PRESIDENT CITES NEED FOR UNITY WITH DIVERSITY

▲ DR. M. ELTON HENDRICKS

"Unity is the challenge for our society today. If we do not achieve a spirit of unity within our society, then we shall all perish separately."

This was the warning sounded by Dr. M. Elton Hendricks, college president, at the opening convocation for the spring semester.

Dr. Hendricks began his speech by recalling an incident that his wife Jerry had experienced while teaching at a predominantly black "union school" (grades 1-12) in South Carolina in the late 1960's. At a Thanksgiving Day program, a black child acting as narrator had said, "When our forefathers came over on the Mayflower..."

He said Mrs. Hendricks knew this child's ancestors had come to America on slaveships, not the Mayflower. The president said his own ancestors came to Georgia, from a debtor's prison in England.

"Finally we concluded that it was proper for young black children to claim the Mayflower as part of their tradition," said President Hendricks, "only if, as whites, we are willing to claim the slaveships as part of our tradition."

Noting that America is made up of immigrants from many different backgrounds, Dr. Hendricks compared the nation to a tossed salad, in which all ingredients are recognizable but still contribute to the "richness and fullness of our common life."

Dr. Hendricks said a liberal arts education enables people to better appreciate their roots, as well as other traditions. He said St. Paul wrote of the value of diversity in the early church at Corinth, comparing the Christian church to a human body, in which each part needs the other.

The president said he agreed with Plato that "the best body politic is one where the entire body of citizens shares the happiness and suffering of each member." He said today's single issue political groups often fail to understand the needs and interests of others.

Dr. Hendricks said Americans must look beyond individual differences, because "unity with diversity is not only a moral imperative, but also a practical necessity."

METHODIST COLLEGE CONTRIBUTES TO DOGWOOD FESTIVAL

Methodist College will contribute five events to Fayetteville's 1992 Dogwood Festival April 3-12.

Art Exhibit

The Honors Art Exhibit, featuring works by Methodist's senior art majors, will be held in the Mallett-Rogers House. Works can be viewed March 28 — April 13 from 1-3 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday; 12:30 — 2:30 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday; and 2-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Chekhov Farces

The Monarch Playmakers will present two one-act farces by Anton Chekhov April 3-5 in front of the Mallett-Rogers House on campus.

Performance times are Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children and senior citizens.

Both farces involve "a battle of the sexes with a Russian flavor." In "The Bear," the hero and heroine argue over a debt, challenge each other to a duel, and fall in love. In "The Marriage Proposal," a different hero and heroine argue over land and hunting dogs, nearly come to blows, and finally fall in love.

Paul Wilson, assistant professor of theatre and speech, is the director and set designer. The program is being supported with a Local Government Grant from the Arts Council of Fayetteville/Cumberland County and the City of Fayetteville.

Bird Watching

Bird lovers are invited to take a walk in the Methodist College woodland with Dr. Erik Bitterbaum, vice president for academic affairs and resident ornithologist.

The "bird walk" will begin at 8 a.m. Saturday, April 4 in front of Horner Administration Building. Bring your field glasses and enjoy the spring arrival of warblers, jays, nuthatches and related birdlife.

Nature Walk

Wild flowers will be the focus of a guided tour of the Pauline Longest Nature Trail Saturday, April 4 at 10 a.m.

Dr. Linda Sue Barnes, professor of biology, will identify numerous wildflowers native to the Cape Fear region. The tour will begin at the pond adjacent to the Shelley Baseball Field on campus. Walkers may drive to the starting point via the access road behind March F. Riddle Center.

Theatre Festival

The Methodist College Theatre Department will present its second annual "Hail Dionysus!" High School Theatre Festival Thursday, April 9 in Reeves Auditorium.

The purpose of the all-day event is to celebrate original playwrighting by high school and college students. Students from local high schools will present original scenes or skits and attend performance and technical workshops during the day. Methodist's Circuit Players will perform during a barbecue supper.

Evening performances in Reeves Auditorium will showcase high school actors and three original one-act plays written and directed by Methodist College students. Awards will be presented to outstanding high school performers and to the Methodist College student whose one-act play is judged the best.

Morning, afternoon, and evening performances are free and open to the public. For a complete schedule of the day's activities, contact Dr. Jack Peyrouse, professor of theatre and speech, 630-7104.

WAR MEMORIAL

Methodist College will dedicate a War Memorial to its fallen alumni Wednesday, May 20 at 2 p.m.

The memorial will be placed on the campus lawn near the flagpole, facing Horner Administration Building. A stone marker and plaque will honor Methodist alumni who gave their lives in the defense of freedom.

Dr. John Sill, professor of sociology at Methodist and an Air Force chaplain, will speak at the dedication ceremony. Dignitaries from Fort Bragg, members of Methodist's ROTC contingent, and local veterans have been invited to participate.

Mr. Bev Pankey, vice president for development, organized the drive to raise funds for the project.

SPIRIT PROGRAM BRINGS TOWN, GOWN TOGETHER

▲ CLARIE WHITE TALKS ABOUT A FAVORITE CHILDREN'S BOOK.

School spirit has taken on new meaning this year at Pauline Jones Elementary School in Fayetteville.

SPIRIT — Students and Parents Involved in Reading Instruction Together — is a collaborative parent education program designed to improve the reading skills of disadvantaged fourth graders. The program is co-directed by Ms. Jennifer Jerch, English and education instructor at Methodist College, and Mrs. Barbara Rice, a fourth grade teacher at Pauline Jones.

The five-month program offers parents monthly workshops and free reading material for their children. It was made possible by grants from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, the United Way of Cumberland County, Methodist College, and the Cumberland County Schools.

The proposal for the Reynolds grant garnered $25,305 to improve the reading skills of fourth graders; the proposal was written by school principal Sally Austin and Methodist College education professors Dr. Tony DeLapa and Ms. Jennifer Jerch.

A United Way grant of $17,000 made it possible to expand the program to serve all students at Pauline Jones (grades 4-6) who are reading below grade level.

The program's second session, held the first Tuesday in February, drew 91 parents to the school cafeteria to learn "What You Can Do at Home" to improve your child's reading. For two hours parents heard presentations from four different educators and shared practical advice drawn from personal experience.

Dr. Tony DeLapa showed parents how to use a daily newspaper, the Fayetteville Observer-Times, to teach vocabulary, basic math, and writing.

Ms. Jerch demonstrated the SQ3R reading method (survey, question, read, recite, review) using the popular children's book In the Dark, featuring the Berenstain Bears. She urged parents to pose questions when reading picture books to their children.

Mrs. Clarie White, a parent, urged her peers to set an example for their children by reading more at home. She said parents should encourage their children to read aloud at least 15 minutes each day and should capitalize on the child's special interests in selecting reading material for them. She urged parents to monitor what their children read, discuss what they are reading with them, and try to tie-in object lessons in stories with everyday problems.

