The Role Of The Church-Related College

by Dr. Thomas S. Yow III
President, Martin Methodist College

The church-related college occupies a unique and important role in today's higher education marketplace. This uniqueness does not deal specifically with the classroom experience as there probably is no such thing as Christian English or Christian math or Christian biology. Instead it permeates the entirety of campus life. Our uniqueness derives from 1) our acknowledgment of each student as a child of God, therefore valuable and important and 2) our role of helping God's children achieve the potential that God has given to them.

Tommy Yow '66

These perspectives give meaning to the campus experience at the church-related college. This philosophical foundation mandates a strong commitment to excellence at our colleges. If we are developing God-given potential, then what we are doing is important. Therefore, we do it to the best of our ability. The commitment does not stop with faculty and administrators. We endeavor to pass it along to students with the hope that they will adopt a commitment to excellence for themselves. The values of the faith also undergird the institution's goals, programs and activities. What occurs on the campus, and certainly what is sponsored by the institution, must reflect the teachings of our faith including the value of the individual as God's child.

This concept has significant impact on academics. The mind is God's gift and it is our opportunity to help our students develop this gift. There is nothing about either religion or knowledge that makes them inherently dichotomous. As our knowledge grows, we are more impressed with the majesty of God and the wonder of His creation. Christianity links knowledge with religion and teaches that there is nothing about truth that is unfaithful. The only thing that is unfaithful is untruth.

The church-related college has the unique opportunity not just to teach facts, but to give perspective, dimension, values and understanding to those facts. Because each of us sees the world through the prisms of our values and understands facts from the paradigms with which we approach them, it is important not just to teach information but to give perspective and values to that information. I agree with Thomas Trotter that, "Learning is less a transmission of information than it is the cultivation of a mind."

We acknowledge also the importance of an academic program which is challenging, which demands that students think and work hard. Good teaching and a liberal arts emphasis have long been hallmarks of Methodist higher education.

Student life is a vital dimension of the church-related college experience. Values give perspective, dimension and guidance to all that occurs within student life. The belief that I am God's child also means that others are God's children. We cultivate respect for other persons as God's children even when they are very different from ourselves. We also cultivate self respect and self esteem from the same theological perspective. Therefore, we teach both individual and community responsibility.

The development of leadership skills is also emphasized in our student life programs. It is, in my opinion, no accident that so many of our national business and government leaders are graduates of church-related colleges. The freedom to couple the transmission of values and the development of leadership skills is unique to the church-related institution. The importance of this linkage is obvious when we recognize that the quality of our leaders is determined by the values they adopt for guidance in their lives.

The church-related college also assists in the growth and development of the spiritual lives of its students. While the church-related college should not necessarily see itself as an evangelistic arm of the Church, evangelism and spiritual formation are appropriate activities on the church-related college campus. Therefore, we sponsor and support financially an active campus religious life program that seeks to involve and address the needs of every student. The values taught by the religious life program illuminate, undergird and support the other activities and functions of the church-related campus.

When we understand our students as God's children and our mission as helping God's

Methodist Awards 127 Degrees At May Commencement

Methodist College awarded 127 degrees to 124 persons at its 27th spring commencement Sunday, May 6.

Dr. Larry G. Rowedder, superintendent of the Cumberland County schools, challenged members of the Class of 1990 to accept the responsibilities of a professional and to make the world a better place. He said the body of human knowledge is now doubling every one and a half years, making it imperative that humans "learn to adapt" to rapid technological change.

Dr. Rowedder told the degree candidates that college graduates should accept the responsibilities of a professional: 1) to advance the body of knowledge in one's chosen field, 2) to maintain personal integrity and a code of ethics in dealing with others, 3) to serve one's community, and 4) to never stop learning.

The Reverend Dr. William K. Quick, pastor of Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Detroit, Michigan, delivered the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning. He challenged members of the graduating class to spread their wings and soar like eagles — to seek a new discovery each day and to match their personal efforts to their abilities.

Methodist College President Elton Hendricks presented a Methodist College Medallion to Reverend Quick during the commencement ceremony, in recognition of his 37 years of distinguished service to the United Methodist Church, Methodist College, and society.

Reverend Dr. Quick

Reverend Dr. Quick is a former trustee of Methodist College. The Scotland County native served nine United Methodist churches in North Carolina before accepting the Detroit appointment in 1974. He attended Duke University Divinity School, Randolph-Macon College, and Pfeiffer College.

Connie Kibben, an English major from Pikeville, NC, received the Stacy Weaver Award, denoting her selection by the faculty as the outstanding senior of 1989-90.

Business administration major Bruce James Parkman and French major Jay Brian Fullerton tied for first place in the spring class with perfect 4.0 (straight A) averages. Thirty-four members of the Class of '90 graduated with honors.

