Mount 10-5 on April 13

Mount, 10-5, on April 13.

The Dixie Conference race went down to the wire with Methodist and NC Wesleyan heading into the final week with one loss each. A big win over St. Andrews clinched a tie for the league crown for the Monarchs, and they got a big boost when Virginia Wesleyan upset the Battling Bishops to give Methodist the outright title with a 7-1 record.

Methodist started the season ranked No. 12 by Collegiate Baseball News and was picked as one of the top teams in the South region. As the victories piled up and their unbeaten string lengthened, the team moved up the national poll.

As the regular season came to a close, Methodist was ranked in the No. 4 spot and had been selected to participate in the South Regional playoffs. It was the fifth straight year and seventh in 11 years that Methodist had qualified for the NCAA regional tournament.

A recent issue of the NCAA News noted that Methodist was one of the teams with a shot at the national title.

The women's tennis team also fared well this season finishing above .500 in match play. The men's tennis team was in a rebuilding year and had only one returning player from the previous year, the No. 6 man, Sei Miyamato, who was moved up to the No. 1 spot for 1986. Miyamato is the only senior on either squad so the future looks very bright for MC tennis.

But the final curtain has yet to come down on this banner spring sports season. With post-season competition ahead for the baseball team, the men's golf team and the track squads, it appears more Methodist Monarch glory awaits.

Carson McCullers: The Lonely Hunter

By Al Robinson MC Today Co-Editor

The life and literary creations of novelist Carson McCullers were explored, analyzed and extrapolated at the Sixth Annual Southern Writers' Symposium held April 25 and 26 on the Methodist College campus.

McCullers, who completed her first novel and wrote a second while living in Fayetteville, is regarded as one of the leading female literary figures in the South, according to Dr. Sue Kimball, coordinator of the symposium. Kimball, professor of English and grants officer at Methodist, brought together a distinguished group of educators and writers for the 1986 symposium.

Keynoting the event were Dr. Virginia Spencer Carr, author of The Lonely Hunter, a McCullers biography, and David Madden, who is currently at work on a play centered on the lives and friendship of McCullers and another famous Southern writer, Tennessee Williams.

Carr was the speaker at a banquet held Friday evening, April 25, in the Alumni Dining Room of the Student Union. Since 1985, Carr has been the chairman of the Department of English at Georgia State University in Atlanta.

Her biography of McCullers, published in 1975 and reprinted 10 years later, was nominated for a Pulitzer Prize and was widely reviewed and acclaimed. The Lonely Hunter won the Francis Butler Simkins Prize of the Southern Historical Association and Longwood College "in recognition for distinguished writing in Southern history." Williams, whose life she will write next, wrote the introduction to The Lonely Hunter.

Her biography of John Dos Passos, Dos Passos: A Life, was also nominated for a Pulitzer. It won the Author of the Year Award for Nonfiction of the Dixie Council of Authors and Journalists.

Madden has been writer-in-residence at Louisiana State University since 1968. He has taught English, dramatics, and imaginative writing at colleges and universities in North Carolina, Kentucky and Ohio, and in many summer writing workshops. He has been acclaimed for his novels, poems, short stories, essays, and plays.

But the real story of the 1986 Southern Literary Symposium emanates in the late 1930s, when one of the truly great Southern authors, Carson Mc-Cullers, lived, loved and wrote in Fayetteville. At that time no one knew what immense talent lived within the tall, slender, often unkempt 20-year-old Carson. A recent newlywed, Carson was regarded as somewhat offbeat or odd by many, but to those who knew her well, she was regarded as a warm-hearted, friendly young woman, eager about those around her and what they did, and an interesting conversationlist.

Her first book, The Heart Is A Lonely Hunter, was begun in Charlotte, where her husband, Reeves, was employed. He was later transferred to Fayetteville and they set up housekeeping in three different locations during the two years they resided here. One was in an apartment located at the intersection of Rowan and Ramsey Streets, now a service station. More famously, this great Southern writer — a native of Georgia — is still known among Fayetteville's older residents for her typing on the porch of the Cool Spring Street Tavern, where she and Reeves also had an apartment.

This beautiful Southern-style home has been fully restored and is now an attorney's office (located just north on Cool Spring Street from its intersection with Grove Street in downtown Fayetteville).