Mrs. Sally Austin, principal at Pauline Jones Elementary School, reviewed a copy of a magazine entitled Highlights for Children: Reading With a Purpose. All parents participating in the program received a free subscription to the magazine, which is filled with articles and activities for children.

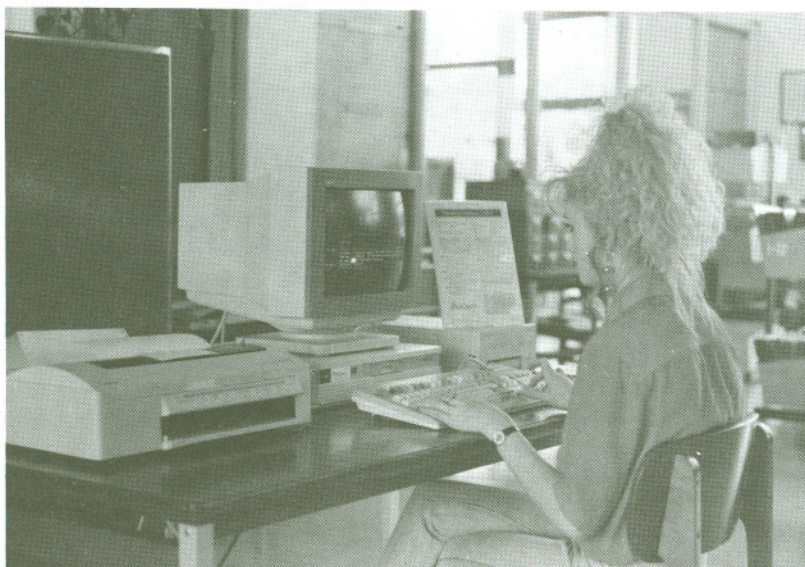

Mrs. Austin concluded her presentation by distributing contracts to parents, in which they and their child contracted with her to set aside 20 minutes each night for reading.

COMPUTERIZED INDEX MAKES RESEARCH EASIER

Davis Memorial Library has acquired a computerized index for journals and periodicals which enables students to easily locate reference sources on almost any subject.

The Pro-Quest I system from University Microfilms consists of a microcomputer, color monitor, printer, six-disk CD-ROM player, software program, and two CD-ROM disks containing periodicals abstracts. It was purchased in December with funds provided by Friends of Davis Memorial Library.

Contents of 600 journals (magazines, periodicals) and the last six months of The New York Times are indexed. About 450 journals are indexed back to 1986; while the remainder go back to 1990. A new version is mailed to the library each month.

When a student enters a subject into the system — "greenhouse effect," for example — the system reports how many records contain this phrase. By ordering up a display of titles and abstracts of articles, a student can determine which articles would be most useful for more detailed reading and research. Students can obtain printouts of bibliographic citations or brief abstracts (summaries) of particular articles.

Davis Library currently holds 26 percent (251 titles) of the journals indexed in the Pro Quest system. For journals which are not in the collection, articles may be requested from another library through interlibrary loans.

When a demonstration version of the Pro Quest system was made available to faculty and students last spring, they were impressed. Most found it much quicker and more efficient than the traditional print indexes such as "Reader's Guide to Periodicals."

"Students started to use journals in our collection that they would not have by using the printed indexes," noted Susan Pulsipher, director of library services. "This is because they would only search one print index and those are subject-oriented, or without the abstract they didn't think the article was worth pursuing."

Mrs. Pulsipher said the new computerized index will be especially helpful to golf and tennis management students and students in criminal justice/legal studies, "as those subjects are not covered much in our print indexes."

PANKEY ASSUMES DEVELOPMENT POST

emy. He earned a bachelor's degree in business administration and a master's degree in management from Aquinas College. He has taught business courses at Aquinas, Davenport College, Rhode Island Junior College, and Longwood College.

"Methodist College is fortunate to recruit a man like Bev Pankey," said Dr. Elton Hendricks, college president. "His enthusiasm for Christian higher education and his previous success as a fund-raiser will be invaluable to the college."

Bev Pankey describes college development work as "a matter of faith — persuading people that the college is worth supporting, and numbers — reaching as many friends, alumni and foundations as possible." He said immediate goals at Methodist will be to expand the donor base and increase giving by businesses, friends, and alumni.

"I see a lot of strengths at Methodist," said the new vice president. "The faculty and staff seem to have a genuine interest in students. Methodist teaches Christian values and that's extremely important. There's a good, cooperative spirit here and a wholesome atmosphere. Methodist College has accomplished a lot in its first 30 years and already has an excellent reputation."

Beverly S. Pankey was named the new vice president for development, effective January 20.

Mr. Pankey was previously employed as director of corporate relations at Aquinas College in Grand Rapids, Michigan. He succeeds Thomas W. Williams, Jr. who resigned in December.

Methodist's new fund-raiser directed an $8 million capital fund campaign for Aquinas College from 1990-91. He also taught courses in marketing, strategic planning, and small business management. Mr. Pankey was previously director of marketing for two Michigan furniture and office systems manufacturers and served 21 years as a supply corps officer in the Navy.

▲ DICK PLAYER, CHAIRMAN OF '92
COMMUNITY LOYALTY CAMPAIGN

The Methodist College Foundation kicked off its 35th annual Community Loyalty Campaign Tuesday, February 18 with a breakfast/pep rally.

Richard L. Player, Jr., president of Player, Inc., set the tone for the event by urging 100 volunteers to cultivate all prospective donors, not just the wealthy.

Mr. Player told the story of a couple who met with the president of Harvard University in 1884 to discuss a way to memorialize their son who had died in Europe. Treated with disdain, as if they were incapable of making a significant gift, the couple subsequently abandoned Harvard and gave $26 million to endow Stanford University.

College President Elton Hendricks said that the challenge now facing Methodist College is one of greatness—how to build its reputation nationally and internationally. He said Methodist devotes a larger percentage of its budget (approximately 20 percent) to scholarships for students than any college in the state. He said the Foundation and those who donate to the college make it possible for the college to implement its stated policy that "no qualified student shall be denied entry to Methodist College for financial reasons."

Vice President for Development Bill Lowdermilk said Methodist College is in the business of helping people realize their full potential in life. He cited two examples of students who had overcome adversity during their years at Methodist, had graduated, and were now major successes, "Your gift is a gift for eternity," he said.

Kimberly Ratliff, president of the Student Government Association expressed thanks to all Foundation members, past and present, for creating Methodist College and making it successful.

Bev Pankey, Methodist's new vice president for development, read a poem called "Volunteer Heaven" and urged campaign workers to help expand Methodist's donor base in the greater Fayetteville community.

This year's Community Loyalty Campaign targeted 2,000 local businesses, three times more than last year, in an effort to raise $175,000 in sustaining funds for the college. By the end of the first day, the foundation had secured gifts and pledges of $52,000, approximately double the amount raised on the same day last year.