Ten ROTC cadets took the Oath of Allegiance at the commencement and were commissioned second lieutenants in the U.S. Army. They are: Kyle Adrian, Jay Fullerton, Thomas Johnson, Brenda Lanaux, Stuart Longest, Jack Mel-lott, Susanne Meredith, Emily Sachariason, David Spero, and Diane Walker.

children develop their God-given talents and abilities (intellectual, social and spiritual), then we understand the uniqueness of our colleges as well as the importance of our work. Our commitment to excellence, to strong academics, to a student life program which emphasizes individual responsibility and leadership, and to an active religious life program grows from our understanding of students as God's children.

The church-related college begins with students whose lives are enriched by trustees, faculty, and staff who care about them. It continues with students and alumni, products of an emphasis on excellence in academic and extra-curricular life, who adopt that commitment to excellence and care for others, and from it give of themselves, their intellect, their faith to enrich the lives of others who are also God's children.

Byron Pritchard, a music major from Fayetteville, sings "The Lord Is My Light" at commencement.

Board of Trustees Elects New Chairman, Vice Chairman

Raleigh newscaster Charlie Gaddy was elected chairman of the Methodist College Board of Trustees May 17. He will succeed Fayetteville businessman Ike O'Hanlon July 1.

Gaddy has served as a Methodist College trustee since 1987 and is currently vice chairman of the board. He is the evening anchorman for WRAL-TV in Raleigh.

A graduate of Guilford College and an Army veteran, Gaddy has received numerous press and community service awards.

The trustees elected Frank Barragan Jr. of Fayetteville vice chairman. He is chairman of the board and past president of North Carolina Natural Gas Corporation.

Walter Clark, chief executive officer and treasurer of Mid-South Insurance Company, was re-elected secretary to the board. He is a Fayetteville resident.

Retired Fayetteville businessman and alumnus Louis Spilman Jr. was re-elected treasurer of the board.

Four new trustees were elected at the June 1990 session of the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church. They are: Jane Hook Johnson of Mebane, William E. Clark of Fayetteville, Rev. Theodore Von Carter Sr. of Raleigh, and Joe W. Walker of Fayetteville. Trustees reappointed to four-year terms are: W. Robert Johnson of Goldsboro, Rev. Dr. Samuel D. McMillan Jr. of Wilmington, Charles M. Reeves Jr. of Sanford, and Joseph P. Riddle of Fayetteville.

The Methodist College Board of Trustees consists of 35 members appointed by the North Carolina Conference of the United Methodist Church.

Journey Of 22 Years Ends With A College Degree

Sunday, May 6 was a special day for Celeste DePriest. Twenty-two years after she took her first class at Methodist, Celeste received a B.A. degree in English, cum laude.

Celeste enrolled at Methodist in 1968, after receiving an associate degree in general education at Rockingham Community College. From 1968-73 Celeste worked as secretary to the Education, Religion, and Athletic departments at Methodist, using her lunch hour to take classes.

Celeste's husband Todd enrolled at Methodist in 1966 and graduated in 1970. Todd's jobs led the DePriests to Kentucky, Rocky Mount, and finally Maryland. After the birth of her son and daughter, Celeste took additional college courses at several different community colleges.

In the summer of 1987 the DePriests visited Methodist to determine what courses Celeste needed to get her degree. In the spring of '88 Gene Clayton sent her a summer schedule and that summer Celeste took leave from her job in a pediatrician's office and returned to Methodist to take four courses she needed.

During the five and a half weeks that Celeste studied at Methodist, the DePriest children stayed with their grandmother in Eden, NC.

Celeste took a sociology course, a religion course, and two English courses. She would later describe the experience of taking a semester's work in five and a half weeks as "exhausting."

Two years later, after transferring in the last credits she needed, Celeste was approved for graduation May 6, 1990. Celeste, Todd, and the children took part in every aspect of graduation—the president's breakfast, the baccalaureate, and the commencement ceremony. Todd was his wife's sponsor, walking with her in the graduation line, and applying her bachelor's hood as she received her degree.

A hard-working alumna, Celeste phoned scores of alumni in 1987 and secured many pledges for the new Physical Activities Center. She and Todd were among the first "Distinguished Monarchs."

After the ceremony Celeste said she was glad she came back to Methodist, noting that the warmth and friendliness of the faculty, students, and staff had always impressed her.

Celeste, Todd, and their children, Jeff and Jennifer, live in Forest Hill, MD. She teaches mentally and physically handicapped adults at Harford Community College in Bel Air.

Celeste DePriest is all smiles after receiving her diploma. Husband Todd '70 acted as her sponsor.

Science Department Continues Quest For Excellence

This has been a good year for the Methodist College Science Department.

Dr. Linda Sue Barnes, professor of biology, won the first annual Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award.

The department received a $10,237 grant from the National Science Foundation for the purchase of a new centrifuge.

A science alumnus — Roger Pait '85 — was elected president of the Methodist College Alumni Association.

In a recent interview, Dr. Margaret Folsom, biology professor and director of the Division of Science and Mathematics, bragged about some of Methodist's recent science graduates. Her grant proposal submitted to the National Science Foundation last November contains a chart showing that science majors from the classes of 1985-89 have done quite well professionally.