Her second novel, centered around a military base, was Reflections In A Golden Eye. This book was written during Carson's stay in Fayetteville. She later moved on to New York, and then Paris. She and Reeves were divorced, and were later remarried. She was eventually crippled by a series of strokes and passed away in 1967 after 25 years of health problems. Carson was preceded in death by Reeves, who took his own life in Paris in 1950.

Other works attributed to Carson McCullers are The Ballad of the Sad Cafe, Clock With No Hands and The Member of the Wedding.

Highlighting the symposium were 15 papers presented by literary educators from throughout the United States. Among them were Barbara Farrelly, University of Dayton (OH); Leroy Thomas, Southwestern Oklahoma University; Margaret Walsh, Drew University (NJ); Mary A. Gervin, Albany State College (GA) and Donna Bauerly, Loras College (IA).

Also represented were faculty members from colleges and universities North Carolina, New York, Alabama, South Carolina and Pennsylvania.

Methodist faculty members presenting papers were Dr. Lynn Sodler and Methodist faculty members presenting papers were Dr. Lynn Sadler, professor of English and vice president of academic affairs, "McCullers' Clock With No Hands," and Kimball, who presented a paper entitled, "Reflections on Reflections."

Also featured during the two-day symposium were members of the Methodist Fine Arts Division, who presented "The We of Me," a collection of theatrical sketches and musical performances centered on scenes and characters from McCullers books, and Rainbows' End, the college's honors quartet that performed a medley of Georgia songs at the luncheon on Friday, April 25.

Howard Lupton, MCAA President

The Methodist College Alumni Association continues to grow and each of us can be very proud of our progress. We are beginning to be recognized for our contributions, both financial and support, by members of the college community. This is not to say that we should rest on our past accomplishments, for now is the time to exert a new push foward. We need to involve more of us in the total college picture and let our ideas be known.

For the past three years it has been my pleasure to serve as your president. Very shortly we will have a new slate of officers to guide us for the next two years. I strongly urge you to give them the kind of support that you have given me for the past three years.

Since this is my last opportunity to speak to you as your president, I want to thank a number of people for making my job so much easier - Pat Clayton, Lynn Byrd, the board of directors, Dr. Hendricks and Bill Lowdermilk. Each of these people contributed tirelessly to the efforts of our Alumni Association and assisted me without hesitation. We need to remember to thank those who work so hard to make us successful.

As we look into the new alumni year there are so many opportunities for all of us to serve the college. Many new ideas have been discussed in our board meetings, and I think we will see in the future some real positive changes. Our board spends many hours making plans for the association and implementing new ideas and programs. Our director carries the load for us in so many ways. This year we can achieve more than ever before if we are willing to give our time for the association.

I have enjoyed serving you these past three years and I hope we will continue to support Methodist College in the future.

Lynn Gruber Byrd, Alumni Director

I acquired a new name on March 21, but sorry -- same old face.

The phonathon was a success, not only in dollars, but in getting a significant number of first-time contributors and as a liaison between our alumni and the college. We answered countless questions about the campus and their favorite professors and received an increase of class data as well. If you have not sent your pledge, please do so by June 30, the end of our fiscal year. Please remember that last year we were ahead of other colleges in percentage of pledges made but behind in pledges paid.

Our Richmond chapter meeting was as promising as it was fun. We have good solid alumni in that area who are determined to have a growing chapter. I am looking forward to another gathering with them in the fall. Thanks to Bill Estes and Malvern Barrow.

I urge you to return to campus whenever possible. For those of you who have not visited recently, you will be amazed at the rich landscaping. The dogwoods, azaleas and other flowering shrubs were breathtaking in the beginning of April and each year will be more beautiful and more lush. The campus that I see each day is distant from the barren stretches of grass and unpaved areas that we walked as students. We alumni owe a loud note of thanks to Mason Sykes and his staff for hard work and thoughtful placement of our new plants and trees.

Finally, we will be welcoming our new officers and board members and we express our thanks to those leaving office. It would be impossible not to single out Howard Lupton for his service to the alumni and to the campus community. Our association has seen tremendous and innovative growth during his terms in office and we appreciate his dedication.