The college cheerleaders and stage band added pizzazz to this year's breakfast. The cheerleaders led the volunteers in a cheer and the stage band, under the direction of Mike Rogers, serenaded the departing crowd from the east balcony of the Berns Student Center.

WHAT'S HOT IN THE CAMPUS BOOKSTORE

Additional floor space, display windows, and new lines of college sportswear have contributed to record sales for the Methodist College Bookstore.

Store Manager Burhl Cunningham reports that sales are running 25 percent ahead of the same period last year. Sweatshirts are the biggest sellers in the soft goods area; more than 800 have been sold since July 1.

Sales Assistant Mary Sramka says the hottest item right now is an off-white "tackle twill" sweatshirt with METHODIST COLLEGE emblazoned in navy and green plaid, sewn-on letters.

A new style sweatshirt with the college seal and the word "Alumni" embroidered on it has proved quite popular with MC alumni. Another big seller is a navy blue nylon shell windbreaker with Methodist College embroidered on the front.

T-shirts with Methodist College spelled out in floral and paisley patterns (blue, cranberry, and pink) have been a big hit with students. More than a dozen new shirt designs have been purchased this year, most from "Nu Sportswear" and "Gear for Sports."

Mrs. Sramka said the store recently ordered a new line of Champion sportswear — sweatshirts, T-shirts, shorts, and warm-up suits. "Everything we carry is good quality and stylish," said Mrs. Sramka. "Many items are also available in children's sizes."

Prices vary, but T-shirts generally go for $14.95 — $24.95. Alumni, faculty, and staff receive a 10 percent discount on anything in the store. The store is open from 8-4 weekdays. Phone orders are accepted at (919) 630-7165.

SENIOR INTERNS AT SMITHSONIAN

Last fall Michael Vaden, a senior history major from Palatka, Florida, became the first undergraduate to complete an internship at the Smithsonian Institution.

Working in the Smithsonian Archives, Vaden studied the personal correspondence of Spencer F. Baird, a 19th century biologist who was secretary of the Smithsonian from 1878 until his death in 1887. His letters are held by four different government agencies, including the Smithsonian, and there are major gaps in the collections.

In the course of his research, Vaden discovered a book written by Ito, a Japanese fisheries official, which was sent to Baird's daughter as a memorial tribute in 1888. Because Vaden had studied Japanese, he was able to translate part of the book. What he learned was that Baird was revered by the Japanese for his work as the first U.S. fish commissioner. Baird was appointed to that post by President Grant in 1871.

During his four-month internship, Vaden began work on what will become a cross-collections and repository guide to the Baird papers. He worked under Dr. William A Deiss, the Smithsonian's Associate Archivist. He also reported to Dr. Peter Murray, professor of history at Methodist, who sponsored his internship.

Vaden stayed quite busy. On weekday evenings he took a geopolitical forecasting course at Trinity College (Catholic University); he also took many morning classes in Japanese at George Washington University.

The Smithsonian was an awe-inspiring place to work. "I tried to take in as many Smithsonian exhibits and programs as possible," he said, "I would guess I saw 70 percent of what's there."

An unexpected bonus for Vaden was the opportunity to meet Lisa Benzchael, a student at the University of Wisconsin interning at the Pentagon. Like Vaden, she had a background in military intelligence (Michael was a Marine for eight years and a Green Beret for four). Lisa and Michael will be married this summer.

In fall 1993, Vaden would like to begin work on a master's in international relations with an emphasis on Asian studies. His career goal is to work for the U.S. government, perhaps in the Foreign Service.

JOEL SMITH, NATIONS BANK EXEC, SAYS ECONOMIC RECOVERY BEGAN LAST SUMMER

Most economists believe the recession ended in North Carolina between March and September of last year.

Joel Smith, president of NationsBank of South Carolina, made that observation in his keynote address at Methodist College's Outlook for 1992 Symposium in November.

Mr. Smith said America had begun a "mild" recovery from recession. He also predicted that President Bush will "push through some sort of fiscal stimulus," to ensure his reelection. He was quick to note that the 1990-91 recession had been much less severe than 1982; unemployment of 6.8 percent compared to 10 percent a decade ago and job cuts just over half of 1982's 3 million.

"Short-term, specifically 1992, our economists call for GNP growth in the 2.5 percent range," said the banking official. He said North Carolina fared better than the nation as a whole during the current recession and should experience a quicker recovery.

Smith said America's banks "lack the mandate to fully participate in the recovery because of our country's crazy quilt of banking regulations." He said Congress had failed to enact a Bush Administration package of proposals that would have allowed the banking industry to "fully compete with its unregulated competition."

Saying America has had "too many banks chasing too few good customers,"

Mr. Smith said regional consolidations and mergers of big banks will likely continue. He said NCNB's agreement to merge with C&S/Sovran to form NationsBank "creates an unprecedented institution that will cover 10 states and the District of Columbia."

Mr. Smith said the Federal Reserve predicts the number of U.S. banks will shrink from about 12,500 today to between 6,000 and 7,000 by the year 2010. He said two types of institutions will emerge: a handful of truly national banks (including NationsBank) and smaller community banks that provide highly specialized service through a network of no more than 10 branches.

CENTER FOR ENTREPRENEURSHIP HONORS FOUR

The Center for Entrepreneurship at Methodist College honored four persons for business achievements at last fall's Outlook for 1992 Symposium.

Walter Clark, founder of Mid-South Insurance Company, was named Business Person of the Year for 1991. Mr. Clark was cited for his success in making Mid-South a leader in the group accident and health insurance industry.

The Fayetteville based firm had premium income of $67 million in 1990, and netted $5.06 million in 1991. In December, Mid-South moved into a new corporate headquarters building on Ramsey Street.

Mr. Clark is currently chairman of the board at Mid-South Life, and previously served as president and treasurer. He is a graduate of the Purdue University School of Health Insurance. He serves on the boards of several professional associations and three local banks. He has been a leader in business and civic organizations in Fayetteville and currently serves as secretary of the Methodist College Board of Trustees.

David McCune, founder and president of Fayetteville Steel/McCune Technology, was named Entrepreneur of the Year for 1991. The firm which he established in 1974 designs and fabricates a wide variety of steel products, from automotive accessories to playground equipment.

His first creation was a rear window louver for a Datsun 240-Z. McCune Technology has gross sales of $1.5 million per year and occupies 44,000 square feet of manufacturing space in the Cumberland Industrial Center.

Mr. McCune is an active member of Haymount United Methodist Church, the Gideon West Fayetteville Camp, and the Fayetteville Rotary Club. He serves on the Methodist College Board of Visitors and is chairman of the Cumberland County Private Industry Council and the Cumberland County Schools' New Horizons Program.

Dr. James K. Weeks, dean of the Joseph M. Bryan School of Business and Economics at UNC-Greensboro, was named Economics and Business Alumnus of 1991.

The 1968 graduate of Methodist College is considered an authority on production/operations management. He has conducted seminars on the subject at (Please see, CENTER, page 15)

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS, GRADS GIVE MC NEW STATUS

Methodist College is now a miniature world map. Forty students from 18 countries now study at the college, and that number and representation will continue to grow.