Of 37 science graduates, 12 were admitted to graduate school and 16 were employed "in field." Dr. Folsom said that the department attracts a considerable number of Army medical service personnel preparing for medical or pharmacy school.

"Bernard Witcoski '76 attended Duke Medical School," she said. "He's a doctor in California. Tom Holland '82 graduated last year from UNC Medical School and is now interning in Charleston. Carol Hunter and Jo Beth Sill (from the Class of '87) enrolled in the Campbell University Pharmacy School."

Dr. Folsom cites Cu Phung '87 and Jay

Atkinson '90 as two other success stories. Cu is completing work on his Ph.D. in chemistry at Duke and Jay has enrolled at East Carolina Medical School.

"We are constantly adjusting the biology curriculum as necessary," noted Dr. Folsom. "In recent years we have added new courses in biochemistry, microbiology, plant morphology, entomology, plant anatomy, and physiology. Historically, the biology program has attracted some of the strongest students on our campus."

Cu Phung '87 majored in chemistry & math.

Dr. Margaret Folsom presents the Ott-Cooper Award to Greg Dirks '90.

Dr. Barnes Wins Teaching Award

Dr. Linda Sue Barnes, professor of biology at Methodist College, received the college's first annual Teaching Excellence and Campus Leadership Award at an Awards Day ceremony April 10.

Dr. Barnes was chosen by a student/faculty committee as the faculty member who "has made a distinct difference in the teaching climate of the college." Funded by the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, the $2,000 award was shared equally by Dr. Barnes and the Science Department.

Dr. Barnes has taught biology at Methodist for the past 10 years. The Mississippi native earned her B.S. degree at Mississippi College, her M.S. at the University of Mississippi, and her Ph.D. at the University of Tennessee.

The popular professor has lectured to numerous garden clubs and school groups about wildflowers, American zoos, and national parks. She is an active member of several conservation organizations and educational associations and was instrumental in planning and developing the Pauline Longest Nature Trail on the Methodist campus. She was named Wildlife Educator of 1987 by the North Carolina Wildlife Federation.

Methodist College's ninth annual Southern Writers' Symposium, held March 23-24, examined the works of Winston-Salem novelist John Ehle.

Entitled "John Ehle: Born to Be a Writer," the symposium featured lectures by literary scholars, writers, and friends of Mr. Ehle. Guest speakers included U.S. Senator Terry Sanford, author Julio Finn (from Paris, France) and film critic Peter Valenti. Dr. Sue Kimball, professor of English at Methodist, coordinated the event.

An Asheville native, Ehle is the author of 17 books - 11 fiction and six non-fiction. He earned bachelor's and master's degrees at UNC and taught there for 12 years. In the early 60's, while working as an assistant to N.C. Governor Terry Sanford, Ehle developed proposals for the N.C. Film Office, the Governor's School (summer classes for talented youth), and the N.C. School of the Arts (Winston-Salem).

In a brief address Friday evening, March 23, Sen. Terry Sanford recalled that Ehle

John Ehle: Born To Be A Writer

"came up with an idea a week" while working in the governor's office. He said Ehle was instrumental in securing funds from the Carnegie Foundation, the Ford Foundation, the state legislature, and the Winston-Salem community for the N.C. School of the Arts. He said Ehle was also the brainchild for the North Carolina Fund (an anti-poverty program) and the N.C. School of Science and Mathematics (established in 1979).

"John writes wonderful books," said Sanford, citing The Shepherd of the Streets, The Land Breakers, and The Rise and Fall of the Cherokee Nation: The Trail of Tears as three examples.

A three-act play by Lee Yopp based on Ehle's novel "Time of Drums" was presented March 23-25 and again March 30-April 1 at the Fort Bragg Playhouse. Set in 1862, the play told the story of two brothers divided by the Civil War. The cast included Robert Bloodworth, Leonard McLeod, Pat Reese, Michael Melcher, Margaret Jemison, and Shannon Bailey.

More than a dozen literary scholars presented papers about Ehle and his work during the two-day conference. They included: Harriette Buchanan from Appalachian State University, Leslie Banner from Duke University, John Long from Emory and Henry College, Terry Roberts from UNC-Chapel Hill, Shelby Stephenson from Pembroke State University, William Parrill from Southeastern Louisiana University, and Lynn Sadler from Johnson State College.

Mr. Ehle and his wife noted British actress Rosemary Harris attended the opening of the play and most of the lectures.

On Saturday evening, the Hay Street United Methodist Church Choir performed "God's Trombones" by Roy Ringwald. It is based on a collection of poems about black preachers by James Weldon Johnson.

Dr. Sue Kimball, professor of English and Director of the Southern Writers' Symposium, offers an after-dinner anecdote to the delight of Mr. & Mrs. Julio Finn.