A visitor to the campus may now browse through Brunei, jaunt around Japan, idle through Ireland, spring through Spain, bask in the sun of the Bahamas, and marvel at Mauritius. Students are also on the campus from Bolivia, Canada, the People's Republic of China, Germany, Haiti, Iceland, Korea, the Netherlands, Pakistan, Thailand, England, and Yugoslavia.

For several years now, Methodist College has featured at its graduation exercises flags representing the countries of all international graduates. Each graduate from a new country presents the flag of his country upon his graduation. A total of 28 flags were displayed on stage at the last graduation.

The time has truly come when ours is an international institution, when one may meet the world at Methodist College.

For much of its history, Methodist College has had international involvement. That was formalized in 1989, when the Atlantic Coast Center for Language and Culture was established on campus. With a full-time international students' advisor and a comprehensive program for international students, Methodist College now actively recruits all over the world.

It is noteworthy that a number of international students now present on campus were referred here by college alumni. One high school in Japan in Otsuki City, Yamanashi Prefecture, now boasts five Methodist College alumni.

Methodist College likes to keep in touch with its international alumni and to correspond with them. Methodist alumni from other countries or from the U.S. may contact the college to give or receive information about friends in other countries. In the classified pages of each MC Today, alumni may read about each other. Please note in this issue news about Awwad Alazimi of Kuwait (Class of 1985) who recently visited the campus.

Anyone who would like more information on international students or the program of the Atlantic Coast Center may contact Mrs. Jane Cherry, director of the center. Methodist alumni are invited to visit with international students on campus—to truly meet the world at Methodist College.

REV. BROWN URGES WINTER GRADUATES

Winter graduates of Methodist College were urged to make learning "an adventure for a lifetime" at their commencement December 13.

In an address entitled "Welcome to the New World," the Reverend Wesley F. Brown, director of development and alumni affairs at Duke University Divinity School, gave 84 graduation seniors "one final assignment."

Reverend Brown, a 1973 graduate of Methodist, advised members of the winter class to: "savor what you have learned, discover a vocation, take care of yourself, cultivate faith in God, keep things in perspective, and be generous."

Dr. M. Elton Hendricks presented Reverend Brown with a Methodist College Medallion in recognition of his distinguished service as a United Methodist preacher, teacher, and administrator.

Two ROTC cadets — Charles E. Jackson II and T. Doniell Garnett — took the Oath of Allegiance and were commissioned lieutenants in the U.S. Army.

Frank Steven Taylor, an honors graduate in history, received the second annual Sam Edwards Award, signifying his selection as the outstanding Evening College graduate of 1991.

Degrees were awarded to the following persons:

S.S. DUNN CONTINUES TRADITION OF SERVICE

▲ PLANTER BY S.S. DUNN

Methodist College has been the beneficiary of the generosity of many people since its inception in 1956. Among this group is the Dunn family.

The speaker for our first chapel service was the Reverend Millard C. Dunn, the Superintendent of the Fayetteville District of the United Methodist Church. It was he who established the Lenora Auten and Lloyd Dunn Scholarship Fund in memory of his parents. He was faithful in his constant support of this scholarship, although he had three sons to educate, and the salary of a district superintendent would seem to run out before the end of the month at times.

Mr. Dunn had emphysema and the warm, humid summers in the four counties that comprised the Fayetteville District made it difficult for him to breathe. Since a great deal of the time of a District Superintendent is spent in his car traveling to the churches and visiting the pastors placed in his care, the lay and clergy members of the Fayetteville District took up an offering to put air conditioning in his car. Mr. Dunn believed in education to such a degree that he took the money for the air conditioner and gave it to the scholarship at Methodist College.

Before the goal of $10,000 could be reached, the Reverend Millard C. Dunn died. The scholarship was not forgotten however. His brother, Mr. S. S. Dunn in Charlotte, took up the gauntlet. Year after year he has remembered the scholarship fund by his contributions. On his 80th birthday, he asked family and friends not to buy him presents but to write a check payable to Methodist College for the scholarship fund.

Mr. S. S. Dunn is now 83 years old and is retired from Hormel Company, but he annually contributes to the scholarship established in memory of his parents. In order to create more revenue for the scholarship, he makes whirlees, wheelbarrow planters and other wood products. He has become quite well known for his workmanship. His whirlees were recently featured on a Charlotte television program.

Mr. S. S. Dunn had a difficult time getting his education. Due to an eye condition he was not able to graduate from college, but he knows the value of higher education.

In a recent visit he offered a little advice for students he is helping to educate:

— Getting an education is of utmost importance. It is something that no one can take away from you.

— It is a mistake to let the dollar blind you in making your vocational decision.

— Stand up for what is right. Don't compromise.

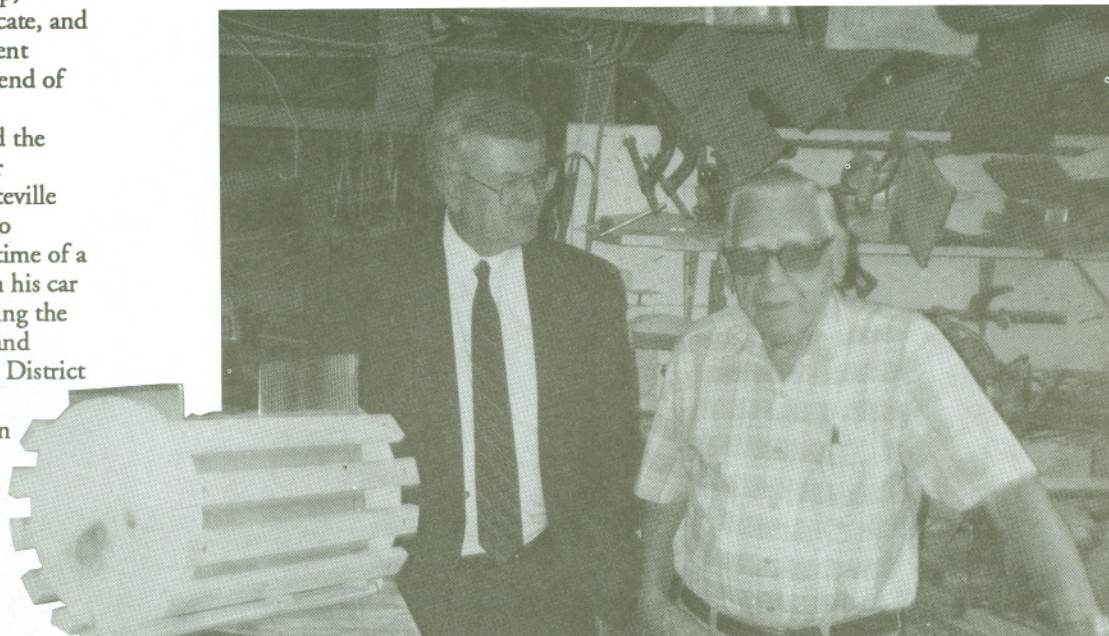

— Too many people just exist rather than live.