'Free Market' Trend Creates Vast Economic Opportunities For America

The advent of free market economies in Europe and other areas of the world will create vast opportunities for American companies to sell abroad.

That was the forecast offered by Christian Wignall, chief investment officer for G. T. Global Mutual Funds, at the ninth annual Stock Market Symposium April 19.

Mr. Wignall said America is pre-eminent in the fields of information technology, communications, and transportation—where explosive growth will likely occur in the 90's. He said as communist countries deregulate their economies and move toward free enterprise systems, demand for new telecommunications and transportation equipment will soar.

A native of Great Britain who lives in San Francisco, Mr. Wignall said Americans still have the highest standard of living in the world, including more personal computers and more telephones per capita than any industrialized nation.

"As they enter the Information Age," said Wignall, "telephone companies in developing nations will have to invest rapidly in new telecommunications equipment, most of which is manufactured in America." He said global investors would do well to buy stock in phone companies in Chile, Spain, and Mexico where revenues are growing at the rate of 20-30 percent per annum.

"When the Berlin Wall came down," said Wignall, "only 200 phone lines existed between East and West Germany. American companies are now looking for the opportunity to put cellular telephones in Budapest and Warsaw. Telecommunications, trucking, shipping, and container freight afford numerous investment opportunities for the future."

Wignall's appearance at Methodist was arranged and funded by A. G. Edwards and Sons Inc. of Fayetteville.

Development Officer: 'There is much work to be done!'

By Thomas W. Williams Jr.
Vice President for Development

With this issue of METHODIST COLLEGE TODAY, we begin what I hope will be a regular feature: an article on institutional advancement and development in each issue.

Tom Williams

We will try to keep you informed about the progress of the college as it seeks to strengthen its external resources. We'll discuss campaign plans and results, grants applied for and awarded, corporate and foundation support and deferred giving programs.

In this first article, I want to discuss briefly the mission of the Development Office. Basically, we are charged with securing funds from external sources (as opposed to tuition and fees) to assist in the general operation and growth of the college. Our efforts will focus on the following categories of needs:

1) Operating funds for the day-to-day business of the college: salaries, utilities, maintenance, etc. These funds come from unrestricted gifts largely, with annual gifts from alumni and friends being the major source, along with the support of the United Methodist Church.

2) Endowment funds which generate income to be used in either restricted or unrestricted ways. Restricted income might be for scholarships or the library, for example; unrestricted income is available for operating purposes. In either case, endowment corpus is to be conserved and will, hopefully, appreciate over time. Endowment funds often come from bequests, although living donors are not unusual.

3) Physical plant improvement and expansion. Normally such funds are generated in a special campaign, such as the recent "Come of Age" effort to construct the March F. Riddle Physical Activities Center. These special purpose campaigns must be carefully planned and executed; they must not diminish the college's on-going fund-raising efforts.

We hope to cultivate sources of funds for all of the above purposes, depending on needs and timing. Certainly we need to increase our operating funds. A larger endowment is essential to provide a base of funding in a constant, consistent stream. There are always fixed asset needs, and these must be prioritized and addressed in a logical manner.

We will look to several sources of support:

1) A strong, active, supportive group of alumni, who appreciate the college, who want it to continue to succeed, and who will develop the habit of giving to it.

2) A broad-based corps of individual and corporate friends who believe in a high-quality educational institution and see it as an asset to our area; and who will, on either a current or a deferred basis, share their resources with it.

3) Grants from both public and private sources; these may be either restricted or unrestricted, depending on the intent of the grantor. Usually they are of a significant size and so can be very important to us.

There is much work to be done. My predecessors in development, however, have laid a solid foundation for us to build on. We need the consistently generous support of all of our constituencies as we strive together to make a very good Methodist College even better.

Correction

A story on the Kresge challenge (p. 4 April MC TODAY) should have read: "In February 1989 (not 1990), the Kresge Foundation awarded Methodist a $250,000 challenge grant, contingent on the college raising an additional $541,501 needed to meet a campaign goal of $3,809,513." The college was given one year, until March 1, 1990 to meet the challenge.

Fall Enrollment May Reflect Downward Trend In U.S.

Director of Admissions Fiore Bergamasco and Registrar Sam Clark project that Methodist College will begin its 31st academic year with 970 day students. That would represent a five percent decline over a Fall 1989 enrollment of 1,013.

Many private colleges, including Methodist, have experienced a marked decline in the number of freshmen applications for this fall. But deposits from new applicants and pre-registration figures for underclassmen suggest that Methodist will avoid a double digit decline this fall. Day classes begin Aug. 22 and evening classes begin Aug 27.

The number of high school graduates has been declining nationally since 1988 and is not expected to rise again until 1993. North Carolina high schools graduated about seven percent fewer students in 1990 than in 1989.

As of July 3, 275 new freshmen and transfer students (187 males, 88 females) had paid reservation deposits and another 603 returning students had pre-registered for the fall.