— Rather than trying to live by your own ingenuity, let God help you.

In talking with Mr. Dunn, you know how important this scholarship is to him. His love for people comes across in a dynamic way. At the age of 83, he continues to look for ways to help other people, and he says that he prays to God to give him the strength to do the things he needs to do. Clearly, the building up of this scholarship is one of the things which he feels he needs to do.

Methodist College was conceived by, has been nurtured by, and is supported by the Dunn family and a host of others who believe in a value-oriented education.

METHODIST COLLEGE CHEERLEADERS TO COMPETE IN NATIONAL CHEERLEADING CHAMPIONSHIP

▲ THE METHODIST COLLEGE CHEERLEADERS FINISHED SECOND TO CHRISTOPHER NEWPORT IN THE DIXIE CONFERENCE CHAMPIONSHIP HELD AT GREENSBORO COLLEGE.

The Methodist College cheerleaders have been invited to compete in the National Collegiate Cheerleading Championships in San Antonio, Texas April 9-13.

Methodist's cheerleaders were selected on the basis of a videotape which they submitted to Universal Cheerleaders Association for judging. The Methodist team will compete in Division II against four other colleges. First, second, and third place prizes will be awarded in each division.

A total of 20 collegiate cheerleading teams will compete in three different divisions at the UCA Championships. Five of the 20 teams which qualified are from North Carolina. N.C. State University cheerleaders will defend their national title in Division IA. Teams from Appalachian State, UNC-Charlotte, and UNC-Wilmington will compete in Division I.

Methodist Cheerleading Coach Greg Rumsey said the UCA invitation is a great honor which resulted from a team effort and "a lot of hard work."

The UCA Championships will be videotaped by ESPN for rebroadcast in May.

DAVIDSON ASSISTANT NAMED HEAD FOOTBALL COACH

James Carroll Syput, an assistant football coach at Davidson College, was named head football coach effective January 27.

Mr. Syput inherits a young, NCAA Division III program which compiled a record of 2-28 during its first three years. He replaces John Crea, who was head coach at Methodist from 1988-91.

A native of Fairmont, West Virginia, Jim Syput played football at West Virginia University, where he earned bachelor's and master's degrees in physical education. He has 18 years of college coaching experience—12 at Davidson, five at Middle Tennessee State University, and one at Fairmont State College.

He was defensive coordinator, administrative assistant, line backer and secondary coach at Davidson from 1979-88 and in 1990-91. He was head coach of the Bologna Towers, a professional football team in Italy, from 1986-89 (two seasons).

"Methodist College is fortunate to recruit as a coach a man of Jim Syput's experience," said Dr. Elton Hendricks, college president. "His knowledge of football is excellent. His knowledge of a Division III program in an academic environment will also be of value to Methodist College."

Athletic Director Rita Wiggs said Mr. Syput was selected from a pool of 115 applicants. "With his broad knowledge of North Carolina and his 18 years of college coaching experience," she noted, "he should be a very effective recruiter."

Syput said he regards the head football post at Methodist as "a great opportunity" and was impressed to learn that Methodist is nationally ranked in so many Division III sports (golf, soccer, baseball). "Why not football?" he asked.

"Division III is the purest form of college football," said Syput, "because the students are not paid (through athletic scholarships) to play. Academics comes first at these schools."

Coach

Syput said he intends to build a winning team "that will be a credit to Methodist College."

"There's great high school football in the Fayetteville area," said Coach Syput, "My approach will be to go after the local talent and then move out from there. My first priority on arriving will be to meet with existing team members and get to know them."

ADVERSITY HAS MADE HIM STRONGER

DAMIEN: CALL HIM DETERMINED!

Damien Lords, a junior transfer student at Methodist, is a determined young man.

He has this dream of becoming a pop singer/song writer. He's a tenor looking for an agent. He doesn't read music, but he's already written and recorded 10 songs.

During spring break, he plans to "make the rounds" in New York City, visiting record companies, entertainment lawyers, and modeling agencies with his tape and portfolio in hand. He's appeared in several TV commercials.

Lords knows it won't be easy. But he's already conquered more obstacles than most people face in a lifetime.

When he was two, his mother was murdered. His father became an alcoholic. At age four, he and his brother were adopted by a Louisiana family. His adoptive family was poor, but by age 12 he was earning enough mowing lawns to buy his own clothes.

Lords began lifting weights in junior high school and became an all-state wrestler in high school. He also played football and sang in the high school chorus.

Then he encountered another setback. He was kicked off the high school wrestling team his senior year after "having words" with the football coach over use of the school's weight-training facility.

This was a bitter disappointment. "I was counting on getting a wrestling scholarship to go to college," he said.

After graduating from high school, Lords enlisted in the Army's early-entry program. He served two years in Missouri and two years with Fort Bragg's 82nd Airborne Division. He was a member of the 82nd's All-American Chorus for 18 months.

Three months after his enlistment was up, Lords discovered he had Hodgkins disease or lymphatic cancer. His plans for a music career had to be shelved. "A lump appeared on my shoulder and I began feeling drowsy," he recalls. "They did tests at the VA Medical Center and determined I had Hodgkins disease in Stage II-B."

After two and half months at Duke Medical Center and 18 months of radiation and chemotherapy, Lords' doctors said the cancer was in remission. He had overcome his greatest obstacle to date.

During his illness, Lords spent a lot of time writing songs and wrote an autobiographical movie script entitled, "The American Dream." He also enrolled at Fayetteville Technical Community College, earning an associate degree in general education in 14 months.

Lords won the Mr. Fayetteville Bodybuilding Contest in 1990—the same year he beat cancer. He also began working as a trainer at Fitness Plus in Fayetteville.

Last summer, Lords and three instrumentalists produced a demo tape of Lords' 10 songs at a Fayetteville recording studio. The demo is called "The First Words."

"Many of my songs are very personal," admits Lords, "Five of the songs on the demo are ballads." Lords' personal favorite is, "So Cold in the Rain", but a panel of Methodist College students thought

"Somehow," "A Lifetime Guarantee," and "Take Me Away" were his best efforts. Lords' music is hard to characterize, but it is closer to easy listening or country than rock.

Lords enrolled at Methodist in January, with plans to major in criminal justice/legal studies. He has since been recruited to play for the Monarchs football team beginning next fall. He's still working on his movie script and plans to take it along to New York.

Will "The American Dream" make it to the silver screen? Will Damien Lords become a recording star? Stay tuned folks. This man believes it will happen and he's willing to work for it.

Kunio Mitsuma has received his Ph.D. in mathematics from Penn State.

Lewis Walston has been awarded a $2000 grant from the Burroughs Welcome Science Faculty Scholarship Program to aid in his doctoral studies in mathematics education at North Carolina State University.

Shivappa Palled attended the AMS and MAA Joint Mathematics meetings at Baltimore, Maryland on January 8-11. He also participated in the following minicourses at this meeting: Instituting a Mathematics Placement Program and Why, When and How to use CAS Calculators in Calculus and Linear Algebra Instruction.

Dr. Ken Collins, associate professor of religion and philosophy at Methodist College, will present a paper on John Wesley at the Oxford Institute of Methodist Studies next summer.

Dr. Collins was invited to present a paper at the international forum and to participate in the Wesley Student Working Group at Somerville College, Oxford University. His paper is entitled "The Soteriological (Salvation) Orientation of John Wesley's Ministry to the Poor."

Methodist baseball coach Tom Austin delivered a 20-minute presentation entitled "Preparing Your Pitchers For Your First Game" January 4 in Dallas, TX.

He spoke to about 2,000 high school and college coaches at the annual meeting of the American Baseball Coaches Association.

Coach Austin reviewed the step by step procedure for training and conditioning a pitcher to the point where he can safely pitch an entire ball game. He said considerable practice is needed before a pitcher can attain a high enough pitch count to throw an entire game.

Dr. Sue Kimball, professor of English, delivered a paper entitled "An Old Pealed Wall: Congreve's Superannuated Ladies" to the Southeastern Society of Eighteenth Century Studies Feb. 28-29 in Winston-Salem. On March 14, she delivered a paper entitled "Horton and Eva and Hosea and Gomer" at the N.C. Women's Writers' Conference in Winston-Salem.

Dr. Kimball has also been invited to present a paper about Robert Penn Warren at the national meeting to the Modern Language Association in New York in December.

Peggy Hinson, associate professor of art at Methodist College, presented an exhibit of her drawings, paintings, and mixed media works February 2 - March 13 in the college's Mallett-Rogers House.

The exhibit consisted of drawings, shadow box constructions, and works that involve the integration of visual art, kinetics and computer-control. The retrospective exhibit included works dating back to 1981.

The program director particularly likes the fact that parents have shared ideas in each session for getting their children "hooked on books." "Many parents are lingering after the workshop and are now taking their children to the public library for additional books," noted Mrs. Austin.

Mrs. Austin gives much of the credit for the program's success to Mrs. Daisy Steward, a parent who works part-time as school-community coordinator and also serves as PTA president. Mrs. Steward was instrumental in persuading parents to attend the workshops.

Those involved in the SPIRIT program are convinced it will improve the reading skills of children whose parents are participating. At the end of the current school year parents and educators will evaluate the SPIRIT program through questionnaires and interviews. The 1992 California Achievement Test scores of students whose parents have participated in the program will be analyzed to determine if the project has made a difference in reading performance.

The SPIRIT program represents the third collaborative effort between Methodist College and Pauline Jones Elementary School. Last year, Dr. DeLapa conducted an inservice reading workshop for Pauline Jones teachers. Last summer, Dr. DeLapa and colleagues offered a summer reading camp at the school for incoming fourth graders.

Dr. Weeks said he appreciated the honor and the good foundation he received at Methodist.

Mary Gay Crech, a senior business administration and economics major from Linden, NC, received the Wall Street Journal Award.

A 1988 graduate of Pine Forest High School, she is an honors student at Methodist. Dr. Erik Bitterbaum, vice president for academic affairs, said the business faculty selected Miss Crech for the award because of her outstanding "organizational skills, communication skills, and leadership ability."

COLLEGE BOWL TEAM FROM METHODIST PERFORMS WELL IN FIRST OUTING

Methodist's fledging College Bowl Team performed well in the Region 5 College Bowl Tournament held at Virginia Tech February 28-29. This is the first year Methodist has participated in College Bowl, which emphasizes quick recall of facts about a broad range of subjects.

The college's four-member team won six of 10 games and finished seventh among the 22 college teams which competed. Teams from the University of Virginia and N.C. State University finished first and second respectively.

"Individually and as a team, they played in top form," said Dr. Wayne Preslar, team coach. "We were an unknown going in, but defeated teams from Davidson, Duke, Wake Forest, Elon, and Lee College. We lost to the University of Kentucky, UNC-Wilmington, Vanderbilt, and the College of William and Mary."

Methodist's College Bowl Team consists of 10 players selected after trial games last October. The team which competed at Virginia Tech consisted of: Stephen Fann, Martin Brack, Cathy Griffith, and Ann Morris.

In a mid-February contest, the Elon Invitational, Methodist defeated the host team. Methodist's College Bowl contingent will host the Methodist College Invitational in mid-April.

ALUMNI BOARD LAUNCHES NEW PROJECTS

The Alumni Association sponsored an Alumni Basketball game Saturday, February 22. Gene Clayton and Mason Sykes coached, with Mason's team, amid cries for "Oxygen...where's the oxygen?" bringing in the winning score—30-20.

Alumni who came back to play included Howard Hudson '69, Rick Merrill '72, Gary Porter '78, Barbara Buie, Gerald Pone, and Mark Lange '81, Steve Flowers and Al Carroll '83, Vernon Livingston '84, Roger Pait '85, Mark Forbes '87, Darrell Bock '88, Jaime Rosa, Glenn Gaines, Krebs Corey, and Mitch Adams '89, Greg Dirks '90, and Bryan Cole '91. After the game, a reception was held in the Riddle Board Room for alumni, their family and friends.

Many thanks to Roger Pait, Janet Mullen, and Larry Philpott for the hours upon hours they have spent working out a 1992 Strategic Plan for the Alumni Association. The plan includes a well-thought-out agenda of events for 1992. The new committee structure seeks to give alumni greater opportunity to get involved with Methodist College again.

The next event coming up is the May 17 graduation. An alumni committee is taking a look at changing the reception our association hosts for graduates. Currently, we serve refreshments immediately after the graduation ceremony, and do not have an opportunity to meet the graduates and welcome them into the Association.

The committee will be considering alternatives such as an evening reception before graduation. If you have some creative ideas, or some time to help make this event a success, please call 630-7170 or 630-7167 to sign up. We really need your help, and guarantee it will be fun!

Homecoming 1992 is on the calendar for October 17. Your Alumni Homecoming Committee has already had its first planning meeting with the Student Homecoming Committee, and we are working on a super special weekend for you this year. We plan to add some new events, like an alumni-student joint cookout just before the game, complete with bluegrass band!

Although we have some great ideas, we need more... and would like to hear what you want to see on the Homecoming Weekend Schedule. If you have an opinion whether the main alumni party should be on campus or off, please let us know! Would you like more baby-sitter time available this year? If there are some classmates you'd especially like to see, we are making addresses available ahead of time so that you can make plans for a great "coming home" to Methodist in the fall.

◀ THE ALUMNI BASKETBALL GAME WAS SHORT, BUT INTENSE.

March 1, 1992

Dear MC Alums:

It is a great time to be involved in the Methodist College Alumni Association. I am excited about the many opportunities available to alumni to shape the future of the association.