Methodist had received 1,002 applications through July 3, about 18 percent fewer than the 1,232 received at the same time last year. Of the 1,002 applicants, 790 were potential resident students and 212 were potential commuting students.

The Student Affairs Office projects that 500 students will be living in the four residence halls this fall. The residence halls can accommodate 600, but a private room option reduces overall capacity. An additional 24 students can be housed in apartments on the southern edge of the campus.

College Honors Small Business Owners/Managers

Methodist College honored three small business owners at the ninth annual Stock Market Symposium April 19.

Mildred Barlow Starling, owner and president of Tin Originals in Fayetteville, was named Woman Entrepreneur of the Year. Mrs. Starling started her business in 1978 with less than $500. Twelve years later, the firm employs more than 50 people and has gross sales exceeding $3 million per year.

Tin Originals has expanded its line of tin decorative products to include a wide variety of craft items and "Christmas originals." The firm sells wholesale to gift shop owners throughout America and also sells retail from a small showroom at its corporate headquarters on Black and Decker Road.

This year's Small Business Excellence

Award went to Keith Allison, president of Systel Business Equipment Company. A former accountant, Allison helped organize Systel in 1981. The firm currently employs 150 persons and had sales totalling $8 million last year.

Allison was in Japan on business at the time of the symposium, but sent a videotaped "thank-you" and four vice-presidents to accept the award. Systel sells and services a full line of Panasonic office machines from its Fort Bragg Road location.

Al and Mary Grace Cain, founders of the Fayetteville advertising agency Cain and Cain, received the Fellowship of the Silver Spoon Award. They established their agency in 1979.

Cain and Cain is an award-winning full-service agency with a complete staff of professional artists, writers, and media specialists. The firm specializes in finding "creative, practical solutions to marketing problems."

Award recipients were selected by a college committee appointed by Dr. Sid Gautam, adjunct professor of economics at Methodist and Director of the Center for Entrepreneurship. The committee received letters of nomination from the local business community.

The 1990 Stock Market Symposium was sponsored by the Fayetteville Area Chamber of Commerce, the N.C. Small Business and Technology Development Center, A. G. Edwards & Sons, Inc., and the Center for Entrepreneurship at Methodist College.

Wal-Mart Approves Methodist College For SIFE Membership

The Wal-Mart Foundation, based in Springfield, MO, has awarded a Free Enterprise Fellowship to Dr. Donald Kline, professor of business and economics at Methodist College.

The $1,000 stipend will support the establishment of a Students In Free Enterprise Chapter at Methodist during the 1990-91 academic year. Dr. Kline filed the application for the college to become affiliated with the SIFE program. A specialist in business management, Dr. Kline holds a B.S. degree from Wayne State University, a M.B.A. from New York University, and a Ph.D. from Syracuse University.

The stated purpose of the Wal-Mart Foundation's Students In Free Enterprise program is "to bring America's collegians and her citizens to a better understanding of and a greater appreciation for the free enterprise system." In the words of the Foundation, "This is accomplished through SIFE teams' outreach projects within their communities and the presentation of these projects at the regional and national competitions."

Methodist is one of 50 American colleges approved for membership in the SIFE program in 1990-91. A total of 252 colleges now have SIFE chapters.

Dr. Kline will recruit chapter members among students enrolled in the Reeves School of Business. He will also serve as chapter adviser and conduct training sessions in preparation for a major outreach project in the Cumberland County business community. The project developed at Methodist's SIFE chapter will be entered in a regional competion in April 1991.

The business professor said the Students In Free Enterprise chapter is the logical successor to the Economics and Business Club which currently exists on campus. He said students who join and participate in the development of next year's SIFE outreach program will receive 3 semester hours of academic credit for Business 345 - "Field Experience in Economics and Business."

Professionally Speaking . . .

Alan Porter, professor of music, and Elaine Porter, associate professor of French, have been granted sabbatical leaves for the spring, 1991 semester, based on proposals they submitted.

Mr. Porter will attend Mozart festivals in Vienna and Salzburg and one or more Mozart symposia in America. Next year marks the 200th anniversary of the death of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

His study of Mozart will culminate in one or more of the following projects at Methodist in the fall of 1991: a recital of Mozart songs and arias written for the lyric tenor voice, a lecture/recital based on Mr. Porter's research and travel, and a performance by the Methodist College Chorus of a major Mozart work for chorus and orchestra.

Mrs. Porter will study the Lafayette Collection in Davis Memorial Library and visit historic sites and other collections in France to gain additional information about Fayetteville's namesake.

Outcomes of her project will include a printed brochure about Methodist's Lafayette Collection, a text and recording for guided tours of the collection, and a grant proposal to ensure the preservation and restoration of the letters and other artifacts in the collection.

Friends Of Davis Memorial Library Seeks New Members

Friends of Davis Memorial Library has launched a drive for new members.

Mrs. Jane Cherry, the new president of the group, would like to see more alumni get involved in the organization, especially those living in the Fayetteville area.