Last year the MCAA Board of Directors appointed a strategic planning committee. During 1991 the committee really picked up steam and in 1992 continued to pour on the coal. The committee has done an outstanding job in developing a strategic plan and will make a presentation and proposal to the board on April 4, 1992. After board approval of the plan, the association will be off and running in a new direction with lots of excitement and focus.

The plan calls for more alumni involvement in graduations, homecomings, alumni chapters, special events and fund raising. Contact me (c/o Alumni Office Methodist College, phone 630-7167) or one of your other board members to find out how you can become more involved.

Remember, it's a great time to be involved in the MCAA, so come on and join in the fun.

Sincerely,

LADY MONARCHS CAPTURE DIXIE CROWN

The Lady Monarchs started the season with the motto "In the Market for a Championship!" With solid performances from the returning players and a talented crew of newcomers, 6th year Coach Rita Wiggs and the 1991-92 Lady Monarchs attained the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow by winning the 1992 Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournament title.

The Lady Monarchs took the DIAC tournament championship in dramatic fashion with convincing wins over Averett, Greensboro and Ferrum. A Methodist women's basketball team had never advanced beyond the first round of the tournament.

The team played impressive basketball throughout the final weeks of regular season play and maintained that same level of intensity throughout the tournament. Playing a fast-paced transition game, this team style of basketball was exciting for the players, coach and fans.

For the first time in Methodist women's basketball history, a team recorded more than 20 wins in a season, placed three players on the Dixie All-Tournament team, placed one player on the First Team All-Conference squad, and had a player receive Most Valuable Player in the tournament. It was a remarkable feat for a young team that started two freshmen, two sophomores and one junior.

Methodist finished the regular season with a an overall record of 22-6 and a 6-4 record in the conference. The 6-4 record placed the Lady Monarchs in a tie with Ferrum for third place, but because of head-to-head competition Methodist received the higher seed going into the tournament. Playing the first round of the tournament against Averett on Tuesday, February 25, Methodist dominated play both offensively and defensively to claim a 79-27 victory. This win advanced the team to second round action against Greensboro College. The Lady Monarchs played the best half of basketball they had played all season, taking a 51-28 lead into the half. Methodist continued their strong play in the second half, walking to injuries was a concern for Coach Wiggs, but her team responded each time with solid performances off the bench. Probably the most crucial factor in the success of this team, in comparison to other seasons, was depth. Different players continued to step in and pick up the slack.

Methodist opened the season with six consecutive victories and went into the holidays undefeated. After the holiday break, the team came back a little flat but had two more victories until they were defeated by Greensboro College at home. Five of the six losses came during the month of January.

The second match-up against Greensboro is the game that Coach Wiggs views as the turning point of the season. After the Greensboro loss, the Lady Monarchs made mental adjustments and realized that playing hard for the entire 40 minutes of the game produces victories. Methodist won 11 of their final 12 games, with the only loss being to Christopher Newport College 93-92, a team ranked third in the South region poll.

Several individuals had remarkable seasons for the Lady Monarchs. Daphne Akridge, a junior from Bassett, VA was the first Methodist player ever chosen to the First Team All-Conference squad. Novella McMillan, a freshman from Fayetteville, was not only the first Methodist player picked as the conference tournament Most Valuable Player, but also the first freshman to ever receive the award. Joining McMillan on that All-Tournament team was Roxanne Cannaday, a sophomore from Fuquay-Varina, and Angie Garner, a sophomore from Angier.

Next came Ferrum College in the championship game. Both teams struggled offensively throughout the first half of play, each shooting only 31% from the floor. The game remained tight throughout the second half, until Methodist rallied during the final ten minutes to produce an 82-66 victory.

An overall team effort allowed this Methodist squad to win the conference tournament championship. Several players contributed throughout the season to give the team a balanced scoring attack in each game. The loss of key players due

COACH AUSTIN LIKES PROSPECTS

The Methodist College baseball team has built a reputation for being one of the best in NCAA Division III. This season the Monarchs are looking forward to building on that reputation.

Head Coach Tom Austin, in his 13th season, is counting on a talented freshman class and the return of several key players from last year's squad to improve on last year's 31-16 record.

Defensively, the Monarchs return an outfield packed with experience. Joe Myrtle, a third team All-America selection last season, returns at left field. Brandon Bridges, a second team All-South selection, will provide quickness in center field and Trey Bostic returns to right field after sitting out last season with a knee injury. Bostic has good offensive power as well.

The infield, while young, shows great potential. Greg Cox is the only experienced player returning, playing first base. Cox is a solid player with great defensive capabilities.

Mackie Register and Mike Williams are competing for second base honors. Register is making a transition from right field to the infield. Mark Roncace, a freshman, will play shortstop, while Chris Horton, another freshman, will start at third base. Andy Norton and Herman Pegram will split time behind the plate.

Starting pitchers include Matt Boucher, Mike Rohr and Brian Ford. All three will see lots of action on the mound for the Monarchs. Middle relief pitchers are Ricky Young, Todd Pope, Derek Covell and Steve Getz. Short reliever will be Patrick Facht.

Overall, this team will have an above average outfield and an infield that must mature quickly. The pitching staff is very capable and should keep the team in most games.

The schedule is one of the toughest ever played by a Methodist team. The team will take the field against 13 scholarship schools and eight teams ranked in the top 20 in the NCAA Division III poll. Coach Austin said he was "very pleased with the attitude early on of this team and their push to work hard in practice." Coach Austin has amassed 388 wins at the helm of the Monarch baseball program.

—Sylvia Williams

WILL CHAMPS REPEAT?

The 1992 Lady Monarch softball team has more overall talent than last year's championship team.

Becky Younger returns to pitch for second year coach Karen Smith. Becky was a first team All-Conference selection last season in the field and a second team selection on the mound. Her experience and ability to maintain control and keep a level head will be important this season. She will also play a big role for the Lady Monarchs' offensive threat. She has excellent speed on the bases and will be given the go-ahead on steals.

Linder Smith, a senior from Fayetteville, returns to play shortstop. She will be counted on for her ability to motivate and lead the team emotionally. With excellent power at the plate, she will be hitting in the clean-up spot. Smith was a second team All-Conference selection and a first team All-Tournament selection.

The key returner from a year ago is Melissa Furr. Furr plays with great intensity on both offense and defense. The Lady Monarchs expect great things from this player, who was selected to the first team All-Region.

The 1992 team will be without Anne Ulleman, last year's team MVP and 2nd team All-Region selection, due to a knee injury. Ulleman will be missed because of her versatility and her ability to play well under pressure.

With the return of these experienced players, along with the addition of several newcomers, this team could produce another exciting season for the players, coach and fans.

GOLF TEAM SEEKS THIRD NATIONAL TITLE

Methodist's defending NCAA Division III championship golf team returns only two players from last year's team— Captains Rob Pilewski and Billy Anderson. Fifth year coach Steve Conley will be relying heavily on these exceptional players.