In the past, the organization has met only twice a year — fall and spring — usually for a brief cultural program followed by a reception. The group also publishes a newsletter.

Mrs. Cherry said the Friends board wants to sponsor additional cultural events in 1990-91, including some that showcase student talent. The program for the regular fall meeting will be announced later.

Director of Library Services Susan Pulsipher reports that Friends of the Library has 77 members at present. Two types of memberships are available — sustaining and life. All members are eligible to borrow books and other materials from the library.

Davis Library houses a wide variety of educational media -- books, periodicals, microfilm and microfiche, historical documents and letters, and recordings.

Mrs. Pulsipher said money raised by Friends of the Library in 1990-91 will be used to purchase new equipment for the library.

If you would like to help Davis Library get ready for the 21st century, please complete the form on this page, clip it, and return to: Jane Cherry, Methodist College, 5400 Ramsey Street, Fayetteville, NC 28311.

Men's Golf Team Wins National Championship

Coach Steve Conley and the Methodist men's golf team achieved a goal on May 25 that most coaches and players just dream about. They won the NCAA Division III National Championship by 30 strokes!

The Monarchs became only the second team in 10 years to break 1,200 in this event, setting an NCAA team scoring record of 285 on the third day. Rob Pilewski became Methodist's second consecutive national champion, taking medalist honors with a 289 total and a one-stroke victory over Barry Pry of Ohio Wesleyan.

Methodist notched a four-day total of 1,172 strokes on the 6,596-yard, par-72 Indian Mound Golf Course at Jekyll Island, Ga. Pilewski, John McCullough (294-6th place) and Hank Klein (294-6th place) were first team All-Americans. Jim Percherke's 300 (16th place) earned third team All-American honors. Randy Shaw rounded out the championship crew with a 311 for 52nd place.

Third-year Coach Conley was ecstatic about winning the championship. "When you're favored like we were, you know that they're capable of doing it. . .you can't wait to get going. . .but then to just win it outright. . .there's no doubt who the best team is! We were never beaten on any day of the tournament. The guys really stayed focused. After each day, we considered that day history and felt we were starting each day even. Setting that NCAA record on such a tough course was great. Three of our golfers finished in the top six and Rob was the individual champ. What a great week for us!"

Tennis, Softball Teams Win Dixie Conference Titles

Methodist's women's tennis team showed little mercy for its Dixie Conference opponents as it defended its DIAC Championship without losing a match.

Top-seeded Monarch Dorian Droege repeated as the No. 1 singles champ, as did Amanda Cook at the No. 5 spot. Other winners in singles matches were Laurie Brucker, Lori Gustavson, Sandy Roozeboom, and Tracy Maness. In doubles, Droege and Brucker teamed for victory, as did Gustavson and Maness, Roozeboom and Cook. All six Monarch netters received All-Conference honors and Coach Pete Kendall was named the Conference Coach of the Year.

Droege became the first female tennis player in Methodist history to receive a bid to the NCAA Division III Tennis Tournament. Unfortunately, Droege drew the tournament's No. 1 seed in the first round and lost 6-1, 6-1. She finished the season with a 21-2 record and was ranked No. 18 nationally and No. 5 regionally when the regular season ended.

The team completed Kendall's second season with an 18-3 overall record and an undefeated conference record.

Softball

Coach Diane Scherzer's softball team made amends for its third-place regular season finish by capturing the DIAC Softball Tournament with a four-game sweep April 20-21.

In route to the championship, Methodist defeated No. 2 seeded NC Wesleyan 4-2 and 4-0, then followed with 6-0, 2-1 victories over No. 1 seeded Christopher Newport.

Senior first baseman Linda Eberly led the Monarch hitters with a .400 tournament average and had ample help from Donna Sims (.308) and Anne Vleman (.385). Pitcher Michelle Karl and outfielder Lorie Sanuta jointed these three on the All-Tournament team, and Monarch catcher Staci Sanders was chosen Most Valuable Player.

Methodist completed the season with a 23-11 overall record. Sims, a third baseman, was the leading batter (.396, 23 RBI's, five doubles, three triples, one homerun, 12 stolen bases) and was selected to the National Softball Coaches Association Central Region

Second Team. Karl had a 20-9 overall record. Karl and Sanders were second team All-Conference selections.

Men's Tennis

The Monarch tennis duo of Jonathan Terry and Tom Maze won the DIAC doubles championship in April. The two defeated a Christopher Newport twosome 1-6, 6-4, 6-4 in semifinal action and then defeated a pair from Averett 3-6, 6-4, and 6-3.

Terry and Bryan May made it to the finals in singles action, but did not claim a championship. Terry and Maze received All-Conference honors for their doubles victory.

Methodist finished third as a team in the Dixie Conference. The Monarchs were 11-10 overall for the season and 2-2 in conference action.