Pilewski is a three-time all-America selection and was the national champion in 1991. His leadership and experience will play a key role on this year's team.

Anderson was a member of the National Championship team last season and was selected to the All-Conference team.

Newcomers include Dave Jukes, a sophomore from Scarborough, Ontario, who was aggressively recruited in high school. He is a little older than most of the other players and his maturity will be valuable throughout the season. Eric Haile, a junior from Webster, NY, won tryouts in the fall and played in all three fall events. With a little more experience, he should play a key role this season.

A talented group of freshman highlight the list of newcomers. Sammy Hudson from Garner, NC, Ryan Jenkins from Colonial Heights, VA and Jim Nickerson from Augusta, ME are all excellent players. Coach Conley has very high expectations for all three players.

This team's goal is to defend both its national championship and conference titles. Other goals are to beat all Division III competition and as many NAIA and Division I and II teams as possible. Since 1980, the Monarch golf team has produced 29 All-Americans, six Academic All-Americans and in the last five years two national champions.

TRACK AND FIELD TEAM SHOWS PROMISE

The 1992 track and field team is an inexperienced group with lots of potential. John Keady is coaching, with assistance from Brian Cole. What began as a team of nine students grew to 23 after the second week of practice.

Two participants with the ability to qualify to the NCAA Division III meet are Tim Shaw and Brian Shuren (pictured at left). Shaw throws the shot put and Shuren participates in the pole vault.

Participating in the steeplechase, Brett Dietrich returns to give experience and team leadership. Sprinters Jamelle Ushery and James McMillan show lots of potential for an outstanding season; both were named to the Indoor All-Conference team.

Jason Leinheiser returns, after sitting out last season, to participate in the high jump. His experience in this event should be a valuable asset to the team.

Jay Haley tops the list of newcomers. Haley is very quick and should be very competitive in the sprinting events. Another newcomer who should contribute immediately will be Steven Allen. Allen participates in the high jump and the triple jump.

WOMEN'S TENNIS PREVIEW

▲ WOMEN'S TENNIS TEAM

The Lady Monarch tennis team is loaded with experienced players.

Dorian Droege, a senior from Clermont, FL, returns for her last season. Droege is a two-time national tournament competitor, is undefeated in conference play, and was named the team's Most Valuable Player last season. She ended last year ranked 22nd in the nation.

Also returning for their senior seasons are Laurie Brucker and Amanda Cook. These individuals have never lost a conference match and have won the Dixie Conference Championship the past three years. Their experience, coupled with their leadership ability, will greatly benefit the 1992 squad.

The team faces a tough schedule which includes defending NCAA Division III champion Mary Washington and Division I foe Old Dominion. With solid play from the veterans and modest contributions from the younger players, this team should be very competitive on the national level.

—Sylvia Williams

MEN RANKED 18TH

The 1992 Monarch tennis team returns a talented crew of experienced players from last year's conference championship squad. Going into the spring season, the team is ranked 18th in the nation. Chip and Chris Collins are ranked 18th and 48th respectively in singles and are ranked 25th as a doubles team.

Several key teams highlight this year's schedule, such as Division III powerhouses

Kenyon, Carleton, Dennison and Averett, along with Division I UNC-Wilmington and Old Dominion University. The team also travels to Atlanta, GA for the Emory Invitational Division III Tournament.

While this year's schedule is the toughest ever, the team is loaded with talent and is expected to do well against even the toughest of opponents.

MEN'S BASKETBALL POST SEASON REPORT

The Methodist College men's basketball team struggled through a disappointing season. The Monarchs dropped their first round Dixie Intercollegiate Conference tournament game against Averett College 77-75, ending the season with an overall record of 8-18.

Erick Hunt led Monarch scoring against the Cougars with 23 points. James Wear added 15 points, while Randy Martin and Marc Malone each contributed 10 points. With two seconds remaining, Methodist put the Cougars on the line for a two-shot foul and Averett sank both free throws to put Methodist at the losing end.

James Wear, a senior from Fayetteville, was named to the Second Team All-Conference squad for the second consecutive year. Wear averaged 18.6 points per game. Senior Erick Hunt averaged 15.2 points per game along with 4.5 assists. Randy Martin played the post well this season averaging 7.4 rebounds per outing and 13.5 points per game. Jason Leinheiser led the team in assists, averaging 6.5 per contest.

ALUMNUS FILES SUIT

Many who attended Homecoming last fall were acutely aware of the absence of Joanna Cherry Palumbo '69.

In recent years, Joanna has done a masterful job of persuading her classmates and acquaintances from other classes to return to Methodist for class reunions.

In reaction to her absence this year, John Brown '71, an attorney in Chesapeake, Virginia, sent Joanna a six-page notice last November detailing a class action suit against her on behalf of members of the Class of '71.

In his motion for judgment, Brown seeks compensatory damages for the emotional distress suffered by his clients:

The complaint states

the plaintiffs appeared at the Alumni Party October 12, assuming that Mrs. Palumbo had done her advance work and would be there/with many other MC alums' especially members of the reunion classes of '66 and '71. They described the turnout as "woefully inadequate."

Citing breach of implied contract and negligent infliction of emotional distress, the suit asks for $40,000 in damages OR that the defendant take an oath to begin work immediately coordinating the 1992 Methodist College Homecoming Reunion with members of the Classes of 1966 and 1971.

When contacted by phone and asked about the suit, Joanna said, "I faxed a copy back to John the day I received it saying 'Work has already begun. Please drop the suit.'" In short, Mrs. Palumbo swears she will be back this fall!

LOOKING FOR A JOB?

JOBHUNT (TM) by Scope International, is a computer program that helps job-seekers find jobs. It is currently available at 10 percent discount from the Methodist College Bookstore.

A successful job search depends heavily on the law of averages. The more applications you can send and the better you can target them, the higher your chances of landing the right job. This is where JOBHUNT Software can help!

It gives you the names, addresses, phone/fax numbers and brief company profiles of leading potential employers nationwide. You can search and display by region and/or job function.

Then, you can type a sample cover letter (or follow-up letter, or any other letter) into JOBHUNT's built-in word processor, then automatically and quickly mail-merge it with the addresses you select, to print personalized letters to the employers.

Just attach resumes and you are ready for a targeted mass mailing of your job applications. JOBHUNT prints mailing and return address labels too, saving a lot of time and researching effort!

JOBHUNT runs on all IBM/Compatible computers, uses only 256 RAM and a single floppy disk drive, and is extremely easy to use. Both sized disks are included.

It retails for $49.95 but is on sale for $45 through the month of April in the Methodist College Bookstore. One free update is included in the purchase price.

It's All In The Cards!

Alumni!!! Would you be willing to help new Methodist graduates find jobs? If so, please send in your business card so we can create a bulletin board on campus for seniors seeking job leads. We would appreciate your making job openings known to us. Phone (919) 630-7150.