Women's Golf

Football Prospects Look Brighter For Second Season

Monarch Football Coach John Crea is expecting "about 75 players" — 30 returnees and 45 new recruits — for preseason camp August 13. Practice opens August 14 for the Monarchs' second season.

Methodist will play another 10-game schedule that includes the same opponents as last year. Coach Crea believes Cumberland and Ferrum colleges will again offer the stiffest competition.

The Monarchs open against Cumberland College in Williamsburg, KY Sept. 8. They play their first home game Sept. 15 against Washington and Lee University.

Last year's 0-10 season was difficult for Methodist's fledgling team. Injuries and lack of size took their toll. "It seemed like everyone got hurt last year," said Crea, "including some coaches on the sidelines. We'll be much stronger physically this season."

Crea and Assistant Coach Jeff Cusack say recruiting "went well — much better than last year."

Transfers who look promising include: Steve McNeil, a 6'1", 185 lb. junior running back from the State University of New York at Albany and Stacy Reeves, a 6'1", 255 lb. freshman lineman from East Carolina University. Reeves was an All-County player at Douglas Byrd High School.

Crea will be counting heavily on some key offensive and defensive players from last year. They include Robbie Barnhill at quarterback, David Williams at offensive tackle, Russell Seaton at outside linebacker, and Joe Arbogast at defensive end.

The Methodist coaches have also recruited some freshmen: John Bufalari, a 6', 225 lb. defensive tackle from Spotsylvania High School in Fredericksburg, VA; Jamie Justice, a 6'1", 235 lb. defensive lineman from Charlotte (NC) Latin High School; Jeff Baker, a 5'11", 218 lb. offensive guard from North Fort Myers (FL) High School; Tommy Buckner, a 6', 165 lb. quarterback from Fuquay-Varina High School; Ben Pope, a 6'5" quarterback from Western Harnett High School; and Mike Yanavok, a 6', 202 lb. running back from Lenape Valley (NJ) High School.

The 1990 coaching staff includes one new addition -- Brian Hoffman as offensive line coach. He replaces Chuck McCall.

Jeff Cusack, who coached the linebackers last year, will be defensive coordinator. Mike Sinkovitch returns to coach the defensive line and John Hobby will again handle the defensive backs. Tennis Coach Pete Kendall and Head Athletic Trainer Byron Schulken will provide additional expertise.

The Monarchs' home football games will be played Saturdays at 1:30. Y'all come!

Methodist Names New Head Coaches

Methodist has named three new head coaches, filling vacancies created by resignations.

Karen Smith will coach women's softball and volleyball. She comes to Methodist from MacMurray College in Jacksonville, IL, where she was instructor of P.E., coordinator of the athletic training room, and adviser to the cheerleading squad.

Ann Davidson has been named women's golf coach and sports information director.

Mrs. Davidson comes to Methodist from the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, VA, where she was the women's golf coach.

Gregory Rumsey is the new cheerleading coach and director of student life programming.

Mr. Rumsey was previously employed as athletic promotions coordinator at Loyola College in Baltimore, MD.

by host Amherst College at the Hickory Ridge Golf Club in Amherst, MA, May 9. Amherst finished the three-day event with team total 977 and Methodist was two back with a 979.

Monarch Rindy Garner was second with a 240 (80-82-78); Suzanne Hughes (79-79-86-244) was fourth; and Alyson Greer (84-82-79-245) finished fifth. All three were named to the All-America team, with Hughes and Garner receiving an invitation to participate in the NCAA Women's Golf Championship held at the Palmetto Dunes Plantation (Hilton Head Island, SC) May 23-26. Hughes won the William and Mary/Ford's Colony Invitational in April. Denise Woodard and Melissa Dziabo rounded out the Monarch fivesome.

Hank Klein Wins VA Amateur Title

Hank Klein, a rising senior from Richmond, VA, won the Virginia State Golfers Association State Amateur Golf Tournament July 1 in Charlottesville, VA.

Klein defeated Mike Grant, a rising senior at Virginia Commonwealth University, 1-up to win the 36-hole championship.

Klein defeated Tom McKnight (the defending champion) and Jon Hurst en route to the finals of the match-play tournament.

--Special thanks to Kevin Record, The Daily Progress, Charlottesville, VA for this news.

Flashback: Coach John Crea gives instructions to quarterback Rich Pope.

Trey Bostick gets a hit for the Monarchs in a regular season game against Winthrop.

Bishops Nip Monarchs In Regional

After struggling through one of its toughest schedules in years, the Methodist baseball squad received its ninth consecutive NCAA bid and was seeded second in the regional tournament hosted by Trenton State in New Jersey.

The Monarchs won their first two games, defeating Trenton State 10-5 and N.C. Wesleyan 12-8 and were one game from the the College World Series. But Dixie Conference nemesis and defending national champion Wesleyan bolted from the loser's bracket to hand Methodist a 5-4 loss and then a 9-7 setback in the seventh and deciding game.

Methodist ended its 11th season under Coach Tom Austin with a 27-17 record, a second place conference finish, and a No. 17 national ranking. The 1989 team set a school record with 23 consecutive wins and finished the regular season 33-3.

Joe Corretjer, Rodney Jones, Jay Kirkpatrick, and Trey Bostick were selected to the All-Tournament Team. Corretjer and Jones were DIAC All-Conference first team selections, while Kirkpatrick and Bostick made second team.

Kirkpatrick and Corretjer led the team with .389 batting averages. Senior Rodney Jones was 10-1 on the mound. Rodney Jones and Joe Corretjer were picked as first team All Americans. Rodney and Joe were first team All South while Jay Kirkpatrick was second team and Robbie Moreau was third team All South.

News From The Alumni Office

We are fortunate to have had vacant board seats filled with interested and energetic alumni.

Lynn Clark '72

Patric Zimmer '89, a former Student Government Association President, is the Executive Director of the Raeford-Hoke Planning and Development Commission. Patric has been a vital member of the Alumni Finance Committee since his graduation.

William Kenneth (Kenny) Hall '84 was also a former S.G.A. President and active on campus. He is presently a United Methodist minister in Maxton, NC.

Catherine (Katie) Bryant '68, of Fayetteville, is a retired teacher. Katie has been an interested alumna and an effective caller during phonathons.

Janet Conard Mullen '72, a principal in the Cumberland County Schools, joins the board following active participation on the Nominating Committee and the Methodist College Loyalty Day.

June Davis '89 is a special education teacher in Cumberland County. Although June is a new graduate, she has a special knowledge of the alumni area after four years as a work study student in the Office of Alumni Affairs.

These are all hard workers who are bringing fresh ideas to the board and who will represent you well.

Our phonathon is running continuously this year. If you have not yet been called, you may still be contacted by one of our students during the fall semester. To date, over $9,000 has been pledged. If you don't hear from us, please don't let that stop you from contacting us.

We are hearing from many of you during the Loyalty Fund Drive but we are looking for greater participation this year. If you have never contributed, start this year. We are not asking for a large amount but only ask that you get in the habit of giving. Many of our alumni have started out with five or ten dollar checks per year and have increased their donations through the years as their situations have changed. The important thing is that they are helping to support the college.

You have heard this before but it needs to be repeated. Did you know that when we apply for grants, the foundations ask how supportive our alumni are? Whether or not we receive a grant can depend on the amount of alumni participation.

Speaking of participation, alumni numbers have been growing at Homecoming each year and you have even more reason to attend in October.

Some of us oldies have a problem adjusting our ears to the current music volume levels, so there will be a special party on Friday night for the Classes of 1964-1975, featuring songs from the '50's, '60's, and '70's.

How exciting to finally hold the dedication for the new March F. Riddle Center. This is an excellent time to see the new facility.

Following the dedication, there will be an alumni basketball game. All men and women who played varsity or J.V. basketball at Methodist are eligible to play in these games. Just fill out the form on your Homecoming brochure. T-shirts will be given to all alumni players and former coaches who return.

Rev. Nancy Best '65 will be the speaker for our Sunday service in the Hensdale Chapel.

Make plans to stay on Sunday for a concert by Gail Yemington '72, soprano; Teresa Batson, mezzo-soprano; Alan Porter, tenor; and Wesley Rowell '84, bass.

We have been asked not to send mail to both husbands and wives when both are alumni. In a few cases, that would be appropriate but there are other times when the spouses need separate mailings for one reason or another so the computer has been set up that way. This is particularly important when the spouses are from different classes. If you need only one copy of MC TODAY, for example, please pass your extra copy on to your church youth group or a high school guidance counselor. You can be an effective recruiter for Methodist.

Special thanks to all of those who have served on the Methodist College Alumni Association Board of Directors and on special alumni committees during this past year. It is a sacrifice for many of you to travel a long distance or to take time from your busy schedules to meet and to take additional responsibilities as a result of your board or committee work. We appreciate you.

MC Alumni Find It's A Small World

Army Capt. Jeff Cavano '80 writes that he recently met a fellow Methodist College graduate — Steve Neeley '74 — at the University of Utah.

Cavano said he met Neeley in a political science class. After a short discussion, the two Army officers discovered that both were from North Carolina, that both were graduates of Methodist College, and that both had been studying at Utah's Middle East Center for the past two years.

Major Neeley has completed his doctoral work at Utah and has been selected to attend the Command and General Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, KS. Capt. (P) Cavano has received his M.A. and moved to Monterey, CA, to study Arabic. Both Steve and Jeff will be serving in the Middle East in the near future.

MCAA Board Meets For All-Day Retreat

The Board of Directors of the Methodist College Alumni Association gathered on Saturday, May 19 for an all-day retreat. The board members heard presentations from all of the vice presidents, division directors, and representatives from the athletic and admissions area. They also toured the campus.

The purpose of the retreat was to become more familiar with the programs and facilities of the college, to help new board members learn board procedures, and to meet for a goal-setting session.
